SMASH NAZI COUNTER-BLOW

MASSED TANK DRIVE BROKEN UP IN HOLLAND

Yanks Seize Nancy Area Stronghold.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Oct. 1 (AP).—British troops on the Arnhem-Nijmegen front tonight fought off the nearest thing to a German counter-offensive since the unsuccessful drive to split the Brittany bound American armies at Avranches in Normandy two months ago.

Altho some German infantry and tanks were able to cross the Neder Rhine at Huissen, four miles southeast of Arnhem, the drive definitely has been broken up, it was reported at headquarters.

The massing of Nazi tanks and infantry eight miles north of Nijmegen was spotted by the British. Rocket firing Typhoons were summoned and ripped into the enemy forces.

Field Marshal Model teamed with bad weather to stage his latest attack. It was coördinated with stabs that were not quite so strong against the American 1st army front southwest of Prum and in the Gremecy forest northeast of Nancy. None of the German thrusts gained any ground.

Attempt to Nip Off Salient.

The size of the German force indicated it was not a local counter-attack such as have harassed the British 2d army and the air borne American troops since they landed in Holland two weeks ago.

The Germans apparently had planned to drive from Huissen and nip off the tip of Lt. Gen. Dempsey's spearhead, still on the banks of the Neder Rhine west of Arnhem near Renkum.

The British widened their corridor further as strong forces began driving the last enemy across the Maas [Meuse] river. Tommies already are entrenched along 25 miles of the west bank of the Maas south of the Siegfried line's northern terminal at Kleve.

Rocket Typhoons turned their explosive missiles on German big guns in the Reichswald [forest] southwest of Kleve.

Gain East of Eindhoven.

The British were three or four miles east of 'S Hertogenbosch—which the enemy has fortified strongly to protect his northern line of retreat out of Holland—and were pressing the Germans back in a bloody sector between Nuland and Berlicum.

East of Eindhoven the British were pressing toward the Maas against only moderate resistance. The Germans were falling back across the stream and digging in for a stand on its east bank from two to five miles from the German border.

All along the 460 mile rain drenched front the Germans lashed out with counter-blows in an attempt to keep the fighting lines static.

American troops routed the enemy from the key stronghold of Rambervillers, 30 miles southeast of Nancy in one of many battles fought across sodden plains and mountains of northeastern France.

Yanks Firm Near Belfort.

The German war bulletin announced the 7th army's capture of Rambervillers, a key position which the enemy has bitterly defended because it controls important highways. Rambervillers is 21 miles west of the Saales pass thru the Vosges mountains, blocking the way to the Rhineland.

Northwest of Belfort, where the American 7th army stands only 9 miles from the fortress city at the mouth of the gap, the Germans struck violently but failed to dent the American positions.

The enemy's bulletin said that on spurs, forested mountains and the valley entrances of the Vosges bitter fighting was in progress.

The United States 3d army broke up a big German assault in a four hour battle at Jallscourt, 16 miles northeast of Nancy and carved out local gains in the same sort of slugging match that has marked that front for weeks. At least six more enemy tanks were destroyed.

Only minor action was reported from around the railway city of

4 Palau Isles Won; 10,000 Japs Killed

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 1 (AP).—American forces have secured all of Peleliu Island except isolated "bloody nose ridge," Adm. Nimitz reported in a bulletin today. Marine planes were smashing the strong positions still held by the Japanese in the heart of Umorbrogol hill.

The admiral disclosed that more than 10,000 Japanese soldiers have been killed in the southern Palau Islands, of which Peleliu is the largest. The Yanks now control not only Peleliu but all of Angaur, Ngesebus, and Kongauru, the bulletin said.

Flyers hammered the Japanese hill positions Friday with 1,000 pound bombs in an effort to demolish remaining fortifications. Isolated enemy remnants continued to offer bitter resistance from hillside caves.

One Pocket on Angaur.

One small pocket of resistance remains on Angaur island. The bulletin said "elimination of the remnants of the Japanese defenders continues."

The mid-September landings on Peleliu and Angaur came within two days of each other and simultaneous with the invasion by Gen. MacArthur's forces of Morotai Island, just north of Halmahera in the Moluccas. These invasions pose a triple pronged threat to the southeastern Philippines.

Striking 1,300 miles northeast of Tokyo, Liberator bombers bombed Shumushu Friday. The raiders encountered only moderate anti-aircraft fire and all returned to their base.

MacArthur Sinks Ships.

ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, Oct. 2 [Monday]—(AP).—Gen. MacArthur's flyers ranged from Celebes to the Philippines, damaged or sank three Japanese ships, set fire to airdromes and destroyed a number of parked planes, today's bulletin announced.

The month-end's bag of ships brought to a total of 210 the ships and smaller craft, including barges, that MacArthur's men have sunk or damaged in September.

A 10,000-ton tanker was damaged off Zamboanga, southerr Philippines, and an 8,500-ton freighter-transport was sunk in Tiworo strait, southern Celebes. A coastal vessel also was damaged near Zamboanga.

Hit Halmahera Field.

Bombers extended their Celebes attack to enemy aircraft facilities at Kendari, where three grounded planes were set afire.

Carrier planes and air patrols pounded the enemy's Halmahera airdromes day and night.

Raids on Ceram and Boeroe airdromes by allied heavy, medium, and fighter bombers which dropped a total of 79 tons of explosives put the airstrips out of service and probably destroyed four parked planes. Coastal shipping also was hit.

The 30-day bag of Japanese shipping included a seaplane tender and two destroyer escorts sunk; 68 vessels ranging from 2,000 to 10,000 tons, sunk or destroyed, and 38 ships damaged. The figure also covered 111 barges and small coastal vessels, important craft in the enemy's hard-hit supply lines, sunk or damaged.

Union Leader Says Dock Strikers Are Out of Hand

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Six hundred striking Newcastle dockers are out of hand and beyond control of their union leaders, Maj. Mark Hewitson, chief industrial officer of the National Union of General and Municipal Workers, said tonight. Hewitson, who is coming to London to place the facts before the government and urge an investigation, said he believed there was a "deliberate attempt to sabotage the war effort behind the Newcastle dockers' strike."

Popcorn Bag Traps 3 in Killer Hunt

A crumpled popcorn bag, found outside the home of George Nahas, reputed Michigan City [Ind.] gambling czar, resulted yesterday in the arrest of three men in connection with the fatal shooting in the home a week ago of Harry Solomon Akchevoun, 48, Nahas' bodyguard.

Those seized are Leroy Swathwood, 24; Carl Henry Nichols, 21, and Marcellus Harry Headley, 33, all of Elkhart, Ind. Headley and Swathwood have police records. Lt. William Roth of the Elkhart police said Nahas had "positively identified" Headley as one of three gunmen with whom he struggled and said Headley shot him in the arm.

Popcorn Bag Gives Clew.

The popcorn bag was found near the home by two Michigan City newspaper women who turned it over to police. It bore the name of Mrs. Juanita Landis, 915 Orange st., Elkhart, together with her telephone number.

Mrs. Landis told police she had written her name on the bag and given it to Nichols, whom she met in a tavern. Nichols told police he had placed the bag in a candy box in his room where he keeps other papers, and that it later disappeared.

Robbery Plot Disclosed.

Asked who could have taken it, he said that Leroy Swathwood, a fellow employe at the Superior Brass foundry in Elkhart, had been keeping company with Nichols' sister-in-law, Miss Cora Hawkins, and had access to the box on his visits to the house.

Police arrested Swathwood Saturday. He denied taking the bag, but under questioning said he had heard Nichols, Headley, and a third man plotting a robbery at the Nahas home.

Near the Nahas home, police had found a wrecking bar that they traced to Swathwood's stepfather, Clyde Kulp. Kulp identified the bar thru some cream colored paint on it.

Shoe Tracks Also Found.

It also bore particles of sand similar to that used in the brass foundry where Swathwood worked, and police discovered that Swathwood's shoes fitted tracks left on a newly painted basement floor in the Nahas home by one of the three gunmen, who entered thru a basement window.

Police held Swathwood and arrested Nichols and Headley, who also works at the Superior Brass foundry. All three deny knowledge of the slaying of Akchevoun and the shooting of Nahas.

BRITISH WOMEN WANT BETTER CORSETS EVEN IF THE PRICE EXPANDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Board of trade utility corsets have just about exhausted the patience of British women who are reported angry over the poor quality of war time corsets and demanding better models even if the price has to be increased. Further, they don't believe the board of trade really is trying. Women correspondents point out that nine men advise the board and no woman corset expert ever has been consulted.

Recently women's hopes were raised by reports that larger quantities of steel are being released for corset stiffening. But the new corsets, the women complain, are no better than the original utility types.

The highest price utility corset costs $3.57. Women urged the board of trade to turn out a better article costing around $6 to $8 even if it does mean using a little more rubber and steel.

650 NIGHT SPOTS DENIED LICENSES BY POLICE IN N. Y.

New York, Oct. 1 [Special].—In an asserted attempt to enforce police regulations barring persons with police records from ownership of or employment in night clubs and dance halls, the license division of the police department has failed to renew licenses of 650 places which expired last night, it was learned today.

Continued operation of these places will be permitted on temporary licenses, it was said, but they will be regarded as on probation while a check is made to determine ownership and character. "We want to be sure that no racketeers have a piece of any of the cabarets," a high police official said.

Coffee Won't Be Rationed, Byrnes Says

While coffee stocks on grocery and delicatessen shelves were being depleted yesterday by the latest rumor that coffee rationing again was imminent, War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes announced in Washington, D. C., that there is no necessity now to ration this commodity. He said that ample replacement stocks for retailers are available from wholesalers and coffee roasters.

"With four months' supply of coffee now available to civilians, and on the basis of assurances received today by the department of state from Brazil that the filling of orders for United States coffee importers would be resumed tomorrow, rationing of coffee is unnecessary," Byrnes said.

Tells of Huge Stocks.

He asserted that stocks of coffee in this country available to civilians totaled 670 million pounds on Sept. 1, compared with 201 million pounds when rationing began in November, 1942, and 487 million pounds on July 29, 1943, when rationing ended, he said.

First word that coffee might again go on the ration list was made public Friday morning by a radio commentator. The rumor grew when the OPA district office in Albuquerque, N. M., announced that coffee rationing would start at 12:01 a. m. yesterday. Within an hour, the Washington OPA headquarters denied the notice as "erroneous."

In announcing there would be no rationing of coffee now, Byrnes took cognizance of "reports that coffee rationing was imminent, causing runs on grocery stores in some parts of the country."

Buying Two to Four Pounds.

Grocers here said that coffee drinkers were buying up stocks at a rate which would have exhausted their supplies within a few weeks. Jack Glickman, owner of a food shop at 2058 N. Albany av., said he was giving customers the amounts they asked for, which ranged from two to four pounds.

Byrnes' office said that Finance Minister Arthur de Souza Costa of Brazil had given assurance that 1 million bags of coffee a month would be provided thru normal trade channels. It was because American importers had had difficulty in recent weeks in contracting for more adequate supplies from exporting countries that stocks had been declining. The OPA office said that "speculative exporters" in coffee countries had been holding back shipments in an attempt to force an increase in price ceilings.

American importers have appealed to the OPA to lift coffee from price controls, but OPA sources have said there is little chance this would be done.

NEW DEAL WIVES LAUNCH SHIPS AND WIN JEWELS

Builders Give Them Fortune in Gems.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—A fortune in diamond jewelry, valued conservatively at more than 3 million dollars, has been bestowed in connection with ship launchings upon the wives and daughters of New Deal officials, Democratic members of congress, diplomats, and friends of the Roosevelt administration, according to a report based upon official government data which came to light on Capitol hill today.

Mrs. W. F. George.

One ship building company alone, according to the report, over a five year period ending last June 30, gave 44 diamond bracelets totaling $89,470 in value, an average of more than $2,000 each, to women who earned the glittering baubles by smashing champagne bottles on the prows of new vessels.

With approximately 75 ship yards operating, where the practice of donating costly gifts to the women sponsors is common, the value of such tokens would total in the millions, it was noted.

inquiry from congressmen concerning the possibility such items have been included in the cost of ship construction and passed on to the taxpayer. The report does not indicate that this has been done, but noted that the United States maritime commission has permitted wives and daughters of its members and officials to receive the expensive presents.

The report also showed that Mrs. Schuyler Otis Bland, whose husband, Rep. Bland [D., Va.], is chairman of the house merchant marine and fisheries committee, received a $2,200 bracelet as sponsor of a ship and that Bland has championed the views and actions of the maritime commission in the house on numerous occasions.

Miss Anne E. Bailey, daughter of Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.], who has supported the maritime commission in the senate on many occasions, received a $2,075 bracelet. Mrs. Walter F. George, wife of Sen. George [D., Ga.], received a $2,285 bracelet.

Tobin Linked to Brawl After F.D.R. Speech

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 [Special].—An unsavory aftermath to President Roosevelt's "fraud and falsehood" speech at the Statler hotel here Sept. 23 came to light today with the revelation that a naval hero back from the Pacific to recover from battle wounds was beaten up in the hotel by a trio from the President's labor audience after the speech.

Daniel J. Tobin.

The beating was given to the convalescent naval officer because he ignored a question about how he intended to vote in November, put to him by one of the trio, which reportedly included Daniel J. Tobin, president of the AFL teamsters union. Tobin was toastmaster at the dinner and introduced the President to the radio audience.

Leaves with Bodyguards.

After sitting at the President's side while Mr. Roosevelt was making his first officially political speech of the fourth term campaign, Tobin left the meeting with two bodyguards and met the naval officer on the hotel's mezzanine floor, it was said.

The officer is Lt. Randolph Dickins Jr., former executive officer of a destroyer escort. He holds 12 citations for gallantry in action and is a possessor of the navy cross. He is a hero of the battle of Midway and on the night of Sept. 23 he was at liberty from Bethesda hospital where he had been sent to recuperate from wounds suffered in combat.

Accost Naval Officers.

Dickins, accompanied by another naval officer whose identity has not been learned, had been attending a dance in another part of the hotel. Tobin and his companions are said to have accosted the two officers, one of them remarking: "Now, here are a couple of fine young navy men. Are you going to vote for your commander in chief in the November election?"

Witnesses said the two officers ignored the question but that the labor men repeated it twice, and that Dickins finally answered that how he would vote was "none of your damned business." With this remark a melee started, with reports unclear as to who hit whom.

Report Tobin Floored.

According to one version, one of the AFL men grabbed the naval officer from behind while another one hit him in the eye. Dickins' eye was injured so severely it required several stitches later at the hospital. Witnesses agreed that Dickins got in one punch and that it landed flush on the chin of Tobin himself, dropping him to the floor.

A navy shore patrol arrived and attempted to restore order, it was said.

Tobin is reported to have picked himself off the floor and rushed to a telephone where the magic of his name got him promptly connected with Presidential Secretary Stephen Early. The labor boss is said to have asked Early to keep the matter quiet and to have received a promise that this would be done.

A news black-out was thereupon laid down on orders from the White House, it was said. A White House emissary was sent to the district police station to stop any news leak there, and the shore patrol got orders to say nothing. The hush-hush was extended to Bethesda hospital.

Tobin Issues Denial.

In New York today, Tobin said "I'm pretty old to be getting into fights with naval officers," and said reports of the brawl were "absolute falsehoods."

Altho Dickins could not be reached today for a statement, it was reported that he was called on the carpet before Rear Adm. William Chambers, medical director at Bethesda hospital, and told not to discuss the incident.

A high naval spokesman said it was "apparently a personal matter involving only the officers concerned." Adm. Chambers denied knowledge of the affair and said he had not talked to Lt. Dickins concerning it. Secretary Early characterized reports of the affair as "damned lies," and said he doubted the incident had occurred.

DEWEY TACTICS GIVE CAMPAIGN VICTORY SPARK

Speech in Oklahoma Jolts 4th Termers.

California 'O. K.'

Republican sentiment in California has turned upward as the result of Gov. Dewey's San Francisco and Los Angeles speeches, Gov. Warren of California said at the Blackstone hotel yesterday. He will speak tonight in Minneapolis, Minn., tomorrow in Rockford, and Wednesday in Columbus, O. Warren declined to make any predictions, but said: "We think we are doing all right in California. There is nothing wrong there that can't be cured with a lot of hard work."

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 1.—Gov. Dewey's tour of the far west, his speeches and his meetings with party leaders and with labor, agricultural, and business groups gave the Republican cause a tremendous lift on the west coast.

As the reaction to the west coast speeches and particularly to President Roosevelt's Sept. 23 speech and Gov. Dewey's blistering reply to it at Oklahoma City on Sept. 26 has become vocally manifest one finds Republican leaders imbued with a new confidence of victory and Democrat confidence correspondingly jolted.

Republican leaders feel there has been a turning of the campaign tide in favor of the Dewey candidacy dating from the Roosevelt speech and the Dewey reply.

F. D. R. on Defensive.

Many Democrats express disappointment that the President allowed himself to be placed in a purely defensive attitude.

Apparently what hurt the Democratic cause more than anything else was the President's flippancy on matters of tragic import.

The Portland Oregonian, published by Palmer Hoyt, recently news chief of the OWI, charged "the Democratic national committee withheld the President's speech from overseas broadcast because it did not want the soldier voters to hear what the President said or learn of the atmosphere under which he said it."

Racketeers at Dinner.

The atmosphere was that of the teamsters' union dinner at which gathered around the President were notorious labor racketeers, including Dave Beck of Seattle who terrorized west coast business and agriculture and bossed Seattle until Arthur B. Langlie, a Republican, was elected mayor and later governor of Washington. Speaking of the President's speech the Oregonian said:

"The irony and levity that permeated the address would have the same unseemliness to those suffering the tortures of war that it had to those at home who are apprehensively awaiting the possible arrival of dread news about loved ones on the battle fronts. It was the antithesis of a speech helpful to the administration among the soldiers who will vote in the national election."

Dewey Hits Back.

When on top of a Presidential speech that damaged prospects for a fourth term there came Dewey's fighting retort at Oklahoma City, citing chapter and verse to prove the charges of neglect of defense and improvidence and inefficiency leveled at the New Deal, Republican leaders began to sniff victory.

Silenced were those who had been complaining that all Dewey was doing was to embrace the New Deal but promise to do it better. Of course, so far as embracing the New Deal is concerned, Dewey has done no more than the Republican platform itself.

The Republican platform promised to retain and extend social security. It assented to retention of the Wagner labor relations act but promised to stop the perversion of its purposes to political ends.

An outstanding aspect of the campaign up to date is Republican unity contrasted with Democratic schism. Everywhere there are Democrats for Dewey clubs. Nowhere in the west have I found organizations of Republicans for Roosevelt. Everywhere there is testimony to the harmony wrought by Dewey in the Republican organization in contrast to the dissension four years ago when Willkie gave the national committee the cold shoulder and intrusted his campaign to the Wall street boy scouts.

Dewey organized the 26 Republican governors as an active force in the campaign but not independent of the national committee. He has cultivated the national committeemen and committeewomen and the state committeemen, with the result that there is an organization up on its toes and full of enthusiasm for the candidate.

Big Crowds Greet Dewey.

Dewey received a notable reception on the west coast. He attracted greater audiences in this region than other candidates before, including Mr. Roosevelt. The audience of 90,000 that greeted Dewey in Los Angeles was larger than any other, except possibly that which heard Mr. Roosevelt's acceptance speech in Philadelphia in 1936.

There seems to be little doubt that Dewey strengthened himself tremendously by his west coast speeches.

Gov. Warren accompanied Gov. Dewey in California and is preparing to speak for the ticket not only in this but in other states. The Republican leaders look to Warren to exercise a potent influence in swinging California to Dewey.

U. S. DIPLOMATS DEFEND RECORDS OF CAREER MEN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—The American Foreign Service Journal today took sharp issue with recent criticism of certain American diplomats, especially Robert Murphy.

The publication, circulated principally among American diplomats, is issued by the American Foreign Service association. The staff is made up of state department personnel.

The journal stoutly defended Murphy, who recently was appointed political adviser to Gen. Eisenhower after serving as adviser to the Mediterranean high command in North Africa.

It said it was incomprehensible that "typewriter statesmen should persist in reading political or ideological motives into the actions" of career diplomats.

PROBE SLAYING OF WAR WORKER BY POLICE CHIEF

Auburn, Ill., Oct. 1 (AP).—Sheriff Walter H. Hagler and Coroner W. L. Dragoo today investigated what they said was the fatal shooting last night of John Staten, 54, war worker of this city, by Virgil McCready, Auburn police chief.

Hagler and Dragoo said McCready told them he shot Staten after Staten knocked him down on the Auburn public square.

FIND COAT ON SIDEWALK.

A brown suit coat, in which was an upper denture, was found on the sidewalk at 57th and Halsted sts., last night by Policeman Martin McGowan of the Englewood station.

Still Insured

MLLE. MISTINGUETTE.

PARIS, France, Oct. 1 (AP).—Mlle. Mistinguette, blonde singing star of the Casino de Paris for a quarter of a century, still has her legs insured for fabulous sums.

"When I was in New York they were worth $3,000,000; now I insure them because I must travel on a bicycle, which is dangerous," she said, showing a shapely leg with a black bruise.

Mistinguette seems unchanged since the first World war, when she was the darling of American troops. She will appear next week in a camp show for United States air forces near Paris. "I hope to go to New York again," she added. "I love the Americans and loved singing there."

HOUSE TO PROBE NEW DEAL 'PLUGS' BY RADIO GUESTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—The practice of some corporations holding government contracts purchasing radio time on which New Deal speakers campaign for the reelection of President Roosevelt will be investigated by a house committee to determine whether it violates the corrupt practices act and the Hatch act.

Rep. Wigglesworth [R., Mass.], a member of the house committee investigating the federal communications commission, disclosed tonight the investigation will open Oct. 9.

The inquiry was announced as it was learned that Capitol hill has heard reports a majority of the radio commentators are preparing to gang up in an attack on Gov. Dewey's Presidential candidacy in the last three or four weeks of the campaign. It was said data on which they will base their attacks is being assembled for a concerted effort to torpedo his campaign.

Wigglesworth said in a statement the practice is growing in the radio industry of permitting guest speakers to make political appeals for the election or reelection of candidates on radio time purchased by commercial sponsors.

OHIO COUNTED SAFE FOR G. O. P.; PAC UNPOPULAR

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 1.—Ohio, with 25 electoral votes, one of the key states in the November election, seems to be headed toward the Republican column as strongly as Indiana and Illinois, in the opinion of political observers here.

Roughly, the battle appears to lie between the northeast section of the state, where the steel and rubber cities have been New Deal strongholds, and the remainder of the state, where for six years anti-New Dealism has been growing as elsewhere in the midwest and Republicans have been rolling up majorities.

Gov. Bricker, as running mate for Gov. Dewey, is deemed to have strengthened the national G. O. P. ticket greatly. Republican statehouse officials in touch with all quarters of the state say Ohio will go to the Dewey-Bricker ticket by a large margin. The nomination of Bricker, they say, took the state out of the doubtful column at once.

Seek Visit by Roosevelt.

Democrats dispute this view, of course. They are relying on the heavy industrial counties. They are urging that President Roosevelt make a political speech in the state a week or so before election. Republicans are hoping Gov. Dewey will invade the northeast corner to swell the margin for the ticket.

Gov. Bricker, who is in widespread demand, starts tonight on a swing thru the middle west, the mountain states, and the Pacific coast, with a schedule of some 58 speeches, up to Oct. 19.

A large slump in registration from 1940 is one of the first matters politicians in both camps bring up in doping the situation. Most of the large centers are far below the registry of four years ago. A great drive is being made by all groups to get voters on the books. The critical day will be Oct. 9, last day of registration, when precinct offices are open for the purpose. After that the statisticians will have more definite data on probable size of the vote.

Drive Aided F. D. R. in 1940.

Both camps point out that in 1940 organized labor put on a drive to get persons registered. That is regarded as having put Roosevelt and the third term across in Ohio. It was among the doubtful states in that campaign and the President's majority was cut to 146,366 where in 1936 it was 619,000.

In the same 1940 election, Gov. Bricker was reelected by a majority of 364,467, carrying 77 of the state's 88 counties. Bricker even beat his own state record two years ago when he carried 86 counties and won by a majority of 377,338. All this is accounted to be a tremendous aid to the national ticket.

This, it is pointed out, is the reverse situation in Missouri, where Sen. Truman and the aroma of Pendergastism, according to neutral observers, make the New Deal nominee for Vice President more of a load than an asset for the party in Truman's native state.

PAC Not So Popular.

Sidney Hillman's CIO Political Action committee is active in Ohio's industrial centers. The PAC does not seem to be so popular among some of the professional Democrats, who feel that if the fourth term should win, the PAC will be a rival claimant of the Democrats for the credit and the gravy.

Indications are, polls reveal, that a large segment of the labor vote is not deliverable.

One poll cited as significant was taken among workers in an AFL war plant at Bellefontaine, O., where Gov. Dewey made a rear platform speech recently. The vote was reported as 99 for Roosevelt and 199 for Dewey.

Rural Areas Strongly G. O. P.

Rural Ohio seems more strongly anti-New Deal than ever, as in Kansas, Nebraska, and other midwest states. It was in the rural areas that the Republican upsurge began in 1938 when Sen. Taft and Gov. Bricker were first elected to their present positions.

Bricker's friends say that despite CIO opposition he carried CIO strongholds in his races for governor.

Sen. Taft is up for reelection and is opposed by William G. Pickrel, a former lieutenant governor. A sizzling battle is in progress over the governorship. James G. Stewart, mayor of Cincinnati, is Republican candidate against Frank J. Lausche, Democratic mayor of Cleveland. Both are men of great popularity.

Mayor Lausche was called to Washington last winter when, it was reported, the White House asked him to run. He is making a campaign independent of the Democratic organization, with his own headquarters.

10,000 TO SELL TAGS FOR CHILD BENEFIT LEAGUE

Familiar red, white, and blue stars, bearing the picture of the young daughter of a veteran submariner, will be sold by more than 10,000 workers today in the 37th renewal of the annual tag day sponsored by the Chicago Children's Benefit league. The league, which embraces 50 Chicago social agencies which care for children, has set a goal of $125,000, compared with $100,000 in 1943, Mrs. Harry L. Starkey, president, said yesterday.

ROBBED BY FIVE FOOTPADS.

Five Negroes who seized him near 74th and May sts. took his wallet containing $2 and his wrist watch worth $40, Walter Swrecicki, 4101 S. Albany av., told police yesterday.

AMNESTY ASKED FOR DEMOCRATS WHO BOLT PARTY

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 1 [Special].—An appeal to the state Democratic committee to issue a proclamation of "amnesty in advance" for Democratic voters who bolt the Roosevelt-Truman ticket in the November election was made today by Samuel H. Johnston, local attorney and party leader.

The amnesty, if proclaimed, would have the effect of releasing Democratic voters from oaths to support Democratic nominees which they were required by Alabama law to take as a condition for participation in the Democratic primary, Johnston said.

He made the appeal in a letter to Gessner T. McCorvey, chairman of the Alabama Democratic executive committee. The letter was accompanied by a legal brief contending that the committee has power to grant such amnesty in spite of a state law requiring Democratic primary voters to take and live up to the oath.

Held Not Mandatory.

"This law, section 350, title 17 of the code of 1940, is mere directory and in no sense mandatory," he asserted. "If it were to be held otherwise, the Democratic party of this state is not a voluntary political agency."

The law prescribes as a penalty for failure on the part of primary voters to support party nominees the barring of such voters from primary participation for two years. Johnston argued that a promise of amnesty from the state committee would enable Democrats to vote for Dewey and Bricker without forfeiting their party standing.

Johnston has been a leader of the anti-New Deal forces in the Alabama Democratic party. He was originally named one of the state's 11 Democratic Presidential electors but resigned Sept. 1 in protest against national Democratic policy which he termed "insulting to the south."

Prefers Defeat to Reds.

"As for me, I prefer that the south go down as a victim of a magnificent defeat, rather than in triumphant but grotesque procession composed of Communists Browder and Hillman, Negro Leader White, and Bosses Kelly, Hague, and Flynn," he said at that time.

James C. Puckett, Democratic nominee for congress in the 9th district [Birmingham], said today an immediate appeal will be taken to the state Supreme court from yesterday's decision by Circuit Judge Walter B. Jones barring Presidential electors of the American Democratic party from the official ballot. The American Democrats are an anti-New Deal group who named a slate of electors last month at a convention in Birmingham.

PRESS FIGHTING MANY YEARS TO KEEP FREEDOM

Book Recalls Moves to Restrict It.

(This is the second chapter of a new book, "Liberty and the Press," a history of The Chicago Tribune's fight to preserve a free press for the American people.)

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

(Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.)

A newspaper has two aspects; its professional and its industrial. On the industrial side, a newspaper is naturally subject to regulation like any other industry in matters of wages and hours, public health, etc. Sometimes a false cry of invasion of freedom of the press has been raised over such regulations. Sometimes, also, an indirect economic attack may be made on a newspaper because of its policies and opinions.

A modern newspaper is the product of democracy, partaking alike of democracy's weakness and strength. In the printing of news and opinion, a newspaper faces the limitations of any man writing to and for the public. The newspaper is made keenly to feel its responsibility, for its very existence depends on that public's approval. The paper cannot outrage public opinion and still retain influence and maintain circulation. The chief barometer of a paper's power is circulation; the boycott is one of the weapons most frequently used, or attempted, by those who do not like the paper's opinions.

Propaganda and sophistry are often mentioned as abuses of the press. For correction of these and other abuses many things, expedient or pragmatic in nature, have been suggested, the result of which might be to destroy the principle on which the whole structure of the American press rests.

Press "Must Be Free."

In "Freedom of the Press Today," a symposium assembled by Harold L. Ickes, the late William Allen White said:

"We must be unhampered to tell the truth as we see it, each of us in his own poor way, knowing that only the truth can make us free, only the truth can give us strength, only as each of us tells his own truth can all of us save this Republic."

The editor, or reporter, he adds, no matter how narrow or foolish he may be, still does his work and serves his purpose, "if he still has his freedom, if only by the example of his folly, to mark the course ahead."

The first thing a reporter must keep in mind when writing a story is that there are many who will read it who know all the facts of that story. This is how the public is informed. How the editor interprets these facts is another aspect of newspaper service, and the two should not be mixed.

Suggestions Are Offered.

"Freedom of the Press Today," which is presented as a clinical examination of newspapers by specialists, contains the following suggestions, among others, for improving the American press:

An endowed paper. A free press authority set up by the government to license newspapers. News gathering agencies to be declared public utilities. Newspapers to be started by the aid of government loans. Reformation of the economic system so that the present big publishers would be eliminated.

Another method suggested in this examination is that the established press be attacked more skilfully by publishers and others who do not like its opinions. This is possibly a veiled reference to the "smear" method of attack, which has been used more or less skilfully since 1932. Such methods are doubtless legitimate, under the principle of freedom.

Any examination of freedom of the press today must consider two angles: the principle on which freedom rests, and whether this freedom is being so employed that people will be interested in a continued support of the principle. Words alone will not uphold it. There must be a feeling and a conviction that on the whole this principle is right and that it cannot be separated from the processes of democratic government.

Regulation the Trend.

Discernibly, there is no general desire on the part of the American people to overthrow our system of benevolent capitalism. But regulation is in the air, with the greater use of government for "social" ends. Publishers have been troubled since 1926 by some of the political tendencies in Washington. What has modern life done to affect the vitality of the "rights" of citizens? Is the Constitution an outgrown garment? And is "truth" in the future to be used in the interest of the whole people, or only for the few, or for one?

The press, whatever its faults, represents a certain threat to dictatorial government, or crooked government. The power of the press, in this respect, may be said to be one of mankind's spiritual triumphs. The men who made this power possible had deep convictions, a large faith in human freedom and the common sense of man, and a profound belief in the Divine expressing itself in human life. This faith, this certitude, this determination to coöperate, so far as human limitations make possible, with an unseen and higher power, marks the great leaders of men—such as Washington and Lincoln—and it appears, too, in great newspaper editors.

Debated During Civil War.

The question of the freedom of the press was seldom mentioned during the first half century of the history of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. It was debated during a sedition case during the Civil war, but otherwise was taken for granted.

Under the protecting wings of this freedom THE TRIBUNE fought slavery, Copperheadism, and secession in the national arena. It got behind Abraham Lincoln in the days when the prairie lawyer's cause was a desperate and unpopular one. It sought out "the great captain" among the muddling generals of the war and discerned the star of Grant. It fought the state machine and, as a result, saw its reporters sent to jail. It fought the "bummers" in city politics, the county "ring," corrupt police, and boodlers. It gave and took heavy blows, often going down in defeat. Joseph Medill, the founder, saw "the Divine finger in it all," in the great events which he had helped to influence during his life time. The Chicago Journal said of him at his death in 1899 that "no man of his time exercised a more decisive or—on the whole—a more beneficial influence on public affairs than Mr. Medill."

Foundation in Freedom.

The modern TRIBUNE has built upon this foundation. How it has met its responsibilities is a matter for future generations to decide, when the evidence is all in. The cases to be discussed here will show the guiding principle under which it has proceeded.

Early in the new century, during the Presidency of Theodore Roosevelt, there were ominous signs of a tendency by government to crack down on newspapers that criticized its acts too vigorously. THE TRIBUNE had supported Roosevelt and his political ideas from the time that he first came into prominence in New York, but regarded with great disfavor his efforts to have the editors of the New York World and the Indianapolis News tried in the federal court of the District of Columbia for alleged libels printed in New York and Indiana. The alleged libels were in connection with the transfer of title of the Panama canal from the old French company to the United States government. This effort to hold the trials in Washington was regarded by the newspapers involved, and by other newspapers, including THE TRIBUNE, as a direct assault on freedom of the press, a retaliation for criticism of the President's acts. The case was taken into the courts on this issue and it was decided that the proper remedy for the complainant in libel was the state courts and that the removal to the federal court was an invasion of the fundamental liberties of the citizen. In other words, the freedom of press right is no broader and no narrower than freedom of speech, and the fight for the preservation of one is the fight for the preservation of the other. This was the 20th century dictum in America and England.

In Separation

CAROLE LANDIS.

New York, Oct. 1 (AP).—Actress Carole Landis and Maj. Thomas C. Wallace, whom she married in London in January, 1943, have separated but are "not considering anything like a divorce," the blonde film star said today.

"We have agreed to separate," she said, "to see if things won't work out better for us both that way."

Wallace, an army air force pilot, is stationed at Santa Ana, Cal. They were married while Miss Landis was in England on an entertainment tour for the armed forces. The marriage was her third.

CONSTITUTION REMOVED FROM ITS WAR HIDEOUT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—Originals of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, hidden inland after the outbreak of war, returned to public view today in the library of congress.

The documents were part of 4,789 cases of material which the library transferred to five secret storage places for safekeeping under military guard.

A new marine guard was posted to keep watch over the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, as well as Thomas Jefferson's manuscript of the Declaration.

FRANCE TO PUT EDITORS UNDER LICENSE SYSTEM

PARIS, France, Oct. 1 (AP).—French journalists will be licensed by the government, starting in April, 1945, the Agence Francaise de Presse disclosed tonight in a summary of newly published government press ordinances.

Licenses may be denied to newspaper, radio, and magazine writers and commentators who since June 16, 1940, evidenced in words "insufficient patriotism" or an attitude insufficiently "independent in regard to the enemy or the de facto government which collaborated with the enemy," the French agency report said. A board, whose composition will be established in a later decree, according to the agency, will pass on applicants for license.

The ordinances empower the minister of information, who now is Pierre Teitgen, youthful ex-professor, to regulate for the duration of hostilities the paper allotment, format, size, sale price, and frequency of publication of all periodicals, the agency disclosed.

SUPREME COURT FACES A TERM LADEN WITH TNT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—A Supreme court which has split often and widely on issues of legal philosophy re-assembles tomorrow to begin a new term expected to produce history-making decisions on a docket full of war-time problems.

Meeting for the first time since June 12, they will be confronted by an unusually large stack of more than 500 cases, many of which are of an explosive character.

FARLEY, FLYNN ASSAILED IN OWN PARTY'S BOOKLET

Bennett Also Denounced; 'Deal' Charged.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—The Democratic national committee today was revealed as sponsoring bitter attacks on two of its former national chairmen and the Democratic candidate for governor of New York in 1942.

Two of the Democratic leaders under fire are supporting the fourth term—Edward J. [Paving Blocks] Flynn, political boss of New York's Bronx, and former Democratic national chairman, and John J. Bennett Jr., now chairman of the veterans' committee of the Democratic national committee.

The third, James A. Farley, is the man who put President Roosevelt in the White House and broke with him on the third and fourth terms. However, after the Chicago convention, Farley, a former party chairman, announcerd he would support the party's ticket.

Booklet Assails Dewey.

The attacks on the party leaders is made in a 99 page booklet, blasting at Gov. Dewey, which is being circulated by the Democratic national committee, but without the committee imprint.

Farley is assailed by inference as anti-semitic and Fascist along with Bennett, who was defeated for the governorship of New York by Dewey. The booklet also charged Flynn made a deal with Dewey under which the Bronx leader is said to be tacitly helping to deliver the Bronx Republican vote to Dewey.

The booklet was prepared by Press Research, Inc., launched in Washington last June by David Loth, historian and publicist. At his office here Loth said his staff had undertaken the booklet for a client, whose identity was not disclosed, and that the Democratic national committee had asked and was granted permission to publish the report as a campaign document. The committee, he said, is paying the costs of publication.

Surprised by Eagerness.

Loth expressed himself surprised by the Democratic committee's eagerness to circulate the attacks on Flynn, Farley, and Bnnett.

"Evidently they didn't read it," he explained.

Loth said his organization undertakes various researches for newspapers and other clients. One of his newspaper clients, he said, is a Chicago morning newspaper [not THE TRIBUNE] supporting the fourth term.

In attacking Farley and Bennett the booklet states that Farley, who is described as "a Democratic party inside worker," and not Gov. Dewey was the main factor in defeating the New Deal in New York state elections in 1942.

The booklet states that in 1942 the President had decided to run Sen. Mead [D., N. Y.] for governor, but Farley searched around for an anti-New Deal candidate and found one in Bennett.

"Then he [Farley] went to work building up anti-New Deal strength for the state convention which was held in Brooklyn, the Coughlinite [the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest] stronghold," the booklet states. "The Christian front turned out en masse, electing several delegates and jamming the galleries.

Anti-Semitic Calls Heard.

"At sessions marked by anti-Semitic catcalls and hisses at every mention of Roosevelt, Bennett, who had spoken with Father Coughlin and had defended the Franco regime in Spain, was nominated. This success was so obnoxious to many Democrats that they would not support their party's candidate."

The booklet cites that the American Labor party refused to support Bennett and put a candidate of its own in the field, Dean Alfange. Dewey won over the combined Bennett-Alfange vote.

"A great many New Deal voters, fearing that the Christian front would grow in prestige if Bennett was elected, voted for Dewey.

Turns on Boss Flynn.

In assailing Flynn the pamphlet recalls the Bronx leader was attacked by Dewey in his 1938 and 1942 gubernatorial campaigns and that the latter promised to put an end to "the unofficial boss of state civil service."

"Nevertheless, the Dewey machine has profited considerably thru a deal with Flynn," the booklet states. "The Republican leader of the Bronx is John J. Knewitz, who has headed the county committee since 1918. Knewitz earns his living as Bronx commissioner of records, a job completely at the disposal of Ed Flynn.

"But Flynn retains the leader of the opposition on his pay roll because Knewitz, in local elections, keeps the Bronx safe for the Flynn machine. Instead of trying to overcome the Democratic majority by collaborating with fusion and other minority groups—as Republicans elsewhere in the city have done with varying degrees of success—Knewitz in every election obligingly puts up a Republican ticket that is unacceptable to the other groups.

"The Knewitz-Flynn team has been an anathema to New York Republicans for many years."

It's a gentle hint to guests. It pops out promptly at 11 each night.

LARGE DELEGATIONS WILL HEAR BRICKER IN CENTRALIATOMORROW

Republicans in southern and central Illinois planned yesterday to send big delegations to Centralia tomorrow night when Gov. Bricker of Ohio, nominee for Vice President, will make a G. O. P. campaign address there. Frank G. Thompson of Mount Vernon, member of the Republican state committee and head of its speakers' bureau, estimated that 20,000 would crowd into Centralia park after a torchlight parade.

En route to Centralia tomorrow afternoon, Bricker will make brief speeches from the back platform of his special train at Carmi, McLeansboro, and Mount Vernon. Thompson corrected an erroneous announcement from New York headquarters that these talks would be made Wednesday.

DEWEY-BRICKER CLUBS TO LINK VETS IN DRIVE

Immediate organization in each county of World War II, Veteran Clubs for Dewey and Bricker was authorized yesterday by James M. Tucker, assistant chairman of the Republican national committee, who conferred with a group of young Republicans and veterans of the current war.

Tucker, former secretary of state of Indiana and a World War II veteran, said 10 million service men who face death or disablement resent the spectacle of "New Deal hatchet men who have nothing better to do than waste both money and time tee-heeing and slinging mud over the radio like doddering old politicians."

Election of the Dewey-Bricker Presidential ticket is the best guarantee that democracy and liberty will be protected, Tucker added.

"Youth wants its chance," he said. "Let's give it. Tom Dewey and John Bricker, middle class men who have earned their daily bread by work, are capable of giving youth that chance."

IFL CONVENTION REPORT UPHOLDS LABOR FREEDOM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 1.—Freedom of labor is the most vital issue confronting mankind, the executive council of the Illinois Federation of Labor asserts in its report to the federation's 62d annual convention, which opens here tomorrow morning.

Twelve hundred delegates, representing more than 500,000 members of American Federation of Labor unions thruout Illinois, will attend the convention, Victor A. Olander, veteran IFL secretary-treasurer, announced tonight.

"We must be forgiven for sacrificing elegance of language to emphasis of expression in order to say, unqualifiedly, that 'freedom of nations,' 'freedom of people,' 'free enterprise,' and what not are not worth a tinker's dam anywhere without 'free labor,' the executive council states.

"Free labor is voluntary labor. Forced labor is slave labor, regardless of the place in which it is practiced and the periods of time involved.

"It is a strange fact and one to which we must now call attention, that the leaders of 'freedom' in the world today have made far too little use of the specific term 'free labor.' It is time for them to speak out, and in order that they may be publicly recorded on this point, it is time for us to call upon them to speak out."

The council's report attacks attempts by President Roosevelt and others to secure national service legislation, so that workers may be conscripted to work in war plants just as men are for the army and navy.

"The Constitution, let it be understood, permits the drafting of the citizens into the armed forces," continues the report. "On the other hand, the Constitution definitely and clearly and positively prohibits compulsory service in the field of labor."

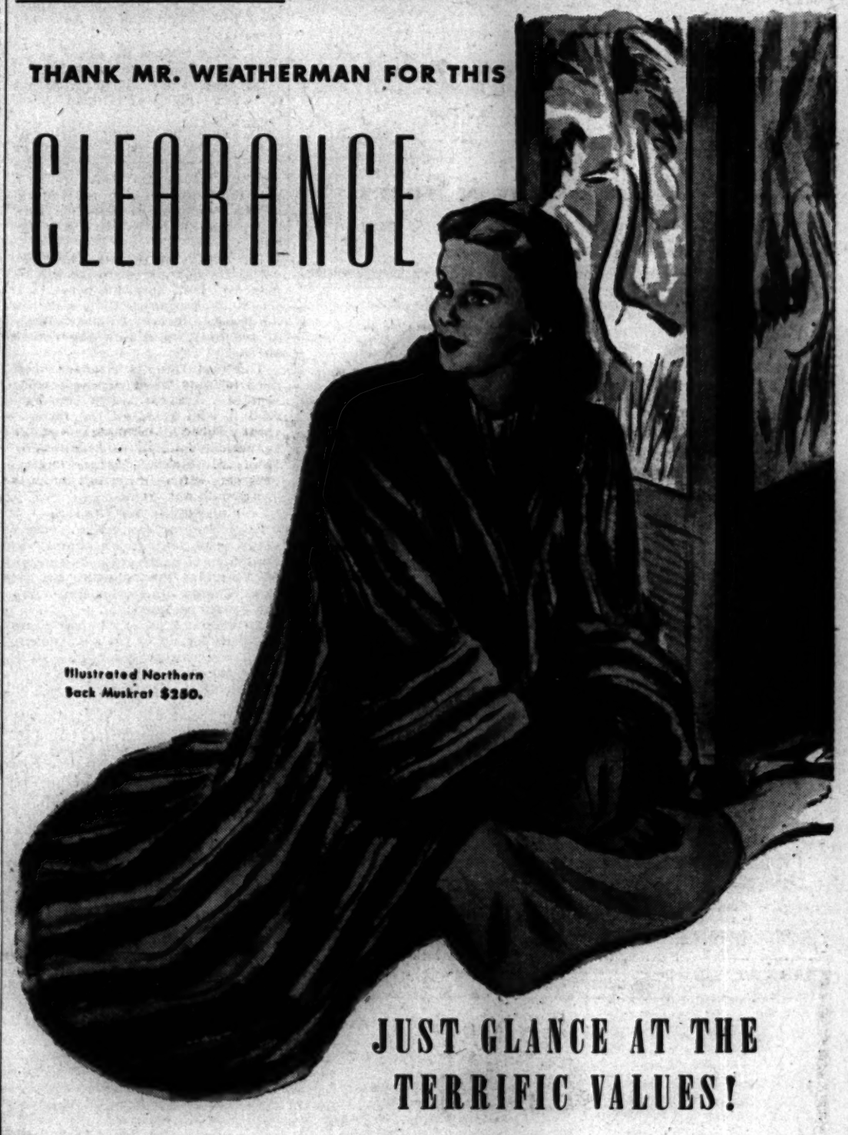
THANK MR. WEATHERMAN FOR THIS

CLEARANCE



Illustrated Northern Back Muskrat $250.

JUST GLANCE AT THE TERRIFIC VALUES!

Sound ridiculous to have a fur clearance in October? The hot weather of August and September has badly curtailed fur business. Since 1896 it has been WALZER'S policy to add to their stocks monthly . . . this year is no exception. So they must make room for additional furs. They must sacrifice new 1945 Fur styles . . . luxurious, radiant, gleaming with beauty. Each styled with the new fuller, added sweep. This is truly your opportunity to profit by WALZER'S loss.

IF YOU NEED A FUR COAT BUY IT NOW AT WALZER'S

LAWYERS TO ASK U. S. JURY QUIZ IN OPA PAY LEVY

Charge Democrats with Breaking Hatch Act.

Investigation by the United States district attorney of why the office of price administration permitted a Democratic ward organization to assess ration board employes for party funds will be demanded today by the Lawyers' Committee to Prevent Unlawful Political Activity. Atty. Philip R. Davis, committee chairman, cited the Hatch act as forbidding collection of money from federal employes for political purposes and said he would recommend that United States Atty. Woll take the alleged violations to the grand jury.

Testimony about the political assessments was given at the same time the Illinois state legislative petroleum commission was told of excessive gasoline allowances granted to Stephen J. Kelly, brother of the mayor. Two woman witnesses, then employed by ration board 40-48, at 5004 Broadway, testified they complained of both matters to the metropolitan OPA office. Kelly's gas ration was cut immediately from 2,500 miles a month to 1,000, but nothing, the witnesses said, was done about the assessments.

Witness Shows Receipt.

One witness, Mrs. Vera Robinson, 1035 North Shore av., presented a paid receipt for the assessment levied against her pay check. It carried the heading of the 49th ward regular Democratic organization, run by Ald. Frank Keenan as Democratic ward committeeman.

This assessment, for half of last January, when she began working for OPA, and all of February, was the only one she paid, Mrs. Robinson said. She was billed by the organization as long as she was with OPA. She testified that Earl Clark, assistant regional OPA director, told her it was only a "voluntary" donation.

Atty. Davis charged that "the whole OPA setup locally is operating in violation of the Hatch act.

"Part of Spoils System."

"Some of these employes canvass their precincts for votes," he said. "OPA locally has become part of the spoils system originated by the Democrats in which every thing works for the organization."

Davis said he would ask Woll to determine how many other Democratic ward organizations are taking tribute from OPA employes and how extensively in every respect the party is making use of the ration system and its personnel.

Davis' stand was approved by Edward B. Casey, manager of John T. Dempsey's campaign for state's attorney on the Republican ticket.

Marion W. Isbell, acting metropolitan director of OPA, who assumed the post after Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Margaret Beverly Weaver, 1331 Loyola av., made their charges to OPA officials, said he would take action against any employe making a political contribution.

Warns of Dismissals.

"If it is brought to our attention that any employes are paying party assessments, we will regard it as sufficient ground for dismissal," he said.

Further investigation by the state commission appeared to depend on whether Rae E. Walters, regional OPA director, would accept an invitation to appear for questioning. The commission chairman, State Sen. Nicholas Hubbard [R., Mount Pulaski], directed that a letter be sent Walters.

SHIP LAUNCHINGS SHOWER GEMS ON NEW DEAL WIVES

Diamond Gifts Top 3 Million Dollars.

the maritime commission, received diamond bracelets costing $2,175 and $2,275, respectively.

Miss Barbara Vickery, daughter of Rear Adm. Howard L. Vickery, vice chairman of the maritime commission, deputy administrator of the war shipping administration, and a member of the war man power commission, received two presents, a diamond bracelet valued at $2,175 and a diamond brooch costing $1,750.

Adm. Vickery's wife received a bracelet costing $2,300 and his sister-in-law, Mrs. W. H. Blanchard, received a $2,100 bracelet.

Mrs. Edward Macauley, wife of Capt. Macauley, member of the maritime commission, received a $1,700 bracelet. Mrs. Wade H. Skinner, wife of the general counsel of the commission, was given a $1,950 bracelet. Mrs. Gerald Jessup, Skinner's daughter, received a $2,250 bracelet. Mrs. J. A. Honsick, wife of the commission's director of finance, received a $2,175 bracelet.

Yard Cleanup Reported.

It was reported some women with New Deal connections have gone in extensively for ship sponsoring as a method of filling their jewel boxes. The unidentified wife of one official is said to have christened vessels in more than a dozen yards, receiving an expensive present in each case.

From Washington's diplomatic colony came Madame Felipe A. Espil, wife of the former Argentina ambassador, and Mrs. W. T. Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian ambassador, who received bracelets valued at $2,275 and $2,175, respectively.

Others identified as recipients of gifts included Mrs. R. J. Reynolds, wife of the president of the Reynolds Tobacco company, and the American Mail Lines, who received a $2,150 trinket. Mrs. Warren L. Pierson, wife of the president of the Import Export bank, and Mrs. R. H. Hallett, wife of an official of the maritime commission's division of regulation, were given gifts costing $2,275.

When the sponsor of a ship was not so prominent socially or politically, according to the report, a $1,000 war bond, costing $750, was given to her. A list of approximately 100 recipients of bond gifts is in the report.

A Problem of 'Gratitude.'

There was speculation in congressional circles concerning the possible benefits which ship constructors might receive from government officials in their desire to express gratitude for expensive gifts tendered their womenfolk.

Following are some of the gifts listed as coming from one company:

The secretary of the maritime commission issued an order Feb. 28 to "all officials and employes" reciting that "the receiving of personal presents and accommodations" by officials and employes "provide further illustrations of what may be seriously criticized."

It was noted Mrs. Skinner, wife of the commission's general counsel, received her diamond bracelet June 19.

FILLING STATION REBUILT, NOW SERVES CHURCH

For the first time in nearly two years the gasoline service station at 9359 Western av. was in use yesterday. None of the usual appurtenances of a gas station, such as pumps, air hose, oil tins, or coveralled attendants, were in evidence. But trade was brisk.

"Customers" of the station were members of the congregation of the Bethlehem Lutheran church, who flocked to the site to hear the Rev. E. T. Peters dedicate their new church building.

Reconversion of the abandoned gasoline station was begun several weeks ago after congregation members decided that the old church building at 5755 Wells st. had become untenable. The church owned two lots at Oakley and Bell avs., but war production board restrictions blocked new construction plans.

Then two members of the congregation, J. M. Thoren, 7923 Princeton av., and H. S. Ostberg, 8210 Evans av., hit upon the idea of remodeling the abandoned service station. The site was leased and church members and hired workmen set about turning the building into a church.

The dozens of old posters that had been plastered on the walls of the building were torn off, windows were washed, the station's oil and grease caked floors were scrubbed clean. A new roof was put on, and a small window on one side of the building was rebuilt in the form of a cross.

Because the congregation hoped to keep the cost of refitting the building under $1,000, they decided to dispense with a steeple and costly stained glass windows, the Rev. Mr. Peters said. They felt that their devotion would be as sincere without the spire and colored windows.

REAL GAIN REPORTED IN ALFRED E. SMITH'S CONDITION BY DOCTOR

New York, Oct. 1 (AP).—"Real improvement" was reported today in the condition of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who is ill in Rockefeller Institute hospital.

His physician, Dr. Raymond P. Sullivan, said he "spent a restful night and is alert." Dr. Sullivan said later that the last rite of the Roman Catholic church were administered to Smith last night by the Most Rev. J. Francis A. McIntyre, auxiliary bishop of New York.

The former governor, who is 70, was transferred to the Rockefeller hospital last week from St. Vincent's hospital, which he entered Aug. 10 suffering from heat exhaustion.

ORDEAL ENDED, 'HELL'S CORNER' GIVES THANKS

Fall of Calais Lifts Pall Over Dover Area.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Their long ordeal over, the people of "hellfire corner" on the southeastern corner of England, which has lain helpless within range of German cross-channel guns for four years, knelt in thanksgiving prayer today.

Yesterday there were scenes of wild jubilation in streets of once picturesque coastal towns when the announcement was made of the fall of Calais, the last remaining Nazi shelling point. Then the townspeople knew the Germans would no more hurl huge high explosive shells from the continent into their homes, schools, and business houses without warning at irregular nerve wracking intervals. In special services in bomb and shell battered Dover and neighboring towns they expressed their gratitude to Canadian troops who silenced the guns and seized the ports.

2,226 Shells Hit Dover.

Figures released today tell a graphic story of the bombardment endured by these towns since the Germans began their long distance siege. The number of shells recorded was Dover, 2,226; Deal, 120, and Folkestone, 290. Figures are unavailable for Ramsgate, which was shelled a total of seven times. In addition, Dover had 464 bombs, three flying bombs, three parachute mines, and hundreds of incendiaries rained upon its 18,000 population.

Total civilian deaths for the four towns from shelling was 157, an average of one for every 16 shells. There were 671 injured in this unparalleled bombardment.

All told "hellfire corner" has been pounded 1,510 continuous days across the straits from batteries in Calais, Cape Gris Nez, and Boulogne. There have been 100 warnings of shellings, and 2,847 bombing alerts in that period. All public buildings in Dover have been affected, with all schools either demolished or damaged, and both hospitals destroyed.

50 Shells in One Hour.

Worst day of all was Sept. 26 in Dover, when 63 shells landed on the town in five hours, of which nearly 50 fell in one hour. In Deal there were eight hits from 16 inch shells within 15 minutes in an area 350 square yards plus numerous air bursts over the same spot. The problem in this town was particularly difficult because it is below sea level and does not have shelters more than a few feet deep because of the danger of flooding.

Altho the storm of war now has largely passed over these communities stories of courage and heroism of its people doubtless are destined to be retold for generations; how they lived for days in caves; had schools in caves, cellars, and shelters while shells leveled their homes and made sections of their villages desolate and outside nothing stirred except both men and women civil defense workers responding to the call of duty.

GEN. IKE TELLS AUSTRIANS: GET READY TO HELP

LONDON, Oct. 1 (AP).—A spokesman for Gen. Eisenhower told the Austrians in a broadcast tonight to prepare for the arrival of the allies.

"The time has come for Austrians to give positive and active proof of their willingness to dissociate themselves from their German masters," the supreme commander said in official instructions over the radio.

"Austrians in town and country should form in all their local communities clandestine committees for the arrival of the allies. These committees should be ready to provide all possible help for the allies in regard to administration of local affairs, the purge of the Nazis, the preparation of black and white lists, and the preservation of food stocks, together with a safeguarding of transport and machinery."

The Austrians were told that if the instructions were followed, the chances of Austria becoming a devastated theater of war would be lessened.

The Moscow radio called on Austrians to start a civil war now and to strike boldly to help allied strategy. The broadcast, recorded by Reuter, said:

"All German administration officers in Austria must get a bullet thru their hearts. You can help finish war before the end of this year."

Moscow said more than 10,000 Austrians had been thrown into concentration camps by Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo chief.

COURT TO GIVE JACKIE COOPER VERDICT TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 1.—Referee Albert L. Doyle was in seclusion today preparing the opinion he will read in Juvenile court at 5 p. m. tomorrow on the guilt or innocence of ex-Film Star Jackie Cooper and three others accused of contributing to the delinquency of two minor girls.

Testimony was concluded yesterday in the trial, which concerned a party in a hotel here last July 22 given by the former child film star, now a V-12 naval trainee at Notre Dame university.

If found guilty, Jackie and his co-defendants face sentences which may run as high as six months in jail and $500 fine. The co-defendants are George Bender of Sheffield, Ill., also a naval trainee; Pauline Frederick, 19, and Olie Lowry, Negro waiter.

MEET SCARLET PIMPERNEL OF MODERN FRANCE

He's Kin of Cabinet Member.

LUXEUIL, France, Sept. 30 [Delayed] (AP).—The mysterious modern Scarlet Pimpernel of the French Commandos, who has led an incredible existence since D-day has been identified as Maj. Henri d'Astier de la Vigerie, brother of the secretary of the interior in the French government, headed by Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The tall, handsome commander stepped from behind the veil of censorship today to reveal the details of the organization which operated in advance of French, American and British armies, overpowering Nazi garrisons, blowing bridges and trains, scaling chateau walls, dynamiting Nazi headquarters, and maintaining communications between the allies and French underground.

210 Missions Carried Out.

He said that since D-day his men had carried out 210 military missions with negligible losses.

The organization numbers only a few hundred and is furnished with American equipment. The members were trained in American commando schools. The organization was formed this year when D'Astier asked for 50 volunteers and within a week received 1,500. All members of the original group were Frenchmen who escaped to the outside world by devious ways.

Among the most conspicuously successful of the commandos are a priest from Bayonne, several lawyers and a chemist from Paris, a former Marseille butcher, and two internationally known rugby players.

Trained in Desert.

The commandos never wear steel helmets, only berets. They were trained as paratroopers in the hot Egyptian sands. They learned mountain climbing in North Africa.

For the great adventure—the return of French armies to French soil—they crossed the Mediterranean in a sailboat loaded with high explosives.

Six hours before H-hour on D-day they swarmed ashore at St. Tropez on the Riviera coast and since that time they have fought six battles as infantrymen, discovered and helped silence a hundred German batteries, and smoothed the way for allied armies in a dozen different ways.

MEET ON RECREATION PARLEY.

Committees planning the tenth annual Chicago Recreational conference will meet on Thursday morning at 160 N. La Salle st. to complete reports on plans. The recreation conference will be held in Hotel Sherman on Nov. 22. It is sponsored by the Chicago recreation commission.

COLE OF U. OF C. TO DO HISTORY OF PATTON ARMY

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 1.—When the 3d army's part in the victory against the Nazis is written, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's brilliant sweep thru France will have an able chronicler. The 3d army historian is Maj. Hugh M. Cole, assistant professor of military history on leave from the University of Chicago.

Maj. Hugh M. Cole.

Maj. Cole, 34 years old, was one of the few military experts in the world, who predicted that the wehrmacht would be unable to defeat the Red army. He entered the army as a captain in intelligence, serving under Brig. Gen. Donald Armstrong, former chief of the Chicago ordnance district. Then Cole attended the general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., after which he was stationed in Washington, D. C., where he was transferred into the army historical branch. He has been abroad six months.

Visits Advanced Posts.

His job is to record the history of all 3d army units so far as their important actions are concerned.

He will write pamphlets for use during the war and also a definitive history, which may or may not be published after the war but will certainly be studied by future generations of military students.

Maj. Cole refused to predict when the war will end. He considers the Germans "damn good soldiers," who have fought so long they are really topnotch professionals.

Live Better in War.

Maj. Cole says he also used to think the German officer class fought because of their ideological training but now thinks the motivation is the fact they live so much better during war than in peace as far as food, drink, and the sense of power is concerned.

He says also that he is convinced the Germans will try another world conquest if given a chance and cites the fact that their general staff was making plans for this war as long ago as February, 1919.

Stresses Importance of Supply.

Maj. Cole pays high tribute to the quartermaster corps, whose job is to keep the army supplied with everything it needs. He says even as a teacher of military history he never realized just how important the quartermaster and supply officers were.

The 3d army presently is fighting before Metz, which only has been taken once—in 1871—according to Maj. Cole, and probably could have been defended then. He thinks the Metz defenses probably are superior even to the most formidable portions of the Siegfried line.

Maj. Cole finds his experiences with the 3d army invaluable from a teaching standpoint, and says that when he returns to Chicago he will be less positive about a number of things, but more knowledgeable.

BRITISH BREAK UP NAZI THRUST AT LINE IN HOLLAND

Yanks Seize Stronghold in Nancy Area.

Metz, but 30 miles to the north, the 3d blasted the Germans out of the Luxembourg town of Remich, at the German frontier, which had changed hands twice in fluid fighting.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army fought thru pillboxes of the Siegfried line southeast of Aachen. Forty miles below, they were striking toward the prime stronghold of Prum from the southwest, taking a number of prisoners.

The Germans struck back with flamethrowers and retook one pillbox but were driven out again.

Under cover of heavy artillery, the Germans also tried to hurl the Americans from positions in the Siegfried line, south of Stolberg, six miles east of Aachen, but they were repulsed.

The Berlin radio asserted that the British 2d army and the United States 1st army had massed strong tank forces for a great offensive that would be aimed east and northeast at the Rhineland.

Canadians on the French coast captured the French channel port of Calais. This left Dunkerque as the only channel port in German hands.

Bag of 5,000 Prisoners.

Calais' fall yielded a bag of 5,000 prisoners, including the garrison commander, Col. Schroeder, who abruptly reconsidered his decision to fight to the death as 12,500 tons of bombs as well as shells rained on his positions. He called it quits Saturday night and the last holdout hoisted the white flag Sunday morning.

Altho some 200,000 Germans were nearly walled off in western Holland they were showing no inclination to withdraw thru the 25 mile wide escape gap between Arnhem and Ijssel Meer [Zuider Zee], a British officer said.

The Canadians, however, were threatening part of this force with entrapment by driving to within 14 miles of the Dutch city of Breda, where the German flood zone extending thru Holland ends.

Push Across Canal.

Pushing across the canal between Antwerp and Turnhout the Canadians reached the Dutch frontier about five miles northeast of Turnhout.

Canadian infantry and tanks 13 miles west of Turnhout occupied Brecht, which is 16 miles south of Breda. The Germans were resisting these thrusts doggedly and were striking back with flame throwers.

In southeastern France, the Germans claimed a local success. A German broadcast said troops had captured the fortified French town of Abries, on Monte Genevre in the Alps five miles from the French-Italian border. The account said Moroccan troops defended the town.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Sunday's German war bulletin as broadcast from Berlin said:

"On the western front from Holland to the Lorraine frontier, with artillery fire increasing, there was only locally limited fighting. Units of the 1st Canadian army which advanced across the Antwerp-Turnhout canal were able, despite our stubborn resistance, to reach the region northwest of Turnhout.

"British attacks against the Julianna canal at Maeseyck failed.

"In the forests west of Chateau-Salins and in the area north of Luneville the enemy continued his strong attacks. Our own counter-attacks resulted in heavy engagements. Spurs, forested mountains and valley entrances of the west Vosges continued to be bitterly fought over. Superior American tank forces succeeded yesterday [Saturday] in entering the city of Rambervillers.

"On both sides of Lure all attacks of the American 7th army were repulsed in bitter fighting and in successful counter-attacks.

"Our fortresses at the channel and Atlantic coast were heavily shelled yesterday also. At Dunkerque enemy batteries were smashed by our artillery. Our assaults from Gironde-Norde turned the enemy from his positions."

'FIGHTING FIRST' DOES IT AGAIN—RIPS WEST WALL

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Sept. 25 [Delayed]—(AP).—The famous Fighting 1st infantry division has done it again.

The boys proudly wearing No. 1 on their arm patches, who fought thru Tunisia and Sicily, whipped an entire German division on the Normandy beaches D-day and then helped engineer the great breakthru west of St. Lo, were among the first ground troops to fight their way across the German border and were the first to breach the Siegfried line.

The battle record of this great combat division is one of the epics of this war, for wherever the fighting has been the heaviest the 1st division usually has been in the middle of it. They are still "the Fighting 1st from hell to victory."

24 Hours to Make Breach.

It took them just 24 hours to breach the Siegfried defenses east of Aachen in a sudden thrust which pierced two belts of anti-tank ditches, dragons' teeth barriers, and concrete pillboxes. In 24 hours they were piling thru those formidable defenses which Hitler had built along the German border.

An armored division fighting beside the 1st was the first to penetrate Germany in force on Sept. 14. Tanks rolled across the border just a few minutes before doughfoots of the 1st crossed and Lt. Col. Edward Driscoll of Long Island radioed:

"This is Driscoll reporting from Germany."

These doughboys penetrated first into the somber shadows of the Aachen town forest and the next day began the Siegfried assault.

Veteran of Troina Battle.

At the spearhead was a company commanded by Capt. Kimball Richmond of Windsor, Vt., a youthful veteran of Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns. Richmond led one of the companies which captured Troina in Sicily in the battle which broke the back of German resistance on that island.

This cagy young warrior, wearing a nondescript cap, sat in a farmhouse and studied his maps and the positions of the German defenses until he figured he had the problem licked.

"I believe I can take my men up this way and slip thru," he said. The next day he did it, with tanks helping to knock out pillboxes in the path of his men.

Once thru this primary defenses, infantry and tanks pushed on 6,000 yards without a halt and engaged the second belt of defenses. This time the spearhead was a company under the command of Lt. Frank Kolb of Paducah, Ky.

Young, Aggressive Officers.

Kolb is only 22 and his superiors worried a little when they put him in command of the company. They knew his capabilities, but it always is a problem to have a youth commanding old time line sergeants in the middle thirties.

"That kid has enough courage for two men," said Maj. Johnny Lawton of Glendale, Cal. "Now his men follow him anywhere, any time."

There is the secret of the 1st division's greatness—young, courageous and capable officers and aggressive leadership from the top down.

The division is commanded by Maj. Gen. Clarence Huebner of Kansas, who worked his way up from the ranks of an enlisted man. He took over the division near the end of the Sicilian campaign and has had it in the van of the American advance all the way across France and Belgium.

Potato Crop to Be Poor Again, Germans Warned

LONDON, Oct. 1 (AP).—Herbert Backe, Nazi reichsminister, warned the German people by radio today that the potato crop would be mediocre following last year's bad harvest. "Nutrition will depend upon German production," he said. "Important occupied territories' food supplies can no more be included in our plans."

MARAUDERS OUT OF BURMA HELL AFTER VICTORY

Morale Break Follows Error in Order.

This is the 15th and concluding chapter of Sgt. Bill Anderson's thrilling story of Merrill's Marauders. In it he tells of the morale break that followed completion of the Marauders' historic mission in Burma.

BY S/SGT. WM. J. ANDERSON,
Composite Unit 5307 (Merrill's Marauders), United States Army.
As Told to CHARLES LEAVELLE.
[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

It took us about three days to clean out the Riptong area, then we started the march to Myitkyina. The trail, packed hard by elephants' feet, continued good. We still were in the hills, but on the ridge we were following the dips were not so pronounced. Four miles east of Riptong, at a trail junction, we encountered battalion A, which had followed a parallel route, looking for Jap resistance. It had found none.

At this point, the main trail divided. Battalion A, with the regimental headquarters company, Col. Hunter and his radiomen, and the Chinese took the southeast branch, which led to Myitkyina. Battalion B, we of C, and several Chinese units took the northeast route under orders to follow it a certain distance, then cut in south of Myitkyina. As the columns parted at the junction, Col. Hunter shouted to Maj. Briggs:

"You take the high road, we'll take the low road, and be in Myitkyina before ye!"

Japs Met on Ridge.

Our trail continued to follow the ridge. On May 12, the day we were to have hit Myitkyina, we ran into Japs again. Our lead scouts, seeing figures ahead on the trail, called: "Ting hao?" If the strangers had been Chinese, they would have replied: "Ting hao. Okay." Instead, their reply was the stuttering roar of machine guns. The men of our Orange company, who were leading, dispersed on either side of the trail and we of Khaki company went up thru them and deployed off to the left in the hope of getting around the Japs.

The Chinese with us followed similar tactics, moving out to the right flank. This was no mere patrol of Japs. There were at least two companies. While the Chinese and Orange company dropped mortar shells on them, we cut around in a six mile circle to get at their rear. This took about six hours. As dusk fell, we were within sight of a village with an unpronounceable name and alongside a stream bed, where we camped.

I was beginning to feel pretty miserable. When the typhus symptoms first showed up, I assumed I was getting a cold. My bones ached and I felt listless. The ache intensified itself in my knees, then moved up the legs to the spine and rose to the back of the neck. Violent headaches came next and burning of the eyes. My appetite disappeared, but I continued to eat, knowing I had to. The medical aid men gave me quinine and aspirin.

Sick Carried in Litters.

Several others were affected the same way, but we went on. Kussro and Chesbro were being brought along behind battalion C in litters, as were other sick and wounded.

The next morning, we left our stream bed bivouac, but had proceeded only a short distance when we lost our lead scout thru a freak Jap rifle hit on the pin of a grenade the scout carried suspended on his chest. The grenade exploded. We continued to move toward the village until we were pinned down by two Nambu light machine guns. Thru walkie talkie radio we gave Orange company firing directions and its men opened up on the village with 81 mm. mortars.

The Japs responded by turning knee mortars on our skirmish line, wounding an American medic and a Chinese litter bearer. From a hill just outside the village, they loosed a steady fire of rifles and machine guns, killing three of us. The skirmish lasted well into the afternoon.

Japs Routed with Artillery.

It had been obvious all day that this was a job for artillery and at length Orange company opened up with the 75 mm. howitzer that had been left to us. This, with the mortar fire, was too much for the Japs. They fled back into the village, then out on the other side. We followed them in and had just taken possession when we were ordered to return to our unit, leaving the Chinese to hold the settlement. Because the Jap force there was the one that had been blocking the main trail, the battalion now was free to move ahead again.

We rested that night and, leaving the Chinese in charge of the area, started cutting across toward a new Myitkyina trail the next morning. May 14 and 15, we force marched, trying to make up the time we had lost. May 16, we began descending into the Mogaung valley. As we went down from the heights, the valley heat seemed unbearable, particularly so to me. My fever now stood at 102. The typhus really was taking hold.

Country Opens Up.

On the valley floor, we came out on a good truck road marked M-12. There was considerable speculation as to whether this meant Mogaung 12 or Myitkyina 12. Someone said that if it were Michigan 12 it had certainly changed a lot. We took it, however, abandoning the British column system and marching double file, one on either side of the road. The country grew more open. We could see 200 to 300 yards on either side of the highway.

About the time the battalion moved into sight of a village two miles ahead, one of our Cub planes flew over, dropping a note to say there were 10 Japs in the town. We sent two patrols ahead to approach from opposite sides, while the main body continued along the road.

Ambush Attack Repelled.

As we drew near, two Kachins, followed by a group of townfolk, came out to meet us. They bade us welcome, but did not mention the Japs. The welcome from the citizens was genuine, we learned. They knew that so long as we were in their village our planes would not strafe and dive bomb it. We began to think the warning about Japs was an error. But it wasn't. The enemy opened up on us from ambush at a range so short I can't understand how they missed. We returned their fire, killing four of them. The other six fled.

The Kachin guides who had been with us from Nhpum Ga had blood in their eyes. Two of them called out the Kachins who had emerged from the village and began accusing them of trapping us. This the two townsmen denied with many gestures. I noticed, however, that as they talked our guides were edging the other two toward a bomb crater. When they reached the brink, our men suddenly seized their prisoners by the throats, beat them to death, and rolled their bodies into the hole. This was a powerful object lesson to the other natives.

Capture An Anti-Climax.

They made us free of their houses and offered us anything we wanted. The next morning—May 17—we radioed for a supply drop and learned that battalion A had hit Myitkyina air strip six miles south and east of us. We were told also that supplies would be dropped at the strip and that we should send there for them. Our pack train men who fetched back food and ammunition told us the story of the air field's capture. After what we had gone thru to reach it, the strip's fall was as anti-climactic an action as I've ever heard of.

Battalion A had known it was getting near, but not how near. Its men had been moving cautiously without opposition when the high grass and scrub undergrowth ended abruptly.

The men found themselves in an open area, more than a mile long. At first glance it seemed deserted, then battalion A became aware of frantic activity on the opposite side. Two score or more Japs were rushing out carrying bulky objects. These they were dumping on the field. The battalion opened fire and the Japs fled toward the town of Myitkyina, two miles to the north, without firing a shot. The bulky object turned out to be fuel dumps, logs, and branches, put there to delay landings by our aircraft.

Here Come the Planes.

In less than five minutes, A battalion cleared the field and radioed to headquarters that it was ours. Before the hour was out, transport planes and troop carrying gliders were streaming down out of the sky. Half of A battalion pursued the Jap air strip force to the outskirts of Myitkyina, where resistance grew stiffer. The story of this success sounded so incredible that we thought at first the wrong air strip had been taken.

The truth of the matter was that the Japs had felt so secure they had relatively few troops in the area. The region between the strip and the hills was virtually unguarded. It was beyond Jap conception that an attacking force could strike from across the supposedly unscalable Chindwin hills. Our victory at Riptong had been so sudden and complete the Myitkyina Japs had received no word of it.

Japs Wake Up Too Late.

After the strip was taken, however, they radioed for help and a large force began moving in from the north. It did not arrive, however, until the night of May 21, just after I had been evacuated.

On May 18 we started patroling toward the air strip, encountering little opposition except from snipers. Along the way we learned that most of A battalion had been evacuated by air.

By May 20, my fever had risen alarmingly in the Mogaung valley heat. The next day my condition was such that the doctors ordered me evacuated. As I headed down the road toward the air strip with my orders, a sniper—Burmese, I think—opened up on me. I kept on walking. I didn't give a damn whether he hit me or not. As I walked, I saw Orange company moving off to meet the new Jap force, passing over ground where the night before two confused companies of Chinese had all but annihilated each other.

Gives Carbine to Wounded Man.

I felt pretty bitter that the rest of our men were not going with me. That night the Japs attacked the strip from three sides, getting inside Orange company's perimeter and killing two officers and 15 men. The company was too weak to keep the attackers out. There had been no sign of the 40,000 to 50,000 troops expected to be in the area. When I reached the air field I handed over my five pound carbine to a kid who had been fighting 10 days with a bullet in his right arm. He was glad to get the light gun to replace his nine pound M-1.

I don't remember much about my arrival at the Ledo hospital. A Dr. Miller saw me thru the typhus crisis, in which my fever went to 106. It was after the fever broke and I had regained my senses that the tragic events that led to the morale break began to occur. In our hospital and the adjacent rest camps there were C battalion men who had been wounded at Walawbum; the B men who had been evacuated after Nhpum Ga, A men wounded in their mission west of Inkangahtawng and Nhpum Ga, and the A battalion men evacuated after Myitkyina.

Engineers Meet Trouble.

Later arrivals from Myitkyina told us that before their departure a bunch of road engineers had been sent in as replacements, their officer stating he could make infantrymen of them. They ran into trouble at the very start.

A bunch of kids from the United States—not yet battle wise—were sent in. Our boys did not believe they were of much help.

As Myitkyina continued its stubborn resistance, rumors began flying about our hospital that some of us would have to go back. The effect of this was very bad, indeed. But it was infinitely worse when Gen. Stilwell's supposed orders arrived; every man fit to walk was to be sent back, we were informed.

Without question, some of the men could have gone back. They were tired and in a nervous condition, but not sick or wounded.

Men Not Afraid to Die.

It should be understood definitely that the men were not afraid to die. They had volunteered for what might be a fatal mission and they still were willing to fight—those who were able. But they did not want to be thrown away in what they suspected was a disorganized action. They had been dwelling on the Chinese shooting at each other, the abortive attempt to convert engineers into infantry, and the young troops from the United States.

Efforts to get information from our officers were futile. They possibly were in the dark also. Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill, who had been our commander, was in the hospital area, and he was reported to be as amazed and angry as we were.

[After his return to Washington, D. C., last month, Gen. Merrill stated: "The men were G—— d—— indignant. I was pretty indignant myself. I said I didn't believe Stilwell had issued any such order."]

Chaplain Among Volunteers.

The situation was about as bad as it could be when the call for volunteers came. Very few men responded. Lt. Logan E. Weston, the "Fightin' Preacher," was one who did. He did not feel the call was just, but he volunteered in the belief that his experience might bring some sort of order out of the chaos at Myitkyina and save some lives.

The answer from most of the men was a flat: "Hell, no!" I was too weak from typhus to be considered. How many men actually were sent back from the hospitals and rest camps I don't know. I do know that more men went A. W. O. L. than went back to Myitkyina.

Error in Order Found.

Then it was learned that Gen. Stilwell's order had been garbled. He had not asked for every man "fit to walk." He had asked for men "capable of full field duty." There is a whale of a difference.

Myitkyina still had not fallen on July 10 when they came thru the Ledo hospital wards with a special pay roll. "Well, Anderson," said an officer, "that's the last pay roll you'll sign in India for a while." This could have meant I was heading back to Burma, but it didn't. I was going home. Before we entrained for the air base in India whence we were to start our long flight home, I heard that the few men of Merrill's Marauders who had gone back to Myitkyina had been reevacuated without fighting. The A. W. O. L. had come filtering back.

It was nearly a week later, at one of the stopovers on the way back here, that we learned Myitkyina had fallen and that the Marauders, their work done, were to be disbanded and be given leaves to return home. We did everything expected of us. None of us I know holds any resentment. We hope only that blame for "The Great Morale Break" will be put where it belongs.

BANZAI ATTACK ON SAIPAN TOLD BY CICERO YANK

Charge in Waves for Thirty-Six Hours.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—"At 3:30 a. m. on July 6, the Japs started their 'banzai rush' on Saipan. The rain was coming down in torrents and it seemed to us that the Japs were thicker than the raindrops. They came in wave after wave for 36 hours. We kept beating them off until there weren't any more live Nips."

That, said Tech. 5th Grade George Papiech, 26, of 2220 S. 58th av., Cicero, Ill., was the highlight of his 30 months in Pacific combat zones as a radio operator and driver in the 27th infantry division.

"Our officers estimated that in the series of attacks against our regimental headquarter's position, the Nips used 3,000 men, outnumbering us by 15 to 1," he said.

Escape an Ambush.

"We beat them off by continuous fire, by making every round of ammunition count, by battling them hand to hand, with bayonets and grenades, when they infiltrated deeply into our lines."

Corp. Papiech shot his way out of an ambush during the early phases of the Saipan campaign. Driving his radio jeep, he encountered a nest of snipers.

"They opened fire on me from not more than 20 yards range," he said, "shooting my tires full of holes and riddling the jeep, but somehow they missed me. I opened up with my tommy gun, spraying all the jungle that was in range, and I silenced them long enough for help to catch up with me."

Tells Narrow Escape.

Of all his narrow escapes, Corp. Papiech believes, the narrowest occurred just after the Makin landing, where he went in with the first wave.

"We had just crawled off the landing craft and were heading up the beach when fire opened on us from a hidden Japanese pillbox," he recounted. "I hit the ground hard and as I fell my carbine became tangled in the shoulder strap of my field jacket. I was helpless.

"A Jap officer came running out of the pillbox, firing at me with his pistol. A buddy, Corp. Albert Decker of Gloversville, N. Y., shot the Jap officer in the arm. A moment later I had freed my carbine and shot and killed the Jap, who was less than 10 feet from me."

Black Widow on Two Fronts

Flight view of the P-61 night fighter, the Black Widow, now in action in Europe and the Pacific.

Crew Increased

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—The army air forces' newest night fighter plane, the P-61 "Black Widow," is in operation in the European and Pacific theaters, the war department reported tonight in disclosing additional details of its operation.

Powered by twin motors and crammed with radio detection devices capable of locating enemy aircraft in darkness, the Black Widow has proved effective in protecting allied night troop movements from enemy bombing and strafing as well as for observation and certain types of attack support, the announcement said.

Its two 2,000 horsepower engines give it "high" speed and "fairly long" range, and the plane carries 20 mm. cannon and .50 caliber machine guns, and a crew of two or three men.

The plane weighs more than 25,000 pounds.

REDS CHARGE NAZIS RUN SOME SWEDISH PAPERS

MOSCOW, Oct. 1 (AP).—Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, criticized Sweden today, charging that "certain Swedish papers are in the hands of Gobbels' organizations [German propaganda ministry] which have made nests in Stockholm and operate there without restraint." "It appears this kind of practice coincides with the Swedish idea of 'pure neutrality,'" Pravda said. German propaganda is quoting Swedish press opinion about the Russo-Finnish armistice terms, it added.

FRANCE TO TAKE OVER INDUSTRY, SAYS DE GAULLE

LILLE, France, Oct. 1 (AP).—The government of France will direct reconstruction and economic activity of the entire nation by a planned economy, Gen. De Gaulle said today.

In his first visit to his native city since before the war, De Gaulle stood on a balcony in a rain and told a cheering audience of 20,000, "We do not want to go back to the pre-war political, social, and moral situation which took us to the brink of the abyss.

"Our economic duty is to make the fullest use of what we have in our soil, our subsoil and our empire. The only way we can do that is by means of what is called planned economy. We want the state to direct the economic activity of the entire nation."

He said the government already had taken steps by taking over control of mines. Entire control of the country's economy will not be taken over at once, he explained, "but it shall be carried out in due time. It shall be an organization of industry in which all who participate shall be considered associates."

Won't Permit Trusts.

De Gaulle went on to say that, "We must have state control without, at the same time, excluding initiative and profit. We have got to have participation of workers and management without conflicting in any way with those having the responsibility of direction."

If the audience in this city of textile and chemical plants and coal mines regarded this as a middle-of-the-road trend, it did not say so, but shouted itself hoarse with "Vive De Gaulle," as the general continued:

"The planned economy is for the benefit of all so that every Frenchman and woman shall have a better life. We no longer can permit the concentration of interests which in England and America are called trusts, and which today do not meet the needs of social betterment.

Army Will Fight On.

"We are going to show the world and ourselves that the suffering and humiliation of the last four years have not been for nothing. We are a great people who know what we want and what we are going to do."

De Gaulle said the army of France would fight on beside the allies to the end of the war.

His automobile trip from Paris to Lille was a triumphant parade thru crowds at every village.

Much of the discussion concerned plans to resume coal production, which is virtually at a standstill. Workers prevented the Germans from damaging the mines, but disrupted transportation has made it impossible to get timber for new mining.

AFTER K RATIONS COME FOOD ABC'S FOR MARAUDERS

When the survivors of Merrill's Maurauders were evacuated after their capture of Myitkyina air field in Burma last May, they had to learn the art of eating all over again.

This was one of the reminiscences yesterday of Maj. Peter Anthony Petito, just returned from 31 months' overseas fighting on Guadalcanal and with the Marauders, C battalion, in Burma.

"K rations are nourishing and strengthening enough, but they are so compact our stomachs simply shrank," Maj. Petito said yesterday in the Stevens hotel. "There no longer was room for normal quantities of food."

Maj. Petito, who lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guilio Petito, 2006 Van Buren st., before entering the army in 1934, was commissioned in 1938. He was at Camp Forrest, Tenn., with many other Chicagoans of the 133d infantry regiment, before going overseas.

U. S. ARTILLERY EARNS A TITLE, 'BEST THERE IS'

Groggy Nazis Tell of Gothic Line Ordeal.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 1.—Americans proved in the battle that broke the Gothic line that United States army artillery probably is the most effective the world has ever seen.

Hauled into position by caterpillars and tractors or converted tanks, supplied by fast trucks, and directed by observers in light planes, American guns operated on a clock work schedule night and day and blasted a path for infantry thru the Germans' formidable line in the Apennines. No Germar position in the path of the advance escaped.

There was a gun for every need. If a 32 pound projectile from a 105 mm. howitzer failed to knock out a position, 4.5 inch guns firing 55 pound shells were called in. If they failed, there were 155 mm. howitzers and guns firing 94 pound projectiles, and so on—8 inch howitzers, whose shell weighs 200 pounds; 8 inch guns firing a 240 pound shell, and finally the big chief himself, the 240 mm. howitzer, which hurls a 365 pound projectile.

88 Killed by One Blast.

Infantry men, moving in after artillery had pounded a position, often found the Germans so dazed that they surrendered after feeble resistance. In the Mount Altuzzo sector, which was subjected to probably the heaviest fire, trembling prisoners said reinforced concrete gun emplacements crumbled and buried their crews. They pointed to a tunnel dug in a mountain side to shelter infantry. A 240 mm. shell had exploded in the tunnel entrance and the concussion had killed 88 Germans.

American barrages laid down at the Germans' rear were particularly severe on the Nazis' green replacements. Some were old men or young boys, and these often crack up in their first baptism of fire and wait in their foxholes for a chance to surrender.

"Front" Line Miles Deep.

"Think what it does to a man," said a German veteran, "to know that an American shell may strike near him even when he is 15 miles behind the line. Hour after hour our supply roads, bivouac areas, and supply dumps come under this hellishly accurate fire. How can there be so many guns, so many shells?"

A great experience is to witness what artillery men call a "time on target shoot." When observers sight a really fine target, every available gun is given its time to land a shell. Distance and speed are computed. First the heavies far behind our lines open up, then others closer and closer to the lines, until finally the division guns and howitzers get their projectiles on their way. Seconds later hundreds of shells, ranging from 32 to 365 pounders, scream down on the target area at the same instant.

Fire—and Then Shells.

A punishing system combines the use of white phosphorous incendiary shells with the "time on target shoot," mostly against troop concentrations. Division guns hurl phosphorous shells and these burst above the foxholes in which the Germans lie.

If struck by a phosphorous fragment, a victim can put out the fire by plastering wet mud over his wound. As a Nazi rushes from his foxhole for his canteen to mix water with earth to make the mud pack, high explosive shells of the second "time on target shoot" hit the area.

Early this year below Cassino the Americans were blocked by German concentrations in San Vittore. A "time on target shoot" landed shells from 820 guns simultaneously and when the dust cleared away there wasn't any town.

ILLINOIS SAILOR GETS MEDAL FOR SUBMARINE DUTY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—The navy department today announced award of the silver star to Lawrence Joseph Wagner, signalman 1st class, 1802 S. 4th st., Rockford, Ill.

The citation said the award was made for conspicuous gallantry aboard a submarine during patrols against Japanese in the Pacific.

"By his vigilance as lookout on surface and by his skill as bow planesman on submerged attacks, Wagner rendered invaluable assistance thruout raids which resulted in the sinking or damaging of an important amount of hostile shipping."

One Candle

This perpendicular towerlet of type—this column—is one year old this week. Were it not for the fact that so many kind readers—thousands of them, to state it accurately—have apparently found something in it that is useful, we might be inclined to ask ourselves the question, "Well, what of it?" or—"So what?"

But we're quite happy about the whole thing. You know, really, this is a friendly business we're in. It's a business, we think, that contributes to gracious living, and, particularly, in times of stress and strife, to relaxation. Oh, yes, to be sure, it undoubtedly has its abuses—and its abusers, too. But most of us will agree that many of the good things in life are both judiciously used and injudiciously abused. Hasn't it always been so?

Well, anyway, thank you—you many friends who have encouraged us to continue this little series. We're starting on our second year. Stay with us, won't you? Continue to tell us when you like our efforts and help us, too, with your constructive criticism.

YANKS BEAT OFF THIRD NAZI BLOW ON ITALIAN PEAK

British Win 3 Towns Near Adriatic.

ROME, Oct. 1 (AP).—British 8th army troops have captured Savignano, 10 miles inland from the Adriatic on the Rimini-Bologna highway, after several days of fighting, and have thrown the Germans back at some points from their strong Fiumicino river line, allied headquarters announced today.

Rains hampered movements, but 8th army men have cleared the east bank of the river from the coast to Savignano. Southwest of that town they occupied Tribola and Montalbano.

Americans of the 5th army knocked back a third and powerful German counter-blow aimed at recapturing Mount Battiglia, a commanding height 11 miles from Imola and the lateral highway to Bologna.

Charge with Flame Throwers.

Elements of at least three Nazi divisions, supported by artillery and flame throwers, charged in the vain effort to oust the doughboys from the mountain overlooking the Po valley. The Yanks there threaten the main supply line of the Germans battling on the Adriatic sector. Two miles farther west along this central front Americans attacked Mount Cappella, where Germans were defending strong positions.

Still farther west the Yanks won ground north of Giugnola, 18 miles south of Bologna, and cleared enemy remnants from Mount Fredente, 21 miles southwest of Bologna.

Planes Cut Rail Lines.

On the west coastal sector the Nazis stepped up artillery fire against Brazilian and other allied units maintaining pressure on mountain strongholds.

Despite foul weather, allied bombers struck nine bridges in the Milan and Venice areas yesterday in the campaign to isolate Germans in the Po valley. Fighter-bombers cut Po valley rail lines in 21 places, taking a toll of six locomotives, 14 rail cars and 16 vehicles destroyed, with many others damaged.

WIFE OF SOLDIER TO FACE COURT IN BABY NEGLECT

Charged with contributing to the dependency of a minor, Mrs. Harriet Scott, 26, of 3054 N. Avers av., a comptometer operator and wife of a service man, will appear in Women's court today for the alleged abandonment of her son, Michael Eugene, 20 months, for two weeks. Policewoman Antoinette Quinn and Policeman Walter Williams seized Mrs. Scott Saturday night in her home after she reappeared there to get her clothing. She told police she had been living with a friend in Evanston since Sept. 15, when she was released from Belmont hospital, where she had been treated after an attempted suicide.

Policewoman Quinn said that Mrs. Scott's mother reported that she had been left with the baby and without funds when her daughter returned from the hospital, picked up her allotment check, and left.

Mrs. Scott, who was nearly hysterical in the women's lockup, said that her husband, Corp. Eugene Scott, who has been overseas for 15 months, recently wrote and asked for a divorce. Her despondency, she said, led her to drinking and the suicide attempt, but she said that she had been rehabilitating herself.

INJURIES FROM FALL FATAL. Mrs. Mary Teske, 63, of 2438 Haddon av., died in St. Mary's hospital yesterday from injuries suffered earlier when she fell in her home.

Report Invasion

Kythera Island (arrow), reported invaded by British forces.

New York, Oct. 1.—British forces have landed on three Greek islands, the London radio, quoting its Cairo correspondent, said in a broadcast tonight. The report said the British met no opposition. One of the islands, it said, was Kythera, six miles from the mainland between Greece and Crete.

Take Toll of Enemy Planes.

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 1 (AP).—Planes operating from eastern Mediterranean bases continue to take a toll of enemy aircraft employed in evacuating personnel and supplies from the Aegean Islands, it was announced today. A Dornier 24 was shot down last night, bringing up to 12 the total of enemy aircraft destroyed in five nights.

Ex-Publisher Shot Dead in Guatemala Ambush

GUATEMALA, Guatemala, Oct. 1 (AP).—Alejandro Cordoba, former publisher of the newspaper El Imparcial, was shot to death at 3 a. m. today when he entered the garage beside his home. Freddy Koenigsberger, wealthy owner of a big hardware store, was seriously wounded at the same time. Koenigsberger said there were three assailants.

FINNISH TROOPS CAPTURE FIRST GERMAN FORCE

Swedes See Battle for Border Town.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 1 (AP).—Finnish troops advancing thru Lapland in their campaign to disarm German troops announced today the capture of a small Nazi force, the first they had taken.

The Helsinki bulletin said the Germans were seized near Pudasjarvi on the H river in central Finland as the Finns were pursuing the retiring Nazis. German equipment, including motor transport, also was captured.

The Finns also reported that their troops, fulfilling the terms of their armistice with Russia, which called for the internment of all German troops remaining in Finland after Sept. 15, had passed Taivalkoski, east of Pudasjarvi, and that the Germans had burned farm buildings in the area.

Battle for Border Town.

Swedish newspaper reports from Haparanda told of fighting across the border in Tornio [Tornea].

[A Swedish broadcast said fires were burning in many places in Tornio. A British broadcast reported the Finns had driven the Germans out of Tornio after making a night landing on the Gulf of Bothnia and sending up motorized forces by land.

See Fight from Tower.

The Stockhold Aftonbladet's correspondent said reënforcements apparently had arrived for both sides at Tornio. Swedes stood in the Haparanda water tower and observed the battle. They said the Germans were entrenched in the Hotel Funk and the high school. Fifty yards away the Finns held the customs house.

Swedish reports also said detonations could be heard in the direction of Kemi, Finnish port on the gulf about a mile and a half southeast of Tornio. The Germans previously had been reported destroying installations in Kemi.

Princess Ruspoli, 60, Dies of Skull Fracture in Rome

ROME, Oct. 1.—The death of Princess Dora Ruspoli, 60, one of the best known hostesses in Rome, was announced by her family today. Donna Dora, who was well known to the American colony of Rome, was visiting her sick chauffeur in a poor quarter of the town on Sept. 27 when she fell thru a trap door to a cellar five yards below, dying instantly of a fractured skull.

4 COSTA RICANS ARE WOUNDED BY NICARAGUANS

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Oct. 1 (AP).—Four Costa Ricans were reported today to have been wounded in street brawls with Nicaraguan exiles in various parts of Costa Rica. The outbreaks followed capture of a Costa Rican border town by Nicaraguan rebels. Later the rebels were driven out of the town by Costa Rican troops.

The newspaper La Tribuna published a statement by President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua condemning the activities of the Nicaraguans in Costa Rica.

Costa Rican authorities seized six bombs and 15 sticks of dynamite in a private home here and an investigation was under way to determine whether the explosives were destined for Nicaraguan revolutionaries or some local subversive group.

No one knows to what part of the world the focus of American interest will next shift. But this much is certain: No matter where it may be, the news gathering facilities of the Chicago Tribune will be on the job getting accurate accounts for you.

Dad, where do the tracks go?

"SON, if you walked those tracks west, you'd walk into a country so big you'd feel about knee high to a grasshopper.

"You'd see Indians sure—and cowboys, too—but you'd see lots of other things. Miles and miles of grain, more sheep than you ever counted—cattle galore; sky-scrapin' mountains that look like they had a hunk of ice cream on top of 'em.

"You'd see rushin' water turnin' factory wheels and changin' yellow waste country to land as green as our pasture; apples half as big as your head and trees as tall as Jack's bean stalk. You'd meet friendly people, livin' on farms and ranches and in up-and-comin' towns and cities that ain't much older than you, as towns go.

"Finally, you'd wind up lookin' out over the Pacific Ocean—lookin' west to where your brother Jim is with his Marine outfit. Yes sir, if you'd walk those tracks west, you'd see a powerful lot of what Jim's fightin' for."

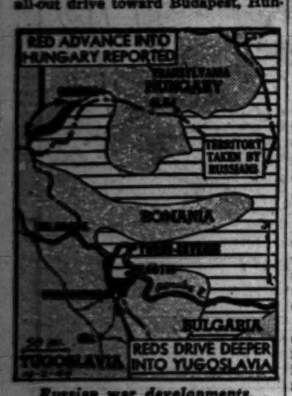
RUSSIANS DRIVE 23 MILES MORE INTO YUGOSLAVIA

One Line Veers Toward Nis, Rail Center.

LONDON, Oct. 2 [Monday]—(AP).—Russian troops struck 23 miles deeper into Yugoslavia yesterday, fighting thru the mountains of northeastern Serbia to within 43 miles of the Belgrade-Nis railway, main escape route for an estimated 200,000 Germans in the lower Balkans.

An unconfirmed dispatch from Budapest, Hungary, by way of Turkey said Russians and Romanians had smashed 22 miles inside southeastern Hungary. It called this a blow to soften up defenses for an all-out drive toward Budapest, Hungarian capital, less than 100 miles distant. Budapest acknowledged Russian gains but did not disclose their depth. Moscow was silent about the Hungarian drive.



Russian war developments.

The 3d Ukraine army, which Berlin said had poured 30,000 men across the Danube into Yugoslavia below the Romanian city of Turnu-Severin, was reported in Moscow dispatches to be 80 miles east of Belgrade, Yugoslav capital.

Column Turns Toward Nis.

The soviet bulletin disclosed that one Red army spearhead had veered southwest in a push toward Nis, junction of railway lines radiating to Belgrade, Sofia, Bulgarian capital, and Salonika, Greece. This group, skirting the Timok river, a tributary of the Danube, captured Vrazogrnac, 50 miles northeast of Nis.

Vrazogrnac is an a spur railway which turns westward to meet the Nis-Belgrade trunk line in the Morava valley at Paracin, only 43 miles away. It is 23 miles beyond Negotin, which the Russians reached on Saturday.

A linkup in force with Marshal Tito's Partisans appeared to be imminent.

The Russians took 10 towns yesterday and hold a north-south front of 30 air line miles inside Yugoslavia. Between them and Belgrade are mountains rising as high as 3,500 feet.

Bitter fighting swirled around Oradea, big west Romanian communications city near the Hungarian frontier. The fall of Oradea would cut the main escape route for axis troops at Cluj, Transylvanian capital.

Warsaw Poles Battered.

Inside Warsaw, capital of Poland, the situation "has become critical," said a bulletin from Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski [Bor], leader of patriot forces.

The Nazis were using flamethrowers, grenades, tanks and big guns to blast houses and cellars held by the Poles.

FRENCH PUPILS TO RETURN TO BANNED TEXTS

Resume Studies of Former Books.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 1.—After a vacation, which started with allied landings in Normandy and ended with the liberation of a greater part of France, Parisian school children will return to their classrooms tomorrow morning to resume studies in textbooks that have been banned for the last four years.

A series of Vichy ordinances proscribing the use of hundreds of standard manuals considered "undesirable" by the Germans, has been declared null and void by the De Gaulle government. In place of the hastily prepared occupation textbooks which lauded the "Petain miracle" and the "greatness of Germany," children tomorrow will be given old works in which the militarism and aggressive spirit of Germany is roundly denounced in traditional French fashion.

Teachers Took Risk.

Altho the pupils were obliged to study school books written from the collaborationist viewpoint, a majority of Paris teachers risked imprisonment by continuing to teach from old manuals right thru the occupation.

One of the Germans' first acts upon arrival in 1940 was to draw up the notorious "Otto lists," which threw out all textbooks considered too patriotic, republican or anti-German.

Chief difficulty confronting the educators is a shortage of copies of former textbooks. It is believed, however, that sufficient numbers remain in schools and publishers' stocks to carry over until new editions can be prepared.

2,000 Titles Banned.

For the time being schools will return to the education program of 1938 but it is understood this is only a temporary measure until extensive reforms can be effected, bringing the curriculum in line with changes since 1938.

In addition to school books some 2,000 works of general literature were forbidden by the Otto lists. Some of these are by Jewish authors, others by noncollaborators.

TOWN 20 MILES FROM BELGRADE CLAIMED BY TITO

LONDON, Oct. 1 (AP).—Marshal Tito's Partisans captured the German strong point of Sopot, 20 miles south of Belgrade, Yugoslav capital, Tito's broadcast bulletin said tonight. The Yugoslavs were said to have routed 6,000 troops, inflicting 2,500 casualties, farther south in the Rasina river sector. The bulletin said that Tito's forces helped the Russian army advance into Yugoslavia by slashing at German communications thruout Serbia.

TERMS TO GERMANY?

Sen. Johnson of Colorado believes it is a mistake to offer Germany no other terms than unconditional surrender. He argues that because we have refused to tell the Germans what we mean to do to them after they lay down their arms, the Germans cannot but believe Hitler's story that the allies intend to dismember Germany, enslave millions of Germans, and execute vast numbers in addition. Mr. Johnson thinks that since the Germans learned of the Morgenthau plan to deprive Germany of all her industries, Hitler has acquired a new hold on his people. His soldiers, instead of surrendering in droves, are fighting furiously. In consequence thousands of Americans have been killed and maimed and other thousands are going to suffer the same fate.

Mr. Johnson goes on to outline the terms which he thinks should be communicated to Germany. She is to have her 1932 or pre-Hitler boundaries, except that she is to lose East Prussia. She will also lose the Saar valley, which she didn't recover until 1935. The Germans living in Czechoslovakia and other neighboring states are to be moved out. Germany is to be disarmed and kept disarmed except that her police may carry pistols. Military training is to be forbidden as well as the manufacture of all armaments, and each of the three great allies is to maintain not more than a hundred inspectors in Germany to see that these provisions are not violated. Property confiscated by the Nazis from Jews and other persecuted Germans is to be restored to the original owners or their heirs. Germans will be allowed to choose their own form of government, but they will not be allowed to limit the freedom of speech, press, and religion. Not more than 50,000 Germans will be turned over to the allies for trial as war criminals. If at any time two of the three great allied powers agree that Germany has violated any of these terms, Germany is to be occupied jointly by troops of America, England, and Russia.

It would be fruitless to discuss these suggestions in detail. It may be noted, however, that it is not probable that the allies will wish to try as many as 50,000 war criminals even tho the number who could properly be charged with such offenses may be far larger. It may be noted also that if it is possible to impose freedom of speech, press, and religion, it should be possible to impose also all the other rights of man to be found in our Constitution and its Bill of Rights.

But these are details. The main question is whether some such terms as Sen. Johnson has outlined, if offered by the allies, will achieve everything we can expect to gain by the unconditional surrender of Germany. If so, we have little to lose by telling the Germans what will happen to them if they lay down their arms, for at worst they will fight on as they are now doing. Their spirits, perhaps, have been raised of late by their success in preventing the British 2d army from turning the flank of the Siegfried line. If the announcements of our terms would serve to weaken the German resolution to resist, Gen. Eisenhower may not find it necessary to throw into the battle the great reserve of American soldiers to which Mr. Churchill referred in his speech to the house of commons a few days ago.

Sen. Johnson's proposal will be denounced, of course, as a form of appeasement. The denunciation can have meaning only if the terms offered are softer than they should be in good conscience and in good judgment. Certainly no American wants to see the war end on terms so soft that Germany will ever forget her defeat, and, likewise, no forethoughtful citizen can favor terms so harsh as to goad Germany into another war in a generation or so.

Perhaps the reason that terms have not been given to Germany is the inability of Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin to agree on a formula. Mr. Roosevelt boasts of his intimate understanding of his colleagues' thinking and of his skill in negotiation, but he hasn't brought them to agreement on the objects to be gained by Germany's surrender. In this connection it is worth noting that none of these gentlemen is likely to survive the peace by much more than a decade. They will write the peace, but it will remain for the generation that has fought the war to see that it is executed. Almost certainly, the terms that will be imposed, whether presented before or after the shooting stops, will undergo many modifications as time goes on, passions cool, and circumstances alter.

THE COMMUNITY FUND.

The Community and War Fund of Metropolitan Chicago conducted its first united charity appeal last year, collecting in one drive all of the money usually solicited by the various war relief organizations in their separate campaigns, along with the Community Fund contributions. This cut down the amount of charitable solicitation Chicagoans are customarily subjected to, and saved the time of both solicitors and contributors. Chicagoans apparently like the idea, for they contributed the largest amount of money ever donated during a single charitable campaign in the city's history.

The same plan is being followed this year. The goal is $12,980,000, only slightly higher than the 1943 quota, of which a record $11,900,000 was raised. Chicagoans generally do not have to be urged or persuaded to contribute to our Community Fund. They know that direction and administration of the campaign is in the hands of competent, honest, public spirited citizens, and that the charities sharing in the fund are doing a necessary and worthwhile job in the community.

The Community and War Fund accepts contributions in any amount, but it has asked people this year to set aside the equivalent of eight hours' pay as their individual donations. This will be no great hardship in a city where everybody is on the job, frequently far in excess of eight hours a day, working toward victory and the return of peace. It is a fair method of sharing responsibility for the work the charities must do. The contributions are deductible from income tax.

The 1944 Community and War Fund drive is under way, the goal has been set, and it is Chicago's job to reach it. We will. When the lady or gentleman with a handful of red feathers comes your way, dig down and give. Every other citizen in our community is doing the same, because it is an investment in our way of life.

LIBERATION OR DICTATION?

Gen. Charles de Gaulle's ministerial council in Paris has decided to requisition coal mines, the Renault motor works, and an organization which formerly had a monopoly of the distribution of newspapers and periodicals thruout France. This has been done with intent to nationalize the mines and industries and is said to be part of a "long term" program upon which Gen. de Gaulle's government has embarked.

We are supposed to have liberated France, and under the terms of the highly advertised Atlantic Charter, which was drafted to govern allied conduct in liberated countries, the people of France are entitled to choose the type of government they want.

Gen. de Gaulle's government was a hand picked, temporary organization of emigres, convenient to deal with before France was invaded, and a stopgap for the period of confusion between military occupation and actual peace which will come when fighting stops in Europe.

The Communists found places in De Gaulle's government while its headquarters still was in Algiers. This government, installed in Paris, is now embarking on a program smacking of communism. Maybe there are a lot of Communists in France, but if the Atlantic Charter and liberation mean anything, the people of France ought to have a chance to say whether they want that kind of a society before any far-reaching program of nationalization is started.

The De Gaullists are proceeding as if they had a mandate from the people. If the mines and other industries of France need new direction to get them started, we can see to it that they are operated in trust by the provisional government, just as our government operated the railroads during the last war. In the event the French people decide they don't want communism, it is going to make the task of governing themselves under some other system much more difficult if their large industries already are nationalized.

America's position as a liberator will be made ludicrous if we allow a bunch of Communists to remake the French economy to their pattern before the French people are given the right to decide what they want.

SPEED AND DEATH.

The other day the National Safety council hoisted an automobile 41½ feet in the air, nose down, cut the ropes, and let 'er whop down on a steel slab. Council engineers, army officers, and selected observers walked over and inspected the twisted mass of wreckage. This, the engineers said, is what happens when your auto traveling at 35 miles an hour strikes a highway bridge, abutment, safety island, or other immovable object.

The engineers did not enlarge upon their demonstration, nor did they show what happens when an automobile moving at the 70 or 80 miles an hour, which was customary on the highways before the war, strikes an immovable object. The nation-wide 35 mile an hour speed limit, which came in with gasoline rationing, has not been universally observed, but the average speed has been reduced and the country has been shown that the death toll can be cut by reducing speed of motor driven vehicles. By no means all of the lives saved on our highways during the last two years have been spared by this means, but nobody will deny that it has been an important factor.

What we are going to do about speed reduction when the freedom to drive a car is restored after the war is a serious national problem. If we go back to the 70-80 mile pace on roads as they exist today, a lot of citizens are going to be killed. There are two ways to prevent this slaughter. The first is to build super-highways which are reasonably safe for high speed operation because cross-traffic is eliminated.

A lot of people have suggested that speed governors be placed on all cars. This is not likely to work for a variety of reasons. The alternative is a rigidly enforced speed limit.

How to make that successful when the cars really get going once more is something for all of us to think about.

Let's stop being schoolboys, ashamed to speak up for ourselves. Marshal Stalin has made it plain that he is for Russia, come hell or high water. Mr. Churchill said that he did not become prime minister to preside at the liquidation of the British empire. Let us say to the world in plain words that we are first of all for America and that we expect to use the ports and bases and sea lanes and airways established by the sacrifice of American lives and American savings, for the benefit and protection of America!—American Legion Monthly.

NO SUCH COUNTRIES?

If this column should speak of the progress of the war in Brabant, Livonia, Courland, and Illyria, there would be a general lifting of eyebrows and careful students of the maps of the National Geographic society would inform us tartly that there are no such countries. Well, there used to be, and we happen to be fond of the names.

Brabant was in the Low Countries, and provinces in Holland and Belgium preserve its memory. The Dutch portion covers the Nijmegen-Arnhem sector. Belgium has adopted the heraldic emblem of this medieval duchy, a lion, as its national totem, and the colors for its national flag. Furthermore, the national anthem of Belgium is "La Brabançonne." The eldest son of the Belgian king is called the duke of Brabant.

Livonia and Courland were the names for Latvia and Estonia for centuries before World War I. They, too, were duchies, owing feudal allegiance to various powers—the Teutonic Knights, Poland, Sweden, and finally Russia. One of the most famous dukes of Courland was Maurice de Saxe, of German royal blood and French citizenship, a great military leader . . . Writers of historical novels have invented many fictitious countries, but they have never improved on the names of Livonia and Courland.

* * *

Illyria has always enchanted us by its sound and also as the scene of Shakespeare's happiest comedy, "Twelfth Night." It stood for the present Dalmatian coast; see the news of the latest allied invasion. The name runs back to ancient Greek and Roman times, but it disappeared from history after that region became Balkanized by Serbs and Croats. Napoleon revived it for a few years, and about a century ago there was a political movement for an Illyrian republic; the propaganda was called Illyrism.

BRIGHT BLUE WEATHER.

October pins upon Earth's bosom now
Her brooch, an autumn heirloom old as sun
That ripened the first fruit of Eden's bough;
Its antique gold is chased with trophies won
By harvest, and is set with varied jewels;
A few fine emeralds, left when summer chose
To take her legacy where next she rules;
Great gems of topas—no lapidary knows
Their secret cut; the priceless rubies glow
Along the tracings of a sumac tree,
With garnets on an oak, while just below
Are amethysts in asters wild and free.

She then, as complement, sets in the sky
Her season's choicest lapis lazuli.

Hon. Linemaster: Hafta report again on the contribs. "Ho-hum"—which it wood'n be if those Shylocks wood pay a guy. Their last reply was that I was gettin all I was worth.

Tha meetin' was a big one on a/c it was Hig's birthday. He blew tha gang to a 4 bit bottle of sherry and a 1½ layer chocolate cake with 5 candles on its bosom. Hig refused to tell how old he was, an some one suggested if ya can tell a horse's age by his teeth mebbe we cood find out, but Hig said it ain't etiquette to take 'em out while people are eatin. C.O.R. claimed it was his birthday too but on a/c he didn' loosen up tha answer was "so-what."

Mrs. Peterson, a grand lady, lent a sadly needed air of refinement to tha meetin'; she's Cholly's mama an showed us letters from him from Italy, claims he's gonna bring home a relic. Seems to me a good lookin guy like him cood of landed a young gal. Shandy Gaff, tha picture dispenser, was in bad spirits, seems he always is when September rolls by. They still got a gross of "September Morn" on hand and only sold six this season.

Scotch M'Tavish, on seeing tha sherry and cake, complained about a bad stomach an cancelled his meat order. Dean Clark is well again, claims he was strepti-cockeyed and all tha time I had that guy pegged as a tea-totaler. Irene Koenig is ritzin all of us on a/c she made tha line twice in one day, plain outright snooty she is. Wood'n surprise me if she starts eatin with her fork.

I called Tabarin's attention to Frieda Zimmerman's new hair-do, an he said "some-do" and some don't. Quizzicuss reported that his sister finally got married and that he's gonna live with them for the and his duration. Next week is little Bobby Clark Jr's birthday. Looks like instead of wine and cake we're gonna be hooked with milk and crackers. I can hardly wait for the day. Duke Bakrak.

P. S. Gee, am I gonna get tight.

BURIAL AT SEA.

Here in the cool green depths I lie
And the wide, wide world away,
With never a glimpse of summer sky
And never a wind-bright day.

Here is my home in this quiet gloom,
Here is my coral bed;
And the jeweled fish that attend my room
Are priestesses of the dead.

And never again will the stars be mine,
And never the shade of tree;
But the long, long draught of the sea's sweet wine
And the dreams of Eternity. Louise.

O. W. W. writes: "I was discharged from the army a year ago for disabilities received in service. I haven't been able to do any manual labor since being discharged and the odd jobs I've had don't pay enough. Would I be entitled now to file for compensation or is it too late?"

It is never too late for a veteran to file a claim for compensation. We are sending you a veterans administration form to be filled out and sent to the nearest veterans' facility. If the disability you incurred in service handicapped you in your previous work, you also may apply to the veterans administration for rehabilitation training to fit you, at government expense, for a new occupation.

C. M. A. writes: "I had 14 months' active duty outside the continental United States and made application for a discharge because of a dependency situation. I applied for severance pay and was denied because I had applied for a discharge. Is this the correct procedure?"

No. Any one who has served outside the continental United States is entitled to payment even tho discharged at his own request.

GASTRIC SECRETIONS NEED VITAMIN C.

IN many of our discussions mention has been made of the fact that free hydrochloric acid is an indispensable part of gastric juice. Unless this material is present, and is able to mix with the stomach contents, the entire sequence of digestion may be upset.

Unfortunately, a few of those who have passed middle life will be found to possess but a meager quantity of this ingredient. One of the common resulting symptoms is anemia. Poor blood, plus intermittent diarrhea, may then sap strength and lead to a persistent tired feeling.

What is responsible for the failure of certain cells within the lining of the "breadbasket" to perform satisfactorily? One answer has been suggested—that the tissues contain too little vitamin C. Other investigators believe that a scarcity of the acid prevents the proper absorption of C.

Recent reports by Eames and Evans indicate that unless the body is well supplied with C, glucose cannot be transformed into energy. They explain that these patients are always weary, even tho their muscles are well provided with animal starch [glycogen]. In addition the urine will show a large shower of phosphates. This means that these compounds [needed for the manufacture of hydrochloric] are discharged, when they should be retained. There is a further important factor—namely, that whenever acid is insufficient, yeast and other invaders will multiply within the bowel and retard the assimilation of C.

As has been pointed out, our organs and cells comprise a huge chemical laboratory, wherein the reactions incident to the solution of nutriment and the production of energy proceed in an orderly manner. Like an endless chain from which a link is missing, the absence of a single building compound may wreak havoc. We know that unless the meal is well permeated with acid before it passes into the intestine the behavior of other essential secretions will be interfered with. Thus, completion of the process within 20 feet or more of the alimentary tract will be accomplished only in part.

Tests have shown that these people will lack C. The harder they work, the greater will be the shortage. Furnish them with plenty of this food accessory, and not only will they experience a rebirth of vitality, but the acid within the gastric juice may increase of its own accord.

There are, of course, other causes of a low percentage of hydrochloric. Lining cells may atrophy because of years and years of abuse. But if one has been reasonably careful about his diet, and still finds that he needs to take the substance daily in order to get along, it may be that C will come to his rescue and reactivate the secreting factories. The vitamin does the job by retaining chemicals [phosphates], which are the stepping stones to acid formation. At any rate, both these elements [C and acid] are demanded. If one is inadequate, the assumption is that the amount of the other is too small to be considered normal.

There are so many sources of C in nature that no one should be deficient. What we require are fresh fruits and vegetables. If these do not suffice we have recourse to ascorbic acid, which is readily obtainable.

JAW FORMATION.

T. R. writes: A new baby in our family was born with a receding chin. Can anything be done about it now or later?

REPLY.

This is not a character defect, regardless of tradition. The chances are that as growth occurs, the shape of the jaw will approach normal.

BLADDER IRRITATION.

P. S. writes: What is the cause of cystitis?

REPLY.

Irritation within the bladder of chemical or bacterial origin. Changing the reaction of the urine from alkaline to acid, or vice versa, will bring prompt relief in many cases.

MOUTH LESIONS.

M. M. writes: What causes ulcers in the mouth, especially on the tongue?

REPLY.

Food deficiencies, fungous infections, digestive upsets, trauma from rough teeth, etc.

Not Even a Friend?

A Michigan av. establishment is determined to let Chicagoans know what preparations New York is making for Germany's fall. In its window it displays one of the signs posted in the Empire State building, which reads:

"When V-day comes tenants are requested, for the safety of people in the street, not to allow occupants of their offices to throw anything out of the windows.

"Empire State, Inc. Alfred E. Smith, Pres."

The placard prints "anything" in extra large type.

Sign of the Times.

A little laundry on the north side has a large sign in its window: "REWARD: $25 war bond for any one who can find us a 5 or 6 room apartment."

And your laundry guaranteed back on time?

Variation on Ancient Theme.

A lady we know was strolling near Grant hospital the other day when a small boy, holding his stomach and grimacing with pain, approached. "Please, lady," he moaned, "gimme a dime for some Ex-Lax." When she suggested he try the dispensary beside him, his recovery was immediate. He disappeared down an alley in nothing flat.

Well!

Nell McCarthy reports that the title printed on the cover of Book No. 174 at the Walker branch of the public library reads: "The Marks of an Educadet [sic] Man."

Nonchalance.

A neat and circumspect woman left her reserved seat at the Hawthorne race track the other day to place a bet. When she returned, a strange man was comfortably ensconced there. He made no move to get up, even when she reminded him it was a reserved section. Seeing that he had no intention of moving, the young woman took a deep breath and sat down on his lap. Calmly she marked her program and sat and sat. Finally, scarlet faced, the intruder dumped her off and fled amid the boos of persons near-by.

A Dr. in the House?

When the Ballet Russe, now here, played recently in Cleveland, one of the dancers injured a leg. An attendant rushed to the box office to see if any doctors in the audience had left their names and seat numbers with the head usher, as is customary. One had, and an usher groped his way into the darkened theater to get him. The man was rushed out of the hall and backstage to the dancer's dressing room. A moment later he emerged, looking extremely baffled. "Well, what do you want me to do?" he asked plaintively. "Do something for that girl," he was told. "Aren't you a doctor?" "No," he said. "Well, what are you?" the manager demanded. "I'm a mailman," he said. The manager glared at him. "Just what are you doing back here then?" he asked. The mailman shook his head and pouted. "That's what I'd like to know," he replied. "All I know is an usher came down to me and said, 'Follow me,' and I did."

THE OKLAHOMA SPEECH.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Gov. Dewey's Oklahoma radio talk will undoubtedly go down in history as the first time that a single speech elected a President. B. F. M.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 28.—I wonder what the New Deal, collectively and individually, thinks now about Gov. Dewey and his ability to express himself definitely and powerfully? His Oklahoma City speech, judging from the excitement it has created in all camps, was a logical, honest, and rhetorical masterpiece. ARTHUR J. RICHARDSON.

Manitowoc, Wis., Sept. 28.—While Gov. Dewey hasn't knocked out the New Deal entirely yet, he certainly has that gang hanging on the ropes gasping for air after his scorching speech. A few more "straight from the shoulder" blows like that, and they will be out for good. O. W. E.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Gov. Dewey's Oklahoma City speech was a masterpiece, and in my opinion one of the greatest political speeches of all time. I am clipping the text from Tuesday's Tribune and sending it to a relative in the army, and suggest that every reader who has a copy do likewise. JUST A WAR WORKER.

Tullahoma, Tenn., Sept. 26.—Honestly, didn't Dewey stand up a would be "commander in chief" and horse whip him all over the nation, last night from Oklahoma City? And did it so nicely, after it had been asked for! E. M. SHAHAN.

THE REVERE STRIKE.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—The strike by the workers of Revere Copper and Brass company is a cruel, selfish blow against the entire American nation, every citizen of which is trying hard to work shoulder to shoulder with our fighting forces. Little we realize the misery and hardships these men must contend with at all times. What progress would be made in this war if each and every one of our boys refused to carry on the fight, by throwing aside their weapons, when ordered to go upon some difficult mission? E. M. CUMMINGS.

WHAT DEWEY HAS DONE.

Chrisney, Ind., Sept. 24.—Tom Dewey is the most potent political figure in the United States today and has already attracted attention in foreign countries. He has forced the New Dealers to take a "me, too" attitude on his proposed program of reconversion. He has done more in the two weeks since he started his campaign tour to loosen the hold of the New Deal and to bring some sensible changes into effect, than all the efforts in the last 12 years. J. A.

MEN THE ARMY COULD RELEASE.

Highland Park, Ill., Sept. 22.—Evidently it makes not the slightest bit of difference to any one but myself that my husband, age 39 years, with two and on-half years of army life, and physically unfit for overseas duty, is slowly but surely headed for a complete mental breakdown. M. A. G.

THE ARMISTICE CELEBRATION.

SOMEWHERE IN EUROPE, Sept. 20.—Prior to D-day and immediately thereafter we read of the flocks of people filling the churches daily asking God's blessing on the men taking part in the invasion. Now that armistice day in this theater seems to be close, we read how wet the celebration will be. There is hardly any mention of church services.

The majority of the men here regard God as a personal friend and we will return with deeper Christian convictions than when we left the states. It seems to us that the same people who filled the churches on D-day are planning to fill the saloons on armistice night. If the majority of the folks in the states are as hypocritical as all that we won't be coming home to the kind of Republic we expect.

The men are coming home with a deeper sense of the working power of God's will. Let's hope the people at home wake up as they are going to need this deeper faith in God when the boys return. M. G. JEFFS, W. O. [J. G.].

"TAXED TO DEATH."

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 21.—I have been in the army quite a while. Now I am discharged. I bought a suitcase and found a 20 per cent tax added. I find they are taking quite a large percentage of my salary for income tax. My boss tells me they are taxing him to death. That is what the New Dealers have done to us and now they are blaming the Republicans. There is going to be a rude awaking when the boys come home. How are we going to get ahead if these racketeers tax us to death? THOMAS MAYO.

ANENT THE HARD PEACE.

Chicago, Sept. 28. — England should be careful not to cripple Germany to the extent that Germany will be at peace during the entire European war of 1960. Because, if Germany is unable to get in the next European war, it is very likely that Winston Churchill, or his successor, will be unable to draw us in. G. F. G.

HAL SMITH'S STORIES.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—This is to thank you for the fine stories written by Harold Smith. We have a husband and brother in that theater of war now, and the news Mr. Smith sends us is as good as letters which the boys are too busy to write. We include him in our prayers. A SOLDIER'S FAMILY.

WAITED TOO LONG.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Seven years ago I had a leg fractured when I was struck by a car. I did not bring suit at the time because I thought everything would be all right, but I have had to have three operations on the leg and I still do not have full use of it. Can I sue the driver of the car now? F. T.

POLISH RIVALS' DISPUTE NEARS EXPLOSION POINT

Reconciliation Seen as Impossible.

LONDON, Oct. 1 (AP).—The dynamite laden struggle between Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's exiled Polish government in London and the rival soviet-sponsored National Committee of Liberation in Moscow for political control of Poland approached the exploding point today in a controversy which may breed civil war within the unhappy land.

Mikolajczyk's bid for friendship of the committee and Russia thru replacement of Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski as commander in chief of Polish forces by Gen. Tadeusz [Bor] Komorowski drew such a violent reaction in Moscow—apparently with Stalin's approval—that it virtually eliminated any hopes of effecting a reconciliation between the rival political groups.

Edward B. Osubka-Morawski, president of the Moscow committee, in a press conference in the Russian capital expressed determination to bring to criminal trial those in the London government responsible for the untimely Warsaw uprising.

Denounces Gen. Bor.

He denounced Bor-Komorowski, leader of the Warsaw fighting, as a criminal and said the London government was "crazy" for appointing him commander in chief.

London Poles, officially silent on the committee president's blast pending a cabinet consultation, frankly were stunned by its ramifications. Nor were they alone in their astonishment, for it raised diplomatic implications far more important than the denunciation of individuals.

The Moscow Polish liberation committee has been regarded in London as a creation of Russia with its power derived from the Red army and its words reflecting the views of the Kremlin.

Rebuff to Britain.

Thus Morawski's statement on the latest peace move was deemed a Russian rebuff not only for the London Poles but also for Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who have been the prime movers in urging upon Premier Mikolajczyk and President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz the necessity for sacrificing Gen. Sosnkowski in the interest of accord.

As a result, it may turn the question of Anglo-soviet-Polish relations, even now so delicate Churchill cautioned commons last Thursday against discussions which might lead to greater misunderstandings, into a serious rift in allied relations.

Disrupting Factor.

It can be said without qualification that the question of Poland's future has been a factor in cool exchanges between Eden and Soviet Ambassador Fyodor Gusev in the past and was a major reason for the foreign secretary's sudden departure for Quebec to urge a firmer hand and a clearer understanding in dealing with Russia.

Meanwhile, it was understood in London that both Churchill and President Roosevelt, the latter thru Ambassador John G. Winant, have assured Mikolajczyk of support of the London Polish government thru thick and thin, regardless of soviet backing of the rival group.

Assail London Regime.

MOSCOW, Oct. 1 (AP).—Controversy between Polish leaders in Russia and Britain reached a new peak of bitterness today with the soviet-backed Committee of National Liberation determined to bring to criminal trial those in the London exile government it held responsible for Warsaw's tragic uprising.

The committee's unbending attitude was indorsed today in an editorial in the soviet newspaper, Pravda, which said:

"The crisis of the emigre government is a crisis of all Poles. London is separated from the Polish people and the living Poland. The crisis is too profound to be solved by some changes in personnel.

"On the contrary, these changes will aggravate the internal struggle going on in the camp of these political failures."

Regardless of Poland's political troubles, the committee was making appeals for relief and supplies from the soviet union and the allies, principally the United States.

DAY by DAY on the FARM — by BEN MARKLAND

Oct. 1, 1944.

AUTUMN usually doesn't penetrate into the minds of city residents until the sugar maples on street parkways start flaunting their brilliant yellow leaves, but on middle western farms there already are many colorful signs of the new season.

When we hiked over the Wheaton farm the other day we found autumnal color of many hues and in many places. The Virginia creeper vine covers a 40 foot tree skeleton with its dusty red leaves; the shagbark hickory trees, despite their unkempt trunks and decrepit foliage, provide splotches of tawny yellow on the October landscape.

White ash trees, common in the farm woodlots, can't decide upon an autumn leaf color. Along the farm roads and at the edges of the woodlots, where they get their fair share of sunlight, they wear a distinctive rose-purple hue, but in the deep woodlots, shaded by giant oaks, the ash leaves turn to a subdued yellow.

Artichokes Brighten Scene.

The adjective "subdued" certainly doesn't fit the yellow of the Jerusalem artichokes. A row of cultivated artichokes in one of the farm gardens is topped by bright yellow flowers the shade of polished lemons, and the wild Jerusalem artichokes alongside the farm roads are almost as brilliant.

Even in the depths of woodlots, there are colors to suit any mood. A flash of red under some oak leaves is produced by the shiny cap of a Russula mushroom, and a streak of brown results from the flight of a thrasher into a clump of hawthorns. As we approach the pond, a snow white American egret ceases poking its long bill into the shore mud to fly to the next pond, where it will find solitude.

Autumn Bouquet Hint.

On the gravel road leading to the south woods, we stop to see the bright orange clusters of bittersweet supported on the wire fence, and in the woodlot we find another wild fruit used for dry winter bouquets. It's the purple smilax, which produces tight berry clusters the color of Concord grapes.

Bittersweet, when it can be cut without destroying the vine growth, combines excellently with smilax in bouquets to maintain a touch of autumn in winter rooms.

★ The GARDEN ★

THE COMPOST PIT, as contrasted with the compost pile, provides an efficient receptacle for vegetable refuse. However, one disadvantage of using a pit, rather than an inclosure on ground level, is that after the vegetation has decayed the job of transferring it to the garden is complicated.

A pit about three feet wide, five feet long, and 18 inches deep will hold most of the grass clippings, fallen leaves, and vegetable refuse from the average sized garden and city lot. If the clay at the bottom of such a pit is very heavy, it should be dug a foot deeper and the bottom filled with sand or gravel to increase drainage and prevent flooding.

The matter in the pit should be kept level so that rain water will pass evenly thru it to insure decay of all the vegetation. Light applications of poultry or animal manure will hasten the decaying process and enrich the compost.

WINS MEDAL OF HONOR ON FIRST DAY IN BATTLE

Sgt. John C. Squires.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—The first day of battle for an 18 year old infantry man, now dead, won him the congressional medal of honor. Sgt. John Charles Squires of Louisville, Ky., died in action on the Anzio beachhead a month after his first engagement without knowing that his gallantry would win him the nation's highest military decoration. The war department announced the award today.

Squires was a member of the 30th infantry regiment, 3d division, when his outfit was assigned on April 23 to clear the enemy out of a pass north of Padiglione, Italy. Squires volunteered to go to an advanced unit to see how it was making out. He got the information and then rounded up a group of stragglers and led them into action as a squad.

Squires made a series of single handed forays beyond the American outposts and captured 13 enemy machine guns and 21 Germans. When the Germans started a counter-attack the following night, Squires used both a captured machine gun and some German grenades to kill three Germans and wound a number of others.

REVEAL 31 TON TANK BUSTER; RANGE 9 MILES

New York, Oct. 1 (AP).—A 31 ton major-caliber tank destroyer, battle tested in Brittany where it knocked out both German Mark V. and Mark VI. tanks, is being produced in the Schenectady, N. Y., plant of the American Locomotive company, it was disclosed today.

The new weapon, known as the M-36, was described as one of the fastest in the world by Col. Frank J. Atwood, chief of the Rochester ordnance district. Its principal weapon is a 90 mm. gun whose 24 pound armor-piercing projectiles can rip thru several inches of armor. The gun has a range of approximately nine miles.

TO AMERICAN WOMEN ASKING—

"Will Defeat of Germany Lessen the Need for Saving Used Fats?"

—THE GOVERNMENT ANSWERS "NO!"

LEE MARSHALL

ON THE contrary, Mrs. America, the need for saving your used cooking fats will be as great or greater than ever.

Victory over Germany still leaves the Japs in possession of the Dutch East Indies, the Philippines and Malaya — countries from which we formerly imported about one billion pounds of fats and oils each year.

Even victory over Japan will not ease the situation immediately. Not for a year or more can these areas be brought back to pre-war production levels.

In the meantime, the need for your used fats will be as acute as ever for these reasons:

1 Even after European victory, we still have Japan to beat. Vast supplies of ammunition, medicines, parachutes, rubber boats, soaps and other battlefield essentials must keep on going to our fighting men in a steady stream. These all require fats to make.

2 We must help in the rehabilitation of liberated countries, such as Greece, Norway and the Netherlands, with medicines, machinery, etc.

3 Many factories now producing for war will turn to manufacturing the civilian goods we need so urgently. These factories will consume vast quantities of industrial fats.

American farmers are doing everything possible to build up domestic production of fats and oils. But during the next 12 months, because of a smaller hog kill and reduced yields of some oil-seed crops, we expect approximately a billion-and-a-third pounds less of fats will be produced.

Need Greater Than Ever

Therefore, more than ever, salvaging used cooking fats is an important resource on which the country must continue to lean in order to tide us over.

Saving used fats is not a glamorous task. It takes effort. But it is one that only you, the American housewife, can perform for the country. We ask you to continue the wonderful job you are doing to help speed final Victory.

Lee Marshall

U. S. ARMY GIVES UP FOURTH AIR FIELD IN CHINA

Base at Tanchuk First Destroyed by Yanks.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 1 (AP).—The Japanese offensive that swept thru Hunan and on south thru Kwangsi province has driven the American air forces from a fourth base, Gen. Stilwell's headquarters admitted today.

The advance base at Tanchuk was "evacuated and destroyed several days ago," it was announced, in advance of Japanese who cut thru the southern part of Kwangsi province. Tanchuk is 47 miles west of Wuchow, Kwangsi river port. Both fell in a lightning enemy drive.

Despite the loss of this base, the 14th air force struck repeatedly with fighters and fighter bombers at Japanese forces in Kwangsi province.

No New Jap Gains.

Maj. Gen. Chennault's air forces previously had been forced from bases at Hengyang and Lingling in Hunan province and Kweilin, in Kwangsi.

While the Japanese still are at least 30 miles from Kweilin, provisional Kwangsi capital, outflanking thrusts to the south, as well as the frontal menace, prompted the air forces to relinquish their base there.

The Chinese high command reported no further Japanese gains in the enemy drive on Kweilin, but reported street fighting still raged in Paoching, 140 miles north.

From the base at Paoching the Chinese have been harassing the right flank of the Japanese drive on Kweilin.

Planes Sink 28,800 Tons.

A bulletin from Gen. Stilwell's headquarters said:

"Following up the all-time record sinking of Japanese shipping for the month, bombers of the 14th A. A. F. during the week of Sept. 21-27 sank 28,800 tons of ocean going vessels, probably sank 1,700 tons more, and damaged 4,300 tons.

"In addition aircraft of the 14th A. A. F. and Maj. Gen. Chennault's Chinese American wing destroyed 57 other vessels of less than 100 feet in length, probably sank a tug and river gunboat, and damaged 231 miscellaneous vessels, largely river shipping."

130 STRIKERS TO RETURN TO JOBS AT DODGE

The 130 workers who staged a sit-down strike Saturday afternoon in protest against promotion of a worker to foreman in the assembly line of the crank shaft department of the Dodge-Chicago plant will return to their jobs this morning, Henry F. Tough, president of local 274 of the United Auto Workers' union [CIO], said yesterday. The men, engaged in the production of engines for the army's Super-Fortress bomber, were ordered from the plant by guards after refusing to work. Yesterday the local met at the Skyline Athletic club, 188 W. Randolph st., to discuss new terms of a contract which expires Nov. 1.

10th Grandchild Born to Rep. Dewey—It's a Boy

Rep. Charles S. Dewey [R., Ill.] gained a new constituent Saturday night, whom he confidently expects to vote for him in 1965. The future voter is a grandson, born to Lt. and Mrs. Edward Byron Smith in Washington, D. C. The representative was informed of the new arrival by his wife who was with her daughter, the former Louise Dewey. Lt. Smith, who is with the navy finance department, is the son of Solomon A. Smith, Chicago banker. The baby is the Deweys' 10th grandchild, and the fourth born since the war.

DON'T HAVE FIRES WHEN IT'S WARM, BUREAU URGES

In an effort to reduce fuel consumption at the beginning and close of the 1944-45 heating season, the solid fuels administration for war yesterday urged householders to delay continuous furnace fires in their homes until they become necessary.

J. C. Fitzpatrick, area distribution manager of the SFAW, said the request has been made necessary by the fact that the mines cannot meet war expanded coal requirements and as a result householders will receive only 90 per cent of their usual shipments of southern Appalachian coals and seven-eighths of the normal anthracite tonnages this year.

The weather bureau has been asked to notify SFAW officials when weather conditions indicate average temperatures which will require continuous heating. This day has been designated F-day and householders are asked to wait until it has been announced before keeping continuous fires.

Argentina's Largest Oil Tanker Wrecked by Fire

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 1 (AP).—A fire aboard the 13,000 ton San Blas, largest tanker in the Argentine merchant fleet, burned itself out today after four days, leaving the vessel a total loss. Nine of the crew of 64 perished.

Coast Guard Vet, 15, Leaves for Honorable Discharge

Gerald Haddon, 15, who spent eight months in the coast guard and participated in 13 landings on Normandy beachheads before his age was discovered and he was sent home, left yesterday for Washington, D. C., where he is expected to receive an honorable discharge. He has been spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Haddon, 4150 Harrison st.

"COVERING ARMY CAMPS AND SHIPYARDS PILES UP BIG MILEAGE FAST...

"Sure glad I've got a FORD!"

"ON THE ROAD NEARLY ALL THE TIME, my work for the armed services takes me over most of two states. And I have to be on schedule without fail. My 1940 Ford Sedan has carried me, reliably and comfortably, more than a third of a million miles."

"REPAIR COSTS HAVE BEEN NEGLIGIBLE—only one major overhauling in the whole four years I've driven this car, and that was after it had gone 230,000 miles! Naturally I'm an enthusiastic booster for Ford cars. I've owned three of them."

"MY CAR GETS THE BEST OF SERVICE REGULARLY, of course. Being a lubrication specialist, I know what neglect can do to any car. With Ford Protective Service I feel sure my car is good for another 200,000 miles before I'll want a new one."

says A. A. WREN,
Lubrication Specialist
Columbia, South Carolina

Millions of Americans can tell you how reliably and economically their Ford cars have carried them through thick and thin. When new cars can be built and bought freely again, your choice of a new Ford car will be backed by evidence you can verify for yourself on any street or highway in the nation. It will be your positive assurance that the smart style, lively performance, and comfort of your new Ford will be matched by enduring thrift and rugged stamina.

Ford

NEWS NOTES—The Ford airport adjoining the Willow Run airplane plant, covers more than 1,400 acres and has six runways 160 feet wide, ranging from 4,970 to 6,250 feet long. The runways would make a two-lane concrete highway 22 miles long.

CHICAGOANS ON WAY TO PELELIU ORGANIZE A CLUB

Pick Chairman Because He Gets Drunk.

EN ROUTE TO PELELIU, Palau Islands [Delayed].—The Chicago club on this transport held its last party tonight, livened with reminiscences of the Windy City, and sobered toward the end with the thought that this was the last meeting. Tomorrow the club will establish a Peleliu chapter.

Sparkplug of the organization was Yeoman James McGuire, 24, of 708 W. Briar pl., whose brother, Joseph, is bailiff for Municipal Judge Jacob Braude. Jim was elected chairman because he could get soft drinks.

Brothers Find Old Friend.

Lt. Alexander H. Davis, 38, of 5725 Blackstone av., a navy doctor who used to be on the staff of St. Luke's, Chicago Memorial, and Children's Memorial hospitals, and Lt. [j. g.] Vincent Nels, 32, of 5717 Emerald av., Catholic chaplain, occasionally dropped by for the nightly debates.

Marine Private Leonard C. Reed, 24, and his brother, Corp. Roy S., 22, of 211 Woodlawn av., Hubbard Woods, both veterans of Guadalcanal and Cape Gloucester, found an old friend, Yeoman Charles B. Grayling, 21, who used to live in Evanston and attended New Trier High school with them.

Guadalcanal Veterans.

Two other veterans of Guadalcanal and Cape Gloucester at the meetings were Sgt. Ralph Burch, 27, of 3933 Drexel blvd., who used to work in the accounting department of the Chicago Times, and Sgt. Albert W. Sue, 29, of 928 Ridgeland av., Waukegan, who hasn't seen his wife, Mary, and his children, Albert Jr., 5, and Suzanne, 4, for more than two years.

Two other members of the ship's company rounded out the group. They were Seaman John Larkin, 21, of 3577 Lyndale av., Chicago, and Pharmacist's Mate Donald Tolberg, 24, of 2014 14th st., Moline.

Instead of saying good-bys, the men took each other's addresses and vowed to meet again in Chicago, 9,000 miles away.

ROCK ISLAND'S BARBER SHOP QUARTET WINS

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 1 (AP).—The Chordoliers of Rock Island, singing "Dear Old Girl," today won the State Barber Shop Quartet contest before 1,500 persons in Bloomington's consistory auditorium. The Rock Island foursome, competing against a field of eight finalist quartets, took the judges' decision over the Sangamo Electric Four of Springfield, second place winners, and the Bell-Howell group of Chicago, which placed third.

Members of the championship quartet are Louis P. J. Coopmans, lead; Harold Gray, tenor; John Gustafson, baritone, and Walter E. Chambers, bass.

ASPHYXIATED MAKING COFFEE.

Peter Erechnir, 67, was found dead, apparently of asphyxiation, in his attic apartment at 9130 Woodlawn av. yesterday. Police believe Erechnir fell asleep while making coffee that boiled over and extinguished a gas burner.

Little Queen Mary

Mary Patricia Lynch, 5, of 6250 N. Bell av., yesterday posed for her photograph with the same smile she used for the one on the Liberator bomber flown by her father, Lt. Philip A. Lynch, in more than 50 missions in the South Pacific.

Altho other planes in the same formation frequently have been damaged by anti-aircraft fire, Lt. Lynch's plane has come thru all its missions unscathed, and both he and the crew credit their good luck to Mary's picture, which is affixed to the fuselage, giving the plane its name, "Little Queen Mary."

The crew includes T/Sgt. Richard A. Zavislak, 3205 S. 52d st., Cicero.

WALLET AND $30 STOLEN.

Martin Grandin, 1901 S. Racine av., reported to police yesterday that his wallet containing $50 was stolen while he was in a restaurant at 726 S. State st.

W-G-N Will Broadcast Warren Speech Tonight

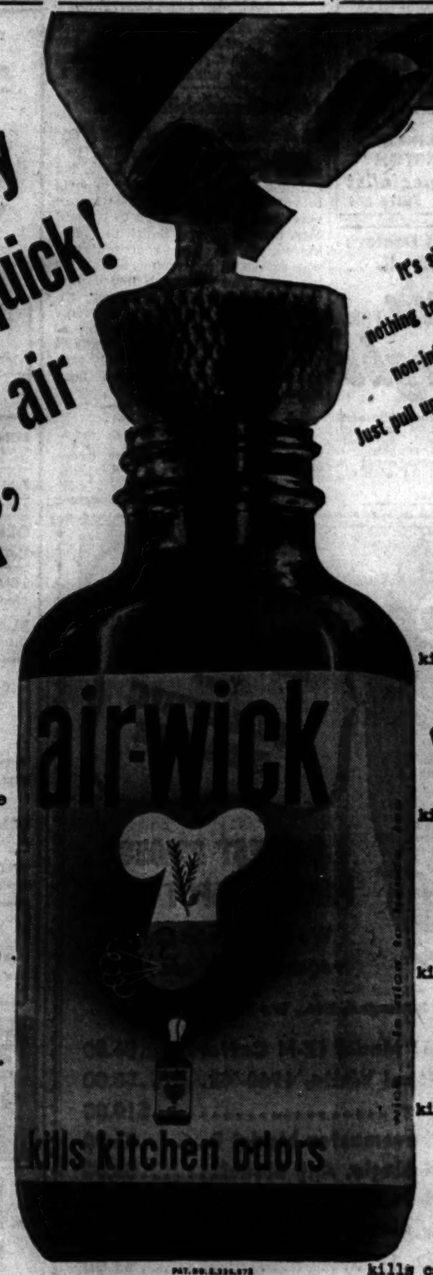
Read the chapter, "What we know about infantile paralysis," in the 94-page book, "How to Keep Well." Vol. II, by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, Tribune health editor. On sale at Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 S. Dearborn St., and Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan Ave. Price, 25 cents. By postpaid mail, 30 cents.

great new discovery kills kitchen odors quick! makes indoor air "country-fresh"



It's simple! nothing to light... non-inflammable... just pull up wick kills garlic odors

kills fish odors
kills onion odors kills cabbage odors kills cauliflower odors
kills frying odors

Now science offers you an easy, miraculous way to make kitchen air country-fresh! Just use *air-wick whenever you cook onions, broccoli, cabbage, fish, bacon or any other foods that produce unpleasant cooking odors.

air-wick contains activated chlorophyll — the substance found in its natural state in grass, trees and growing greenery. All you have to do is unscrew the cap and pull up the wick. air-wick eliminates all disagreeable odors quickly.

Use air-wick all over the house. Use it to kill bathroom, smoking and other unpleasant odors... to keep your closets "fresh". Use it freely, you can afford to...for air-wick costs only a cent or so a day to use. Try it now! you'll be amazed! For sale at groceries, drug, variety, hardware, chain and department stores.

*air-wick deodorizer and household freshener is fully protected by U.S. patent. air-wick is a trademark of Seeman Brothers, Inc., New York 13, N.Y., distributors.

There is only one air-wick. Remember air-wick is the only household product of its kind that contains activated chlorophyll

Moving Vans Will Roll for Chicago Folk

BY JUDITH CASS.

MOVING vans won't be as busy as usual during this traditional period of residence changes, but despite the housing and apartment shortage, a number of families are moving from one home to another. A long range change is being made by Mrs. Errett Van Nice, who with her children left last week for Washington, D. C., to join Lt. Comdr. Van Nice. Their furniture is following them.

Having returned from spending the summer in Manitowoc, Wis., the Edward V. Piatts and their three children are busy getting settled in the house which they bought in Astor st.

Also busy settling in new apartments are Dr. and Mrs. Paul H. Holinger and the Richard Douglas Nugents, who will share the same address in Lake Shore drive. The G. Lyle Fischers and the Samuel Pirie Carsons are others involved in changing residences. The Fischers have bought the Carson home in Washington st., Glencoe, and the Carsons are moving to Hubbard Woods, where they have bought the Arthur Lyttons' home.

Mrs. Horace H. Newcomet became a Lake Forest resident for the duration when the Scott st. apartment building in which she lived was sold. She is living with her daughter, Mrs. J. Beach Clow, while Lt. Clow is overseas with the navy.

The Arthur Mouldings now have as Winnetka neighbors, Mr. Moulding's sister and brother and their families. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Moulding Jr., recently bought a house next to the Arthur Mouldings'. Their sister, Mrs. Henry A. Ramsey Jr., has brought her two children back to Winnetka, where they have bought a home, now that Mr. Ramsey is stationed in Texas with the air transport command. Until recently Mr. Ramsey was a civilian instructor with the air forces in Albany, Ga.

Mrs. Ralph Isham has sold her Montecito, Cal., estate, Pompeiian Court, to Mr. and Mrs. Luther Greene, who will move in about the middle of October. The grounds include a court, a tile fountain, and Mrs. Isham's famous rose garden.

Our Today's Calendar.

The Selwyn theater will be the destination of Chicago's first nighters when the long heralded "Voice of the Turtle" opens tonight with Hugh Marlowe, K. T. Stevens, daughter of Sam Wood, and Betty Lawford. Maj. and Mrs. Robert A. Cavenaugh, Comdr. and Mrs. Eugene F. McDonald Jr., the John Colemans, Mrs. Leo P. Cummings, Miss Helen Gurley, Miss Margaret Conover, the Frank Beringa, Charles H. Schwab II., the Charles Herendeens, the Gilbert H. Scribners, Boardman Conover, and the Philip H. Reddys are some of those who will be in the audience. The play's producer, Alfred de Liagre Jr., has come from New York for the occasion and will be seeing some of his old Yale friends.

Mrs. Walter R. Howell, chairman of the annual Misericordia benefit planned for Nov. 5, will entertain her committee at luncheon today in her south side home. Vice chairman for the benefit, which will be a Sunday breakfast at the Stevens hotel, is Mrs. Michael F. McGuire, and the subcommittees are headed by Miss Julia Hursen, Mrs. William H. Lyman, Mrs. Edward J. Quinn, Mrs. D. Claude Luce, and Mrs. James B. McCahey. Mrs. Grey Sullivan is president of the Misericordia board, which supports the Misericordia hospital and infants' home.

Furs will be the theme of the second in the series of amateur models contests at the Key club today, with Mrs. David L. Chambers Jr., Mrs. Graham Fairbank, Mrs. Daniel Kennedy, Mrs. Daniel H. Lavezzo Jr., Mrs. Alan H. Schroeder, and Mrs. E. Stewart Skidmore as mannequins.

The board of the Kenilworth center of the Infant Welfare society will meet today in the home of Mrs. Albert Belshé of Winnetka to vote on new members. On Oct. 10 the center will hold an all day business and sewing meeting in the Kenilworth Union church to discuss how to meet the growing demand for its Jack and Jill handmade children's garments.

"Where Russia Stands" will be discussed by David Nichol, foreign correspondent, speaking before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at 12:15 p. m. today in the Grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel.

Engagements Announced.

At a luncheon Saturday in the Homestead in Evanston, Mrs. John Boyd Rodgers of Evanston, formerly of Glencoe, announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth June Stuart, to Tech. Sgt. John Boyd Rodgers Jr. of Pittsburgh, Pa. Miss Stuart met her fiancé a year and one-half ago when her mother and Sgt. Rodgers' father were married.

Miss Stuart, whose father is William R. Stuart of Evanston, was graduated in March from Northwestern university and now is working for her master's degree. Sgt. Rodgers, who attended the University of Pittsburgh, has been on duty in the South Pacific since February.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thoss of Lunt av. have announced the engagement of their daughter, Georgette, to Lt. [j. g.] John G. Ermatinger of the naval reserve, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Ermatinger of Rochester, N. Y. The announcement was made at a recent party given in the home of Lt. Ermatinger's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Smith of Rochester, N. Y., while Miss Thoss was visiting in the east. The wedding will take place Oct. 21 in Chicago.

Engagement Is Announced

Miss Joan Falcon Rothwell's engagement to Edward Albert Mortimer Jr. of the naval reserve, son of Mrs. Donald Clow MacKay of Beverly Hills and of Mr. Mortimer of Chicago, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cyril Rothwell of New York and Westhampton Beach, N. Y. Miss Rothwell, a graduate of Dana Hall and Smith college, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. MacKay. Mr. Mortimer, a graduate of Dartmouth, attended its medical school and now is a student at Northwestern university's medical school. [David Berns Photo.]

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

O, What a Beautiful Evening.

From Stephanie Nagurski comes the story of the four white collar girls who stayed downtown for dinner and went to see "Oklahoma!" After the show—this being their night of frivolity—they decided to treat themselves to a taxicab. Headed north they were chatting gaily among themselves when the driver stopped to pick up two men passengers going in the same direction. The thrill of "Oklahoma!" was still hovering over the girls. They raved about the play, the "gorgeous" male lead, and how they could go for him. Their talk ended in snatches of "O, What a Beautiful Morning!" With that, one of the heretofore unobtrusive male passengers burst out: "Don't sing that—I sing it every night!" The girls stared in the darkness, but the cab driver came to the rescue and switched on the light. Sure enough—it was John Raitt, the male lead.

Suggestion Dept.

For the last 22 years I have been secretary to a busy purchasing agent and now, as a war time measure, am acting as his assistant. Perhaps beginners in the business world could use these suggestions:

Do not depend on your memory. Keep a pad of paper at hand to note down telephone calls, requests for files, requests for errands to be run and similar memoranda.

Put a date on everything you type—including the year.

Confirm by letter all telephone conversations with people with whom your experience has been that they have convenient memories—that is—those who forget something it is advantageous for them to forget. HELEN L. B.

Opposites.

It's funny no one has thought of it as yet: In some places when you go to the shopping district you go uptown; in others you go downtown. SIS.

Feminine Firsts.

The first woman licensed parachute rigger outside of the military services to come to light is Virginia Wammack. She was the only woman taking the course at the Birmingham, Ala., Parachute Service school. Is there another? . . . Mildred Bruder of the Chicago public library goes in as first vice president of the Publicity Club of Chicago today—the first feminine member to hold such a high office. . . . One of the earliest American advertisers of household wares was Elizabeth Franklin, sister-in-law of Benjamin Franklin. . . . The first publication of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women in July, 1919, was called appropriately, "Can Happen."

Tonight.

I know that I'll soon forget you—
Perhaps in a month or so—
I'm sure I'll laugh at the heartache
I've known since I let you go.

In a month I'll think nicely of Susie,
Of Barbara, Mildred, or Lee,
Or whatever the name of the girl was
Who took you away from me.

I'll even forget how I'd kiss you—
And smile at each broken vow,
(But tonight, my darling, I miss you, 'Cause it isn't a month from now!)

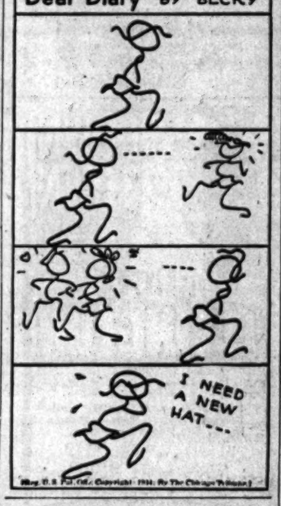
Dear Diary BY BECKY



Crowds Drawn by Sparkle of Ballet Russe

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Ballet is booming at the Civic Opera house, and it should be, because in spite of casting handicaps and the lack of a completely authoritative ballet conductor [as specialized in his field as the symphonic or operatic conductor] the Ballet Russe is staging some scintillant shows. Your true balletomane, who is both easier and harder to please than the casual customer, misses certain fine points possible only to the grand style, and rues the disappearance from some of the older ballets of little touches that add up to finesse. But the performances are fresh, young, and gay, the dancers are attractive, and the public in increasing numbers has succumbed to the balletic renaissance.

And always there is Danilova. How she shines! What splendor of style, what magnificence of mime, what heady languor, and yet what gayety shower the stage when she enters. Yesterday she appeared only at the matinée, which made you sympathize with the luckless souls who chose the evening performance. The golden highlight in Balanchine's gleaming "Dances Concertantes," the exquisite glove seller of Massine's bubbling "Gaité Parisienne"—her dancing taxed the vocabulary of those who tried to do her honor. It was a relief to hear a small boy sum up the whole business, a youngster who, galvanized by her entrance into "Gaité's" whirling cancan, uttered an awestruck, "Ooh! Can she do it!"

She can, and I feel exactly the same way about it. But she wasn't the whole show, tho she was its peak. Leon Danielian and Nathalia Krassovska revived Nijinska's tender "Snow Maiden" and did it beautifully, with Mary Ellen Moylan of the limpid arabesques lovely to look at, but somehow not quite believable as the goddess of the Russian spring, who brings joy to the people and death to the alien maiden unable to bear the sun of love. How about using that Irish imagination, Miss Moylan? Danielian is using his brand, which dips back into ancestral Armenia. He understands the meaning of "Snow Maiden," and his "Bluebird" begins to look like one of the company's best drawing cards. Krassovska's performance is charming, but his has much of the ardent brilliance that made Lichine an all too short-lived idol.

With all this youth floating about—and considering the altitude that is the right word—what the company needs is a character dancer or two, particularly since Yazvinsky quit. It was lucky to get Lazowski from Ballet Theater, where he won fame with "Russian Soldier." He is one of the most distinguished dancers in the troupe, a Polish dancing actor in the tradition of Woicikowski and Shabelevsky. His Peruvian in "Gaité" is the best since Massine's own, and his slave in "Schéhérazade" has the quality of quivering, almost molten incandescence to dominate a once glowing ballet now deteriorated into lurid melodrama.

A perfect performance of Balanchine's lovely "Serenade" is probably too much to expect in a fallible world, considering the blend of the symmetrical, the lyrical, and the emotional he has poured into Tschaikowsky's throbbing serenade for strings. Last night's was effective, despite some sorry flaws. Moderately effective, too, was Fokine's rustic jest, "Igrouchki," interpolated with Razoumova and Goudovitch when "Cuckold's Fair" was withdrawn.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Miss Adrienne Stokes of Chicago and Mrs. Alfred H. Taylor of Glencoe are among 22 women who have been named to a special advisory committee to confer with the WAC about the welfare of army women. Mrs. Oswald B. Lord of New York is chairman.

Committee members are specialists in women's interests and represent the fields of business, clubs, and religion. The first session was held in Washington, D. C., last week, with Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, national director of the WAC, presiding. Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, was the principal speaker.

Over the week-end a subcommittee of nine visited the WAC training centers at Fort Des Moines, Ia., and Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

Col. Chester L. Fordney, director of the central division of the marine corps, will address the Navy Mothers' club of Chicago at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Medinah club, on the subject, "Men and Mothers."

Following Col. Fordney's talk, two marines recently returned from the Pacific theater, Staff Sgt. Ralph A. Peck, a combat correspondent, and Platoon Sgt. Michael Greco, will be interviewed.

Others invited by Mrs. C. Ashley Deneen, president, to be guests of the club this evening include Mrs. Fordney, Maj. Oscar B. Kaufman, marine rehabilitation officer at the Great Lakes Naval Training center, and Mrs. Kaufman; Capt. Arthur A. Engel, public relations officer for the central division, and Lt. Helen U. Fitch, assistant to Col. Fordney.

Post No. 12 of the WOW, whose members are women ordnance workers at the Mills Industries, Inc., has collected $2,000 from employes at the company's three plants to buy Christmas gifts for all Mills personnel now in service.

The WOWs are buying the articles, wrapping them, packing them in boxes, and sending them out in assembly line style at the main plant, 4100 Fullerton av.

The post's contribution to the national WOW Seeing Eye dog project, part of the organization's postwar rehabilitation program, was $750, sufficient to provide five guide dogs for blinded veterans and war workers.

Officers of post 12 are Violet Kropke, president; Catherine Olsen, Harriet Zara, and Gertrude Harmatys, vice presidents; Lu Pribel, secretary, and Genevieve Smith, treasurer.

Margaret Elizabeth Olson, 910 William st., River Forest, has arrived in India to be an American Red Cross staff assistant, headquarters of the organization in Washington, D. C., has announced.

Until her Red Cross appointment, Miss Olson, a graduate of Trinity High school in the suburb, was a service representative for the Illinois Bell Telephone company. She attended Mundelein college, the University of Illinois, the Berlitz School of Languages, and the Austin Conservatory of Music.

10,000 Volunteers to Sell Tags Today for Benefit League

Money collected by more than 10,000 volunteer taggers, who will appear on streets of Chicago today on behalf of the Chicago Children's Benefit league, will be allocated to 50 children's charities, each of which is endorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

This is the league's 37th annual tag day. The league hopes to raise $110,000.

Opera Troupe Turns Up Able Young Singers

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

The performances which some half dozen small opera companies give during the season at the Eighth Street theater—usually, as last night, to capacity audiences—can be, and sometimes are, valuable as proving grounds for young talent.

Last night "Cavalleria Rusticana" was presented by the Universal Opera company, and some exceedingly promising young singing talent should be the gainer thereby. ["I Pagliacci" was also paired with its inseparable, but a half hour late start and lagging tempi made it impossible for this reporter to hear so much as the Prologue.]

Talent does not always develop in a straight line, and prophecy is risky, but at least three of the members of this cast seem to be of the clay of which stars are molded. Eleanor Lutton, the Santuzza, is a pretty girl, with a voice of a power out of all proportion to her slender figure. She has an instinctive feeling for the dramatic, too, but she must be cautious not to use her voice too prodigally.

Roberta Holmer was an equally attractive Lola, at home on the stage, with a free and velvety contralto voice. And Algerd Brazis, the Alfio, continues to make gratifying strides in the use of his resonant baritone. There was also a much better than average tenor, David Johnson, with a ringing upper voice, and a Mama Lucia, in Vera Jeske, with an excellent voice, but who went to the wrong school of acting. And add to the credits a large and well trained chorus and a good orchestra.

On the debit side, in very red ink, there was a conductor with a wandering beat that never settled down until the orchestra or the principals had taken the lead and that even with this assistance had difficulty in hitting the right tempi.

Thirteen years are not many for arms, legs and fingers to grow into the feat of manipulating the huge Kimball hall organ, but Master Richard Sheehan negotiated the trick yesterday afternoon not only successfully but now and again brilliantly. It was David and Goliath on a small scale, and if this sport-shirted David did not completely knock out the giant he at least effectively subdued him.

Musical precocity usually runs to easier instruments than the organ, and therefore along with talent Master Sheehan must also be credited with seriousness. He has manual and pedal facility and a nice feeling for the lyric line, as in Guilmant's "Berceuse" and Bonnet's "Romance Sans Paroles." He has not yet altogether mastered the trick of changing registration without visible and aural demonstration of the incident, and often his choice of registers is too abruptly contrasted for the best musical purposes. He has a sturdy sense of rhythm and was at his best when he could cut loose in the bravura of Lemmens' "Fanfare" and Yon's "Hymn of Glory."

The real touchstones of the recital were the two Bach pieces, and here the results were indeterminate. The D minor Toccata promised well, but bogged down with a fugue of weary tempo and no climax. And the mystic properties of the "Cathedral" prelude and fugue turned out to be well in advance of Master Sheehan's present musical understanding.

Stage Notes

Starting today, "Over Twenty-One" is selling all tickets up to and including Nov. 4 at the Harris box office. . . . Three more changes have been made in the "Kiss and Tell" Studebaker cast. Donald McClelland has been replaced by Walter Monroe as the belligerent Mr. Pringle in order to take over the navy blue of Uncle George, and Eva Parnell has stepped in the role of Dexter's mother, formerly played by Marion Leeds. . . . Gertrude Niesen is now starred in New York's "Follow the Girls," and Ethel Merman has withdrawn from the rehearsing musical version of "Rain," known as "Sadie Thompson."

Movie 'Storm Over Lisbon' Is Good Spy Tale

"STORM OVER LISBON."
A Republic picture, directed by George Sherman, with Vera Hruba Ralston, Richard Arlen, Erich von Stroheim, and Otto Kruger. Presented at the Oriental.

E. Phillips Oppenheim did not write "Storm Over Lisbon," but he might have—it's that kind of story. Secret agents to the right, secret agents to the left, onward into the jaws of death—that sort of thing.

The obviously typed in every respect, this is, however, one of the better intrigue pictures. It is a bit light on mystery, but it will hold your interest, and the acting ranges from the pretty good to the not too bad.

There is a gayly continental night club in Lisbon—as there would be after "Casablanca"—and its sinister entrepreneur, Erich von Stroheim. There is the glacially beautiful Vera Hruba Ralston, who sings and dances and seemingly does other things at Von Stroheim's command, and Richard Arlen, the upstanding young American who bears a film revealing a military secret of overwhelming importance to the allied cause.

And there is Otto Kruger, the fear broken secret agent who has been at it too long, and is at the end of the road. [He doesn't travel the last mile, however, unt' he has given the best performance in the picture.]

You would be pretty naive not to have guessed by this time that Vera is really pro-allied, despite the fact that the shenanigans she goes thru to trap her employer involve Mr. Arlen in extreme difficulties. But when the last shot is fired it is Von Stroheim who is on the receiving end, the Clipper waits for Mr. Arlen and his precious film, and Miss Ralston has the satisfaction of duty done and a promise that he'll return—for her.—A. G.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 1.—Nobody here knows it's Jane Ball and not Mary Anderson who plays love scenes with Gregory Peck in "Keys of the Kingdom"—not even executives at 20th. But they'll find out when they see the premiere. Here's how it happened: When "Keys" was first made, the love scenes were considered mighty important because there were so few of them. Miss Ball from the New York stage made her screen debut in it as the girl. Then 20th decided she wasn't right and reshot all her scenes with Miss Anderson. Jane went into "Winged Victory" and did such a bang-up job 20th decided she was better than they'd realized. All the love scenes were shot again with Jane.

Here's the Dope on Hedda.

This is for my fans who have written in to ask when I was returning to the air waves. The answer is Monday nights over Columbia network. The show will contain a little bit of this and a little bit of that and a great deal about Hollywood personalities. . . . A pat on the back to Secretary of the Navy Forrestal for taking on Capt. Gene Markey and Lt. Comdr. Robert Montgomery as head men for the new office of motion picture activities. That's putting the right men in the right places. . . . Capt. Robert Hartzel of Chennault's Flying Tigers has signed with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It will seem mighty strange to him that after four years of shooting Japs he'll now be shooting words. In his spare time he writes passable poetry. Think you're going to like him. . . . Too bad Ward Bond can't play in "Valley of Decision."

Here's Hoping He's Right.

George Cukor is excited about "Winged Victory." In visiting various camps and air bases, he was struck by the scientific efficiency of the young men in charge. Said he, "Believe me, after this war, America will be a young man's country and don't let anybody tell you differently. How these kids can cram so much knowledge into so few years is something we in show business marvel at." I asked what his next would be and he said, "Metro told me to take it easy." . . . Abe Lyman let Bonita Granville sing and now she wants to become another Ethel Merman. . . . Charles Coburn has acted all his life, but says never was anything harder to learn than the names of Russian nobility in "The Czarina." Well, Mischa Auer should be able to help him—he was born in St. Petersburg. . . . Joan Woodbury, between pictures, operates a dancing school in Brentwood. She feels that in a small way she's helping curb juvenile delinquency. The pupils are from 8 up. When they're not dancing she takes them to art galleries. . . . The Jack Haleys and daughter, Gloria, are keeping kids off the streets, too. They've a soft drink bar with a band and everything. . . . David Hempstead says if fruit points keep going up bartenders will be chaining the cherry to the bottom of the glass when they serve an old fashioned.

An Agent Who Is an Agent.

Over at Paramount, they redecorated the executive offices, but skipped George Marshall's. As a gag he sent his agent in to Henry Ginsberg to negotiate a new paint job for his office. The agent not only got that but a private shower. That has Marshall swooning. . . . I knew it would happen. Somebody thinks the life of Aimee Semple McPherson should be put on the screen: . . . Sonny Tufts has moved into William Wilder's house, and tells me he loves his big front yard. Nobody can build in front of him, but said he, "in back I'm not sure. There are two acres back there, so I'm just going to buy them." "Why, two months ago you were living in one room in an auto court!" I said. He grinned and replied, "Isn't it wonderful!—I love Hollywood!"

'The Key' . . . . . By Patricia Wentworth

(Copyright: 1944: By Patricia Wentworth Trumbull.)

INSTALMENT XIII.
OUT OF CHARACTER.

Arrived at the rectory, Garth grasped Miss Sophy by the arm, took her into the drawing room, and shut the door.

"Look here," he said, "you remember last night?"

"My dear boy——"

"Well, it doesn't matter. The point is this. You sent me to get the snapshot of the Pincott girl's triplets out of your bureau drawer—the left hand top drawer."

"I don't see——"

"You will. Isn't that the drawer where you keep the church key?"

"O yes."

"Well, it wasn't there last night."

"My dear, it must have been."

"It wasn't."

"But my dear—it is always there except when Miss Brown is practicing, and last night——"

"She was playing the piano with her back to us—I know. And the key wasn't in the drawer. There was nothing there except a clip of bills and the snapshot."

Miss Sophy released herself, walked over to the bureau, and pulled out the small top drawer on the left. The clip of bills was there, the snapshot was there, and right on the top of Eliza and the triplets lay the fourth church key.

"It wasn't there last night, Aunt Sophy."

She said, "It must have been," but she looked disturbed.

"Aunt Sophy, look! If it had been there last night, I couldn't have helped seeing it. And if it had been there last night it wouldn't be on the top of the snapshot now—the snapshot would be on top. I had it out, and I put it back, and the key wasn't there. Some one has put it back since last night. That's the only way it could be on the top of the photograph. Don't you see?"

Something touched the blue of Miss Sophy's eyes. They didn't look blue any more, they looked frightened.

"There is some mistake, my dear. I think we won't talk about it any more."

Garth sat on the stile at the end of Prior's Wood and whistled, "Tell it to the soldier, tell it to the sailor, tell it to the lad from the marines."

Garth whistled because he didn't particularly want to think. He wanted to see Janice and hear what she had to say before he set his mind working upon such things as the glass on the rectory stair, the glass on Evan Madoc's shoe, and the odd behavior of Aunt Sophy's key. It was a relief when something moved behind the hedge on the far side of the field and a moment later Janice came into view at the stile. He jumped down and went to meet her. She had hurried a little, and there was color in her cheeks. The sun picked up the gold threads in the short brown curls. He thought again how little she had changed. The very bright eyes of no particular color—they could look gray, or brown, or green—the little brown pointed face, the short bright curls.

He laughed and said,

"You haven't grown a bit."

"Why should I have grown? Last time you saw me I was 19. People don't grow after they're 19."

"I did—I grew two inches."

"Well, I call that extravagant! You were six foot already—another two inches was just swank." Garth laughed. Then all of a sudden the past shut down. The old safe, easy world was gone—its rules, its pattern, its way of life. The violence which was shaking the world had reached out and shaken Bourne, for whether Michael Harsch had shot himself or had been murdered, he had most certainly died because an Austrian house painter aspired to an empire beyond the dreams of the Caesars. He said abruptly:

"I want to talk to you, Janice. Where shall we go—up over the downs?"

"Yes, if you like."

"Or we can stay here, if you don't want to get hot." Her color had failed, and he noticed how tired she looked—quite suddenly.

"Yes—I think so——"

They found a place where tumbled heaps of stone would screen them from the lane. Garth felt again how far away the past had gone.

"You look all in. What's the matter? Is it this Harsch business?"

She said, "Yes. I don't mean just because he's dead. Garth—he didn't shoot himself—I know he didn't."

"If you know anything, you ought to have said it at the inquest."

"Don't be stupid—facts aren't the only things you can know. You can know people—you can know a person so well that you can be quite sure he wouldn't do that sort of thing."

"Meaning it would be out of character for Harsch to have committed suicide?"

Her "yes" was very emphatic.

"But Janice, don't you see that when something pushes a man off his balance, that's just what he does do—he acts out of character. Normal motives and restraints cease to operate, and he does the last thing he would dream of doing if he were himself."

"He didn't do it, Garth."

"You're just being obstinate. You've got nothing to go on."

"But I have. You haven't listened to me yet. I want you to listen."

"All right—go ahead."

"Well then—it's 5 years since Mr. Harsch came over here. That's to say it's more than 5 years since his wife and daugher—died. That would have been the time to kill himself if he were going to do it. The Nazis had stripped him of everything. He hadn't anything left except his mind, and they couldn't touch that. If they didn't break it then, why should it break suddenly now? I don't care how dreadful a tragedy has been, it can't be quite the same after five years as it was at first. He told me himself that last day that in the beginning he kept going because he wanted punishment and revenge, and he thought this stuff he was working on would give it to him."

"Harschite—yes."

"You know about that?"

"Yes—that's why I'm here. Don't tell any one, Jan."

Sally Requests Some Linen for Needy Family

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A lack of sufficient household linen has become a serious problem for the C. family, a mother and six children. The mother has been seriously ill for the last year and is in need of constant medical care. This woman is confined to bed most of the time and frequent changes of bed linen are necessary. If any reader can provide sheets or pillow cases they would be very helpful. The address is on the south side.

Mrs. O. is also in need of bedding. Her husband is in the army and she is expecting a child in the near future. Because her health is poor she is unable to work to supplement her allowance. She would be grateful for bedding of any kind.

We hope that some of our readers can provide clothing for four children living in a small town near Chicago. Because of a serious accident the father will be incapacitated for a long time. The mother is doing her best to care for the children. If any reader can provide clothing for a 3 year old girl, an 11 year old boy, and two older girls, who both wear size 15, the mother would be very grateful. Because of the distance involved, it will be necessary to mail articles to the family.

We have plenty of onions, but very little sugar; quantities of non-rationed beef, but practically no butter. You can't live on onions and beef!

The canning season is ending with an acute sugar shortage. You may have plenty of sugar stamps, but your grocer will allow you only a pound or two of white sugar. If he has it, he'll be glad to make up the deficiency with brown or confectioners' sugar, and this is a help, but alas, the dribble of granulated sugar hardly shows in the canister!

Butter stocks are extremely low, too. Last week I met with a no-butter situation in a restaurant for the first time. The spread offered, a mixture of margarine and peanut butter, as far as I could determine, would have been better had it been frankly margarine.

But there are ways to ease the hardships caused by these shortages. One is to make use of substitutes. Honey, molasses, and other sirups, brown and confectioners' sugars give us a variety of sweetening for cooked foods. Margarines are fairly plentiful, and only two red points a pound. The modern margarine is a nutritious spread of excellent flavor and may be colored for the table so that the family will accept it readily. Old prejudices against the use of margarine have been largely wiped away as more families have discovered the fine quality of vitamin enriched product.

Vegetable shortenings replace butter in cooking.

Bacon fat may be used instead of butter in many recipes. Have you ever tried bacon toast, for example? Toast bread on one side, under the broiler, perhaps, and then brush the other side with bacon fat before toasting. It's really good!

Women who hadn't finished their canning when the sugar began to run out may can pears and plums without sugar, by using boiling water in place of the usual sirup. The fruit will keep as well, and may be sweetened after the jars are opened. For jams and jellies, fruit pulp and juices may be canned without sugar, and as soon as the sweet stuff is available, the spreads may be made. It is not advisable to use brown sugar or sirups in canned fruit, as a rule. Flavor is likely to be impaired, and color darkened.

I still have sugar saving recipes available for any reader who will send the required stamped, self-addressed envelope for them.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE.

Butter Fried Shrimps.
[Serves three to four.]

1 pound cleaned and cooked fresh shrimp
4 eggs, well beaten
½ teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of powdered thyme
Dash of Maggi or Worcestershire sauce
½ cup flour [about]
Fat for deep frying

Prepare shrimps, wipe dry. Add seasonings and sauce to eggs; stir in enough flour to make a thin batter. Beat well. Dip shrimps in this mixture; drain slightly and fry in deep hot fat at 375 to 380 degrees. Serve hot with any preferred sauce. DANIEL PIERRE,

Two Piece Frock

Surplice lines create a graceful jacket for this two-piece ensemble, which is smart in crepe, satin, or sheer woolen. Your own costume jewelry clips may accent the simple V neckline. Style No. 2540 is designed for sizes 12 to 46. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch fabric.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 20 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Boys, Use This 'If' Test to See How You Rate

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Girls are a problem. And many a good Joe is puzzled to know whether his current heart interest is really in the ever-lovin' department or just marking pleasant time until something more interesting comes along. Put your friendship to this "if" test and see where you stand with your honeychile:

If you promise to call at 7, and the gal is standing by for your call; if she plans her evenings with the girls for the evenings when you are busy, too; if she remembers the day you met, what you were doing, and what she thought the first time she saw you; if she never breaks a date; if she suggests that you spend an occasional evening walking or "just talking"; if she doesn't keep you waiting later than 8 o'clock for a 7:30 date; if she tells her family about you just because she thinks you're that wonderful; if she studies in the library after school just because you have work to do there, too; if she wants your class ring and wears it every day; if she asks your opinion on politics, life, and other girls—and listens when you give them to her; if she likes to dance to slow music just because you do; if she thinks you look like Van Johnson, and if she asks you to come over Sunday afternoon so you can meet all the family—don't worry. You're in!

But, if she breaks two dates in a row and at the last minute because she "has to watch her sister's baby"; if she thinks you talk too much or laugh to loudly and tells you about it gently; if she always wants to double date; if she would rather go to a movie than spend the evening talking to you; if she wants to exchange every second dance; if she doesn't talk to her girl friends about you; if you call her on Monday for a week-end date and she says, "I can let you know by Thursday"; if she doesn't laugh at the same joke you told her twice last week; if she accepts your class ring but takes it off when she dates other fellows; if she likes to talk about the smooth joe she was dating this time last year, and if she doesn't like to talk about you—better start looking for another gal. You're about to get the brush-off!

New Gifts Swell Free Ice Fund to $661 Total

The Chicago Tribune Charities Ice fund yesterday reached a total of $661.02, including $22 in new donations and $639.02 previously acknowledged. New donations were from S. A. Poyer, $20, and a Mrs. Thunberg, $2. The fund is administered by the United Charities of Chicago to supply ice for needy families.

Setting Built for Tribune's Fashion Show

Final preparations for THE TRIBUNE'S Fifth Annual American Fashions show were under way last night as workmen started to build a setting in W-G-N's studio theater for the show's five presentations. The first will be on Wednesday night.

A runway was being constructed down the center of the studio and a pair of opera drapes was prepared for backdrops. Arrangements were made for floral stage decorations, and technicians were planning special lighting effects during the shows.

The show will climax nine months of work by those engaged in planning and staging the productions. The 1944 American Fashions contest was opened Jan. 1, at which time designers from every part of the nation started to send their entries to contest headquarters. The work really started when the contest closed May 1.

From hundreds of outstanding entries, 37 designs were selected. These were translated into costumes under the guidance of Mrs. Grace Pickering, prominent fashion authority who is largely responsible for the nation-wide fame of the show.

To show the winning designs, Mrs. Pickering selected the nation's leading models. Each coat and each gown was made especially for the mannequin who will wear it down the runway during the show.

A concert ensemble under the supervision of Henry Weber, W-G-N's musical director, will play music selected and arranged to bear out the show's keynote of dignity and simplicity. Mrs. Pickering, Mary Affick of W-G-N, and Rea Seeger, THE TRIBUNE'S fashion editor, worked untiringly to perfect last minute plans.

Tickets for the show at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, may be reserved by calling Sup. 0100, extension 530. They are $2. No seats are available for the matinee and evening productions on Thursday and Friday. Checks should be made out to American Fashions, Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., 435 N. Michigan av., Chicago 11, Ill.

Sunday Evening Club Opens Season; Honors Dr. Barnes' Memory

The memory of the late Dr. Clifford W. Barnes, who founded and headed the Chicago Sunday Evening club for 37 years, was praised last night by Harry A. Wheeler, first vice president, when he opened the club's 38th season in Orchestra hall.

Mr. Wheeler said that Dr. Barnes' work in the club was "his legacy to Chicago." "We are bound, in his memory, to carry on and we will," said Mr. Wheeler.

A special memorial service for Dr. Barnes will be held next Sunday.

Bishop Edwin F. Lee, director of the general commission on army and navy chaplains, told the opening meeting that Americans should unite and "stand ready to coöperate with our returning service men to build a better world."

Gay Shoulderette

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

A light weight but warm crocheted shoulderette is created of simple open work stitches and fine yarn. This clever gift suggestion requires little time to make, and the looped edges are simple and effective.

For instructions in crocheting the shoulderette, No. 501, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Wise Mother Takes Noise in Her Stride

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Did you ever think in our school days that Marge would ever take such awful noise in her stride?" asked a woman, speaking of their hostess, whose home they had just left. "Do you remember how she disliked football games and our uproarious crowd? Look at her now—four strong, healthy children barging in and out, one asking for this and the other for that; another building a wagon with noisy gusto, and the youngest capping the racket with a toy whistle."

"It amazed me, too, but it intrigued me immensely," replied the friend. "It made Marge forget her nerves and many of her peculiarities. She's certainly turned into an efficient and wise mother and she's really a splendid wife."

Many mothers, if they gave it a thought, would smile to think how many sensibilities, formerly nurtured, disappear when their children are around. Things that used to make them feel squeamish no longer seem to disturb them. Noises that at one time made them wince scarcely distract them any longer. Children do that to you.

If they don't, you're in danger of becoming a "don't" mother—a fussy, crotchety, delicate kind of a mother—a nervous mother; and heaven help the child who has a nervous mother. You simply have to learn to toughen those nerves. You can make up your mind that your nerves won't be affronted by the noise of children playing together—the laughter and the shouting and the squealing, the horns or the whistles or the hammering, or any of the various kinds of racket without which, often, their play cannot go on.

After all, children do have their quietly interesting times which may last for hours, and they should have. Also they should be taught reasonable consideration for others. But when their play is of the free, healthy, noisy kind, let it wash around you without putting you on edge. You'll find yourself becoming stronger mentally and in a sense, physically, and able to enjoy the days with your young sons and daughters.

Naval Museum Curator to Talk at Dinner Here

Capt. Harry A. Baldridge, U. S. N., retired, will be principal speaker at the John Paul Jones dinner of the Illinois Society of the Sons of the Revolution at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Union League club. Capt. Baldridge is curator of the naval museum, Annapolis, Md.

Velvet Dresses Still Marvels of Simplicity

BY REA SEEGER.

Velvet dresses, black as coal, designed for the young and not-so-young are here in time for late fall and winter wardrobes. The slim models still are marvels of extreme simplicity, with frills of fine lace or sheer or twinkling with collars and narrow cuffs of white silver or multi-colored sequins. . . . Some go very dress parade with trims of white ermine tails.

Some are cut and fitted in a simple sheath silhouette, with a sleeveless top or tiny cap sleeves, no longer than three inches. Many are only two inches deep. Skirts are gathered simply, with side front fullness expertly distributed to maintain figure slenderness.

More sophisticated dresses employ the smart two piece suit style. The jackets have either elbow or full length sleeves. Neck lines to the jacket tops are usually in a deep vee or a cardigan rounded outline. Skirts are straight and slim, with a few made with flared gores. Belts are of velvet, and can be alternated with kidskin or jeweled belts, or the newest of all, fur belts. Fur belts can be ermine, ocelot, or leopard, and many striking affairs are made of black and white or brown and white spotted calfskin.

Floor length dinner dresses of clinging black velvet flaunt jeweled buttons, are combined with brocade tops, or are made with lace bodices with long or short sleeves.

Dance dresses of black velvet are the special delight of the dancing crowd. The dresses have romantic wide swirling skirts, tiny narrow waistlines and very flattering rib hugging bodices, with soft details of appliqued motifs in lace or net used for the round, square, and sweetheart neck lines.

Thru the Looking Glass

It would be most unrealistic to wear rose colored glasses, but there's a lot to be said for the psychological effect these days of wearing the new rosy make-up.

There is, for example, the complete new facial facade done in matched pink tones. Think you can't wear it? You'd be wrong. Practically every woman can wear it—and tho it's pink down to its very foundations, the ultimate effect is not what the younger generation could possibly describe as "icky." It's just fresh and flattering.

The base is frankly pink tinted, but it's a cream of the most beautiful consistency, like a drift of pink cloud. A few drops blended lightly over the face and throat are all you need. It gives your skin luster [youthful luster is one of the most intriguing of all the aspects of this new pink make-up], AND the illusion of three things—finer texture, glowing color, and precious opalescence. Over the base goes rouge in a deeper pink, then the face powder keyed to this pink luster range—and a lovely, glowing color it is, too. Then, if you're beauty wise, you'll use eye make-up. Everybody's doing it these days, or soon will be, and it's a universal improvement when properly applied.

The big feature, tho, is the lustrous pink lipstick. The shade is utterly lovely and smart. Pinks are in, and that's all there is to it. But what you'll love particularly about this is the softness and the sheen of the stick itself. Your mouth will look more natural. This lipstick is satiny, and stays that way.

All that's really new in these preparations is the shade, trotted out this fall to take one of the first places in the parade of pinks. The foundation, the powder and the lipstick are desirable in any one of a number of good shades, but this year's debut in lustrous pink tints makes them deserving of special attention if you're planning a new fall face to match and dramatize your new fall clothes.

Goren on Bridge - - - By Charles H. Goren

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ.

Q. 1—You are South holding the following hand and open one club. Partner responds one spade.

♠ 9 6 4 ♥ A K J ♦ K 7 6 ♣ A J 10 2

What do you bid now?

A.—One no trump. Don't yield to the temptation to bid two no trump, just because you have somewhat more than an opening bid. You haven't enough more. If partner doesn't bid again there won't be any game. You ought to have one and one-half honor tricks above your bid to justify a jump.

Q. 2—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:

♠ A 10 9 7 ♥ K 7 6 ♦ K 9 5 ♣ 6 4 3

What is your response?

A.—Two hearts. This is preferable to bidding one spade, on the principle of "getting off the spot." Should you bid one spade and partner rebids two hearts, you will not know whether to raise hearts or not. You cannot afford to do both, so the single raise is the better choice.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠ A 10 6 4 2 ♥ A 7 ♦ A Q 9 4 ♣ 7 5

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
3 spades	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. There is no justification for any stronger bid. You have already announced that you are interested in a slam, and to repeat the story not only takes it for granted that partner was not listening, but actually risks the safety of the hand. If there is a slam in this hand you will hear further from your partner.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ — ♥ 6 ♦ A Q J 7 5 3 ♣ K Q 10 7 4 2

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	Pass	4 hearts	?

What do you bid?

A.—Four no trump. This is a sizzable informatory bid and forces partner to show the better of the unbid suits. This is much better than trying to guess the suit yourself.

Q. 5—As dealer you hold:

♠ 5 2 ♥ A K Q J 10 5 ♦ K Q J 10 3 ♣ —

What is your opening bid?

A.—One heart. The fact you have game in hand it would not be strategy to open with a bid of two hearts, because the hand does not have the high card qualifications for such a call. A minimum of four honor tricks is required. The danger of opening with two hearts is that partner may have something like the king-queen of spades and the ace-king of clubs and all the king's horses couldn't keep him from bidding a slam. Did you ask, "What if the hand is passed out at one heart?" You must be joking. Try dealing out the remaining cards some rainy afternoon.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ A J 7 3 ♥ Q 10 ♦ 10 6 3 ♣ A Q 10 5

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Six hearts. Your trump support is very adequate for a suit in which partner has made a jump rebid. Your hand has the essential ingredients of an opening bid and partner has opened the bidder and jumped.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ A 6 2 ♥ A K 9 5 ♦ K 5 ♣ A 10 7 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 heart	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
4 spades	Pass	5 clubs	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five diamonds. Hearts have been agreed upon and a small slam should be a cinch. It is good tactics to show partner the king of diamonds which may enable him to go after bigger game.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠ A Q 10 5 ♥ A K J 10 7 6 ♦ K Q J ♣ —

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 spades	Pass	3 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. It is very desirable first to fix the trump suit and postpone the bidding pyrotechnics for a minute or two. Partner should be given an early opportunity to show the ace of diamonds if he has it, whereupon the grand slam would become a moral clinch. If it's the ace of clubs he has instead, you had better find out about it.

A Rare Cantonese Delicacy
FRESH LOBSTER
"ALMOND DIN"
This dish is prepared from Lobsters rushed to us from the cold salt waters which tumble against the rocky Maine coast. They are not to be confused with the so-called Rock, Florida or African lobsters (tails). These Maine Lobsters are richest in iodine content of any living creature. The meat, cooked to a nicety in peanut oil is combined with blanched white almond kernels, Chinese bamboo sprouts and rare Oriental spices, thus creating an epic treat that mere words cannot do justice. This man-sized dish satisfies the most exacting taste of the cultured gourmet.

BROWNS WIN FIRST AMERICAN LEAGUE FLAG

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THE iron man performances of Catcher Frank Hayes of the Athletics and Ray Mueller of the Cincinnati Reds do not mean that the two are better physically than receivers of the past, according to Jim Wilson, the Reds' coach. . . . Jim, who was a sturdy receiver himself, says the shortage of maskmen these war years gives the team's No. 1 man the opportunity for more action. . . . Charley Riley, St. Louis Negro featherweight, has won 27 fights in a row, including 24 by knockouts. . . . Customarily, when a baseball season ends, at least one or two of the 16 major league managers are studying the help wanted advertisments. . . . With the signing of Freddy Fitzsimmons for another season with the Phillies and Leo Durocher with the doleful Dodgers, there is every indication that next year's managerial roster will be sent to the printers unchanged. . . . The attitude of the owners of second division clubs seems to be that the pilots have done the best they could with the material at hand. . . . The use of tracer bullets by California hunters has resulted in numerous forest fires. . . . Many such cartridges, brought back by service men from overseas have been confiscated and conservation authorities have barred their use in the state. . . . They also warn that game brought down by the bullets soon becomes poisonous to such an extent that it can cause serious illness or death. . . . Ohio State can put an all-veteran line on the field. . . . All seven men are 4-F and their average weight is 200 pounds. . . . Add similes: As fast as the Illinois back field.

Joe McCarthy never has forgiven Del Baker, then manager of the Detroit Tigers, for using a patched-up lineup in the final two games of the 1940 season against the Cleveland Indians. . . . The Tigers had clinched the pennant, then dropped two straight to the Indians, enabling the latter to beat out the Yankees for second place. . . . Baker defended his action, on the grounds that he had to give his regulars all the possible rest for the world series with the Cincinnati Reds. . . . The University of Michigan expects the Ford Willow Run plant's return to the five day week to result in a big gain in attendance at home football games. . . . Johnny Rigney, White Sox pitcher in the navy, had a record of 22 victories and four defeats with the Norfolk [Va.] training center. . . . The Olympia Fields Country club, which went thru reorganization this year, reports that long term indebtedness has been reduced from $590,000 to $240,000 and interest charges from $21,000 a year to $7,000.

Transient Thought.

I had a thought the other day,
It came as softly as a bird.
But then as softly went away,
And I remembered not a word.
I know not what it meant to be;
It was a dainty, fragile thing.
But it did something good to me,
And left me with the urge to sing.
A shining bit of filigree;
Its pattern delicately traced;
It stayed a moment there with me,
And then for all time was erased.
In what deep recess of the mind
Are transient thoughts, like this one, born?
Perhaps they're kin to dreams we find
In sleep, that vanish with the morn.
Whatever ichim designed this thought,
I'm glad it stayed awhile with me.
Because of all the joy it brought,
And left within my memory.
—Ray Medland.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 1.—The Green Bay Packers, after facing a miniature problem along the lines of the one which confronted the Bears a week ago, today successfully soived it and dashed to their third successive National Football league victory before 18,556 chilled fans in State Fair park.

Green Bay's victims were the Detroit Lions, making their first start in the championship race. The score was 26 to 7.

Lions Take Early Command.

It was 6 to 0 for the Lions at the end of the first quarter. Worse still, at that time the Packers were backed less than a foot from their goal line and a second Detroit score seemed a cinch. About this time the Packers must have remembered the 28 to 0 deficit with which they had burdened the Bears last Sunday in Green Bay.

Anyway something happened. The Packers held for downs on the first play of the quarter, soon thereafter bounced into a 7 to 6 lead, and then really went to work in the second half, scoring twice in the third period and once in the fourth.

Sinkwich Provides the Spark.

Frankie Sinkwich, the Georgia star by way of Youngstown, O., led the early Detroit attack, tho later he had to take the bitter with the sweet, including four personal fumbles and a rules infraction which put the Packers in position for their first score. From the Packers' 41 shortly after the opening kick-off, Sinkwich sparked a scoring drive which included a 34 yard pass to Dave Diehl and a 5 yard touchdown flip to Bob Westfall, the freshman back from Michigan. Then Sinkwich's kick for the point was blocked.

Midway in the period Sinkwich started operating again after stopping a 44 yard Packer drive on the Lions' 32. Frankie was running and passing. Once he fumbled but his teammate, Bill Matheson, recovered. Finally Westfall, operating smoothly with Sinkwich, slammed for 8 yards and a first down on the 5. That's when the game began to take on the appearance of a rout.

Sinkwich hammered to the 1. This gave the Lions three more shots for the score. On the next play Babe Ray, limping from an

BEARS WIN OVER WASHINGTON IN EXHIBITION, 28-0

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Chicago Bears, who won their National Football league title in Wrigley field from the Washington Redskins on the day after Christmas last year, repeated that victory on the same gridiron yesterday, 28 to 0, in an exhibition game watched by a crowd of 22,017.

The star performers of last year's title match—Sid Luckman of the Bears and Sammy Baugh of Washington—were absent yesterday. On the basis of the Bears' four touchdowns and Washington's inability even to threaten to score, Baugh must be the Redskins' invaluable man. The Bears, however, managed quite well without Luckman, thanks to Ray McLean's speed and accurate pass catching by George Wilson, who scored in the third and fourth periods on throws by the veteran, Gene Ronzani, and the rookie, Bill Glenn.

Speed was the key to the Bears' victory and McLean's 50 yard return of a punt by Mike Micka on the second play of the second period would have been sufficient to win.

Drive 66 Yards to Score.

Ray made a running catch exactly in midfield and after going 6 yards he was dropped to his knees by a tackler's arm. McLean recovered expertly and sprinted diagonally toward the east sideline. The delay caused fatal convergence of defenders and Ray, with excellent key blocks, raced down the boundary to the goal. Pete Gudauskas place kicked the point as he did after all subsequent scores.

Leonard and Senators End Title Hopes of Tigers, 4 to 1

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 1.—The Tigers reached out for a pennant—or at least a tie in the waning moments of the American league race today but instead grabbed a couple of fiery Senators in the persons of Emil [Dutch] Leonard and Stan Spence. These two members of the league's eighth place colony rose up as if they themselves were in quest of world series loot and when they had finished their work the Tigers' flag bubble had burst. The story ended with a 4 to 1 score.

Spence Spoils Tigers' Dreams.

The 34 year old Leonard, aiming at his 14th victory of the season just about knuckle balled the Tigers into distraction. A crowd of 45,565 giving the Tigers a total paid home attendance of 954,316, saw Leonard hold his foes to one hit in seven innings. He yielded a second hit in the eighth and then in the ninth surrendered two more that gave the Tigers a run that, at best, was poor consolation.

Spence, Trout's chief tormentor, was in the party from start to finish, doing things to his cousin pitchers that the Tigers couldn't do to Leonard. Spence singled in his first time up, but didn't get results, so when he returned in the fourth he exploded a homer with a mate on base to start a three-run splurge that was marked by five hits. Later on Spence singled again to put into scoring position the eighth inning run with which the Senators completed the wreckage. It was Spence's third homer of the series, one of them crushing Trout in Friday's game when he made his 39th start of the season.

Trout Suffers 14th Defeat.

When the overworked Trout collapsed to take his 14th defeat instead of victory No. 28, it concluded a yarn the Tigers started to spin July 13 when they were in seventh place—nine and one-half games from the top. The upsurge came with the return of Dick Wakefield from the navy and it went on until Sept. 17, when the Tigers finally climbed into first place. Strangely enough they began their climb by taking four straight from the Senators, the same team that in the concluding series turned on them for an even break in four games. Altogether the Senators beat the Tigers only five times in 22 games.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1.—This old river town, reputed to be apathetic to baseball, is baseball crazy now—crazy because the long dormant St. Louis Browns are the new American league champions. The Brownies, until today the only team in the American league which never had won the pennant in the 43 year existence of the league, accomplished the feat by scoring a 5 to 2 victory over the 1943 champions of the world, the New York Yankees, after the Detroit Tigers less than an hour earlier had lost to the tail-end Washington Senators, 4 to 1.

The pennant race which ended before 37,815, the largest crowd which ever saw a Brownie team play in St. Louis, was dramatic in the extreme. Here are some of the highlights:

Sig Jakucki, erstwhile soldier and a minor leaguer in all his baseball career prior to this summer, held the Yankees to six hits and was invincible after the first three innings. It was his 13th victory of the year.

Laabs Decides Issue.

Two homers by Chet Laabs, with Mike Kreevich on base each time, gave the Browns more than enough runs to win. Laabs, a .230 hitter going into today's game, did not leave his full time war plant job until late in the season, entered the final series after Milt Byrnes had been benched for light hitting. Previously he had knocked only four homers all season. Laabs, former Tiger, is a resident of St. Louis.

Kreevich, former White Sox, like Laabs, played almost exclusively against left handed pitchers until late in the season. Kreevich singled just before Laabs smashed each of his homers off Mel Queen in the fourth and fifth innings. Mike was born just across the river from St. Louis.

Snap Out of Slump.

The Browns, victims of a big slump which had dissipated a 6½ lead they had built up well past midsummer, came home for a September drive. After they got home the Yankees, then the Tigers took over the lead.

But the Brownies snapped out of their slump—had a record of 7 victories in 8 games before they took on the Yankees for the final four.

With those four against the Yankees coming up, the Tigers had four with the Senators—and the Tigers were leading by a game.

The Browns swept the series with the passing world champs—4 to 1, 1 to 0, 2 to 0—and today, 5 to 2. The Tigers could do no better than split with the Senators.

That, in round numbers, was the final story of the pennant.

The start of the 1944 world series, perhaps the last war time series, thus was simplified from the transportation and hotel standpoint. A tie would have meant a journey for the Browns to Detroit, and the return here for one of the teams to open the series Wednesday with the Cardinals as hosts. Then, possibly, a return to Detroit.

Now it's all St. Louis—and St. Louis joins New York and Chicago among major league cities which have made the world series solely a municipal enterprise.

Scene of Great Exuberance.

The finish today was one of great exuberance, with the players mobbing Jakucki first, then paying tribute to Laabs and Kreevich.

It was all new stuff for every player on the Browns. Not one of the players ever had been on a major league pennant winner before.

Manager Luke Sewell and Coaches Jack Taylor and Freddie Hofmann had experienced the thrill before—but, they said, it was nothing like the bang they got when George McQuinn accomplished the final out today.

The Browns, by the way, gained the championship with 89 victories and 64 defeats. That's precisely the ratio by which the Cardinals won their first pennant—in 1926.

Brown Boss Sheds Tears Over Victory

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1 (AP).—Tears trickled down the cheeks of Don Barnes, owner of the Browns, as his players hilariously swarmed into their dressing room today with the first American league championship ever won by a St. Louis team.

Don Barnes.

The pudgy gray haired Barnes joined in the jubilation, accepting congratulations from every one who wanted to pump his hand while he laughed, shouted and mopped the increasing flow of tears as the celebration heightened.

Stoical Luke Sewell, Browns' manager, calmly greeted well wishers as tho he had been winning pennants for years.

Laabs and Jakucki Center of Interest.

Chet Laabs, who hit the two home runs into the left field bleachers, and Sigmund Jakucki, who pitched superbly in the pennant winning game, were beneficiaries of most of the back-pounding by the players.

Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager, came in after allowing a few minutes for the celebration to level off. He quickly gripped Sewell's hand, said "good luck in the series" and departed as photographers vainly pleaded with him to remain for pictures.

"We're in good shape for the series," said Sewell in answer to queries about whether the neck-and-neck final drive had taken anything out of the players.

"We've been down but never out," Sewell said. "We've been in there fighting all the time. We didn't come up off the floor, we've never been on the floor.

Sewell Says Victory Proves Sport Honest.

"If this has proved anything at all," he added, "it is that baseball is the most reputable and honest sport in the world."

Barnes observed that he knew all the time the team would come thru. "How could it miss," he asked, "with me carrying these old reliable good luck charms?" He exhibited a medal which he said was emblematic of the Browns' championship in 1896 before the American league was organized, a small chip of China which he said "my sweetheart gave me," an old 3 cent coin, and a small piece of metal on which he said was engraved the Lord's prayer.

STEUBER, NAVY ELEVEN TROUNCE CAMP ELLIS, 45-7

The Ottumwa, Ia., navy air base football team, paced by Bob Steuber, former University of Missouri star, yesterday routed Camp Ellis, 45 to 7, at the camp. It was the opening game of the season for Camp Ellis.

Steuber ran 16 yards for the first touchdown shortly after the game started. Later in the period he passed 23 yards to Roger Peck, end, for the second score, and before the quarter closed, plunged over from the 3 yard line and converted the point to give Ottumwa a 19 to 0 advantage. Ottumwa led at half time, 25 to 0.

Steuber came back in the third quarter with a 31 yard touchdown run and later passed to Thompson for another score.

CARDINALS MADE 1-2 FAVORITES TO WIN SERIES

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals will be 1 to 2 favorites to win the world series and the Browns 17 to 10, Betting Commissioner James J. Carroll said today. The results of today's games made no change in his odds.

For the opening game Wednesday, Carroll says it will be 11 to 20 against the Cardinals if Morton Cooper pitches and 8 to 5 against the Browns if Nelson Potter is Manager Luke Sewell's choice.

WHITE SOX WIN BY 4 TO 1 AFTER LOSING, 3 TO 1

3,917 and Red Sox Help Chicago Close Season.

Showing hustle which was conspicuously absent during much of the campaign, the White Sox yesterday closed the American league's 1944 season by playing two games in only 2 hours and 48 minutes of playing time and splitting a double header with the Boston Red Sox at Comiskey park to wind up seventh in the American league standings. They finished one game behind Cleveland and Philadelphia, which tied for fifth place.

Rookie Rex Cecil, Boston pitching importation from the Pacific Coast league, beat Joe Haynes, 3 to 1, in the first game, in which each pitcher allowed only five hits. Johnny Humphries pitched Chicago to a 4 to 1 triumph in the second game as 3,917 fans helped the clubs ring down the curtain.

In the first game the White Sox scored in the only inning in which Cecil yielded more than one hit—the second—as Hal Trosky opened the frame with a single, went to second on an infield out and came home on the first of Tom Jordan's two hits.

The White Sox collected 11 hits off George Woods and Clem Hausmann, his successor, in the second game.

Racine Entrant Winner in 55 Mile Bicycle Race

Lewis Hedlund, a red headed youngster from Racine, Wis., captured the Elgin to Chicago 55 mile bicycle handicap road race yesterday from a field of 45 riders representing six states. Leaving Elgin with a 17 minute handicap on the stars, Hedlund took the lead at Mount Prospect and never was headed. Joe Medec of the C. Y. O. stayed close to the winner and finished in second place, with Jack McAvoy, South Chicago rider, third. The winner's time was 2:17.19.

Iowa Loses Star Guard, Liddy, by Navy Transfer

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 1 (AP).—The University of Iowa football team suffered a heavy blow today when it was learned here that Bob Liddy, regular guard and one of the 1943 stars, would be assigned to duty elsewhere by the navy.

Cubs Defeat Braves, 4 to 3; Then Lose, 7-6

Boston, Mass., Oct. 1 [Special].—The Cubs made two gallant comebacks in a double header with the Braves today, but they had to be satisfied with a split, winning the first game, 4 to 3, and dropping the second, 7 to 6, as the final curtain went down on the National league season.

In the opener, after the Braves had scored three unearned runs on one hit off Hank Wyse, the Cubs jumped on Red Barrett for two in the third and two more in the fourth.

In the third inning of the second game Lynn doubled, Hack walked, Schuster grounded out, and Lynn scored on Pafko's long fly. After Nicholson's walk, Secory singled to score Hack.

The Cubs tied it in the next inning, when they got four runs, but the Braves forged into the lead in the sixth, and stayed there.

PIRATES DIVIDE WITH PHILLIES; TAKE 2D PLACE

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 1 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates assured themselves of second place in the National league today by pounding out hits for a 9 to 1 victory in the first portion of a double header with the Phillies in Shibe park. Then they relaxed as Dick Barrett held them to three meager hits as the home club won the season's final, 7 to 1.

Charley Schanz was the chief victim of the Pittsburgh hit parade in the opener, giving up 14 of the safeties before leaving the game in the eighth.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

THE QUESTION.

Who are the unsung heroes of today?

WHERE ASKED.

Allerton hotel.

THE ANSWERS.

Marie A. Taylor, clerk, 115 E. 118th st.—Several persons I know have office jobs and work eight hours a day. In addition, they work at night in restaurants as cooks and waitresses or in other overtaxed business establishments. Instead of being praised, those who work in restaurants now are anything but appreciated.

J. A. Greening, production control, Streeter, Ill.—The wives, mothers, and sweethearts of the men and women in service are doing a great job. They feel that those who are away from home are doing their duty and it's their job to keep them in as good spirits as they can until this war has been won.

Joan Mulick, clerk, Omaha, Neb.—Even before the war the railroads were busy but now one day in a railroad station is like Saturday afternoon shopping in the loop. It's marvelous how patient the clerks, porters, gatemen, conductors, and others are with the milling crowds who daily jam the stations.

Mrs. Harold Eicherly, housewife, 225 E. Huron st.—There are more people eating out now than ever before—there's less food—and fewer waitresses. The waitresses take a lot of abuse from customers who don't appreciate the many thousands of patient waiters and waitresses and criticize the few who are haughty.

Marion de Saegher, clerk, 521 E. 89th pl.—Have you ever tried riding on a street car or bus for an eight hour stretch? Fifteen minutes is enough for me, but think of the poor bus driver, who has people practically sitting on his neck all day long—and the street car conductor, who rides eight hours a day in a sardine can.

Bond Purchased Bombers Christened at Airport

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

2 RALLIES OPEN FUND DRIVE IN CHICAGO TODAY

Officials and Film Star to Attend.

The Community and War Fund drive to raise $12,980,000 will open today in Chicago with two huge rallies.

Solicitation of funds in industrial plants will begin at the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation's south plant, 3426 E. 89th st., at 10:30 a. m.

The second rally will be held at 8 p. m. in South Side Masonic temple, 6400 Green st.

Movie Star at Rally.

In the Carnegie-Illinois plant 18,000 workers are employed. Cesar Romero, Hollywood movie star who is now in the Coast Guard, will highlight in the program there. Army and navy officials will attend the rally.

This will inaugurate a campaign to raise funds among workers in Chicago's 6,000 industrial plants. Solicitation among workers will be pursued with the joint coöperation of labor and management. Approximately 1,200,000 employes will be reached in this manner.

Tonight's Rally Honors Mother.

The big kick-off rally tonight will be attended by more than 1,100 Community and War Fund volunteer workers. They will honor a Chicago mother who has six sons and a daughter on war duty. She will receive a bouquet of flowers and other special tributes.

Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly have been invited to attend the ceremonies.

This will be the first regional rally. The city has been divided geographically into seven separate areas to expedite solicitation.

WHO IS JOLIET'S POLICE BOSS? UP TO COUNCIL NOW

Just who is boss of Joliet's police department is expected to be settled by the Joliet city council today following an altercation Saturday among Mayor Arthur O. Janke, Chief of Police Ernest E. Overby, and Health and Safety Commissioner Fred G. Sehring.

Overby on Saturday ordered three officers of the police union to relinquish their current jobs and start walking beats. Sehring, who has jurisdiction over the police department, rescinded the order.

Overby then appealed to Mayor Janke, who backed up the police chief's order, and yesterday the three policemen were walking beats.

The three are Desk Sgt. Gus Anderson, secretary of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employes' union; Alex Davidson, president, former squad car patrolman, and Joseph Trizna, treasurer, a motorcycle policeman. The Central Trades and Labor council said it would take the matter up tomorrow, following the city council's meeting.

STREIT AGAIN CHOSEN TO HEAD FEDERAL UNION

Clarence K. Streit of Washington, D. C., author of "Union Now," was reëlected president of Federal Union Inc., at the closing session of its fourth annual convention in the Stevens hotel yesterday.

The convention called for the establishment of a nuclear union of democracies within a proposed general international organization of governments.

Gano Lightfoot and Dr. Mary Sherman of Chicago were named members of the board.

MEXICO FEARS FLOOD TOLL OF 200 LIVES

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 1 (AP).—Government officials expressed fears today that 200 or 300 deaths from drowning had occurred in the isthmus of Tehuantepec region.

They also were alarmed over the danger of epidemics thruout southeastern Mexico, where whole towns and villages have been washed away and thousands of people, homeless and hungry, are marooned by the inundations. Sources of drinking water have been contaminated by the floods, which will not subside for many days, altho the heavy rains have ceased.

The federal health and military authorities are sending out numerous groups of physicians and nurses with medicines, vaccines, and supplies to care for those who are endangered. In advance of the medical units, planes are flying over the expanses of water and dropping supplies to the marooned.

OBITUARIES

Dr. Charles H. Crain.

Services for Dr. Charles Hicks Crain, 89, of 5752 Kenmore av., who died at the Presbyterian home in Evanston Friday, will be held at 3:30 p. m. today at the Edgewater Presbyterian church, 1020 Bryn Mawr av. Dr. Crain was born in Lafayette, Ind., and after studying at several colleges, including the Illinois Medical college, he practiced there from 1876 to 1887. He practiced for three years in Salt Lake City, Utah, and then came to Chicago where he later began practicing ophthalmology, later becoming an instructor in that field for the Chicago Eye, Ear, Nose, and Throat college. He is survived by his widow, Myrtle Puffer Crain.

Thomas J. Dunne.

Services for Thomas J. Dunne, 68, of 8600 S. Ada st., a grain inspector for the Rialto Grain Elevator company at 104th st. and Calumet river until his retirement three years ago, will be held at 10 a. m. Tuesday from the chapel at 1136 W. 87th st. to St. Kilian's church. Mr. Dunne died Saturday in his home. He is survived by his widow and five sons and daughters.

William Mulock.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 1 (AP).—William Mulock, 101 year old chancellor of the University of Toronto, died today. Mulock, who was given a British knighthood, was a former chief justice of Ontario and was the last surviving member of the dominion cabinet of Sir Wilfred Laurier, in which he served as postmaster general.

OCD WARNS TIN SALVAGE CRISIS NEARS CHICAGO

The decline in tin can salvage is becoming acute in the Chicago area, Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, chairman of the Chicago office of civilian defense tin salvage committee, said yesterday. She issued an appeal to housewives, restaurants, industrial plants, and institutions to meet the present emergency. "The war production board reports that inroads on our available stock of tin have caused a crisis of such dimensions," Mrs. Kelly said, "that unless we continue to increase salvage we may be faced with a shortage that has no solution."

239 GRADUATES RECEIVE DEGREES AT U. OF ILLINOIS

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 1 [Special].—Degrees to 239 students were awarded today by Dr. Arthur Cutts Willard, president of the University of Illinois, at the October commencement for graduates whose work has been accelerated by the university's war time schedule. Approximately 60 graduates were from Chicago and Cook county.

HEARING TODAY FOR SUSPECT IN C-54 SABOTAGE

William Patrick Fanlon Jr., 37, of 900 N. Lavergne av., a chief inspector in the Douglas Aircraft corporation plant in Park Ridge, who was trapped by FBI agents Saturday as he loosened bolts on a C-54 army transport plane, will be arraigned today before U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, charged with sabotage under the war powers act.

Fanlon admitted he had loosened bolts, FBI Head Spencer J. Drayton asserted, but said that he did it only to win favor of his superiors. He said he would loosen the bolts and then pretend to discover them in hopes that his superiors would "regard me as a valuable man and maybe give me a boost in pay," Drayton added.

Drayton said his agents and army officers of the intelligence department had worked for some time on the case, after aircraft officials reported there had been sabotage on at least 12 of the huge transports during September.

FIGHT PLEDGED TO RETAIN U.S. RUBBER PLANTS

Synthetic Industry Held Essential.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—From both chambers of congress today came assurances that Republican members would protect America's synthetic rubber industry against any threats from New Deal negotiations with the British and Dutch empires for post-war reinstatement of their pre-war rubber cartels.

One international conference on rubber, clouded in secrecy, was held in London several months ago with American participation. A recent London dispatch said further discussions are planned by the United States, Britain, and the Netherlands.

Pledge to Protect U. S.

Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] and Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.], in separate interviews today said they and their fellow Republicans will never permit President Roosevelt to junk or suppress the war born synthetic industry thru any international trade agreement designed to benefit the former monopoly.

"We aren't going to play Santa Claus on the pretense of charity toward the South Pacific natives," said Wherry, who is a Republican whip in the senate. "American tax payers have 750 billion dollars invested in the synthetic plants. American workmen have jobs.

"American farmers have a market for surplus crops in producing alcohol as a raw material for the synthetic plants. The American petroleum industry has a market for a by-product in furnishing raw material for the synthetic.

American Interests First.

"Republican senators will insist upon placing the interests of Americans ahead of the interests of the natives in the tropics.

"Furthermore, it isn't the natives as much as the manipulators on the international rubber market at London who are so interested in suppressing the synthetic production for the benefit of the natural latex."

He said the workers in the tropical jungles in Malaya and Dutch East Indies included persons imported from India and China under slavery conditions.

"The synthetic product has been developed to a point where it can compete in price and quality with the natural rubber. Tire manufacturers report satisfactory performance of their synthetic casings on customers' automobiles. The only threat against the future of this big industry is the New Deal generosity with American money in negotiating with the empires."

Statement of Halleck.

Halleck, who is chairman of the Republican congressional committee coördinating congressional campaigns, made a similar statement for himself and his colleagues.

"We won't let the New Deal make a sucker of American taxpayers, farmers, and motorists," Halleck said. "America in pre-war years was half the market for the British-Dutch cartel and the main victim of its price juggling. That won't happen again. The synthetic plants will put a ceiling on all rubber prices after the war, benefiting all users of rubber products.

"I'm sure even the Roosevelt administration would not destroy the synthetic plants, thus exposing America in a military sense, but a Republican majority in congress and a Republican administration will be assurance that no global deal will suppress production in the publicly owned synthetic plants."

British Refuse to Reveal Size of Gold Stock

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The British government's desire to avoid awkward comments from congress about the continuance of American lend-lease supplies to Britain was believed in financial circles to be the reason for Chancellor of the Exchequer John Anderson's refusal in the house of commons last week to disclose the size of Britain's present gold stocks.

In reply to Laborite Richard Stokes, the chancellor admitted that Britain had bought gold from South Africa and other sources, but said the purchases formed a part of the British exchange equalization account whose assets "must continue to be treated as confidential."

Gold Purchase Estimated.

Stokes then asked whether it would be overestimating the total to say the exchange equalization account had purchased 1 billion 600 million dollars worth of gold, but Anderson merely repeated that the figures were secret and added he would not, "for obvious reasons," say why.

What the "obvious reasons" might be was subject to speculation in financial circles. It was generally agreed it couldn't affect the outcome of the war if Germany, for instance, knew how much gold Britain now has. Therefore, it did not seem that security reasons hold good, observers said.

U. S. Attention Embarrassing.

Oscar Hobson, the News-Chronicle financial editor, raised the possibility that the real reason for the suppression is that "the disclosure would invite an embarrassing amount of attention in the United States. Congressmen and others would ask awkward questions about the necessity of continuing lend-lease if it were disclosed that we now hold a substantial quantity of gold. That would cause trouble for the chancellor."

Hobson contended, however, that the chancellor should know the criticism cannot be stifled by concealment of the facts. He described the figure of 1 billion 600 million as an "absurd rumor" and warned that nothing is more likely to put Britain in the wrong with American opinion than to allow such a statement to circulate uncorrected.

TRUMAN RENEWS HIS CHARGE OF WASTE IN U. S. MUNITION PLANT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—Sen. Truman [D., Mo.], Democratic candidate for Vice President, reiterated today his belief that millions were wasted in construction of the big Sunflower ordnance plant at De Soto, Kas., but had no comment on the government's withdrawal from a multimillion dollar informers' suit against contractors who built the plant.

United States Atty. George West was quoted at Kansas City last night as declaring that, after a "full and careful" investigation, "the United States doesn't believe there is sufficient evidence to support the allegations of fraud."

Reminded that, when the suit was filed, he commented, regarding the construction job, "it's just 25 million dollars dropped in a hole," Truman told a reporter: "I know that of my own knowledge, but the matter of the suit is something for the court and the district attorney to decide."

The action was brought more than a year ago by William V. Ryan of Bolivar, Mo., an engineer employed in construction of the plant, now making rocket powder. He named as defendants Broderick and Gordon and William S. Lozier, Inc., and others who built the project.

HARRIS-SEYBOLD BUYS PRINTING EQUIPMENT FIRM

Purchase of Charles N. Stevens company, Chicago dealer in printing equipment at 112 W. Harrison st., was announced yesterday by R. V. Mitchell of Cleveland, O., president of Harris-Seybold-Potter company, manufacturer of lithographic printing presses and other products. The purchase was from Charles N. Stevens, founder and president, who is retiring, and Mrs. N. C. Benson, secretary-treasurer of the Stevens company, who will continue in that capacity under the new management.

The entire service and sales staffs will continue with the organization, which will be operated as the Stevens division of Harris-Seybold-Potter. Glen D. Baber, assistant sales manager of Seybold Machine division, has been transferred from Dayton, O., as manager of the new division. Attorneys Paul Bickel of Cleveland and Arthur R. Seelig, Chicago, handled legal details of the deal.

Expect Power Sales to Hold Up After War

New York, Oct. 1 (AP).—Sales of electricity to industry, domestic consumers, and other sources after the war are expected to hold at about 35 per cent above the September, 1939, level at their lowest point, expected three to four years after war ends in Europe, the Edison Electric institute said today.

A forecast prepared by the organization's commercial planning committee said the post-war readjustment period would create no large amount of idle plant capacity for business managed electric utility companies.

Expect 50 Per Cent Gain.

"Sales of electricity to domestic consumers by 1950 are estimated to reach a figure approximately 50 per cent greater on a country-wide average than in the peak year of 1943," the report said, "altho estimates for sales by individual companies vary from a minimum increase of 25 per cent to a maximum of 100 per cent in the seven years.

"Industrial power sales for the immediate post-war years are expected to return to the level of 1939, and subsequently increase with full scale resumption of normal civilian production."

The forecast said that for electric utility companies as a whole the shift would be gradual.

Expansion to Be Resumed.

"In the industrial power field it is expected that after an interval of two to four years a period of marked expansion in power sales will be resumed," the report added.

The committee said since the start of war utility companies had increased electricity output more than 70 per cent, accomplished in these ways:

1. By longer hours of use of existing capacity as war plants operated two and three shifts.

2. By narrowing the margin between peak load and installed capacity from 40 per cent when the war began to 20 per cent as the war load reached its peak.

3. By addition of 15 per cent to generating capacity.

First Aluminum Box Cars Sold to Three Railroads

Thirty aluminum boxcars, 20 of them designed for operation in regular passenger trains, have been sold by the Reynolds Metals company, John W. Burnett, head of the company's railway division, announced yesterday. Buyers in lots of 10 each were the Rock Island, Alton, and Minneapolis and St. Louis railroads. They are expected to be in operation by Dec. 15, to become the first aluminum boxcars ever put in operation.

Truck Freight Movement Increases During August

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—The American Trucking association today announced that motor freight carriers transported 7.8 per cent more tonnage in August than in July and 0.8 per cent more than in August, 1943. Based on information from 282 trucking firms in 44 states, it said 2,231,005 tons were handled in August, compared with 2,069,969 tons in July and 2,214,047 tons a year ago.

People and Events

H. A. Enochs.

H. A. Enochs, vice president in charge of personnel of the Pennsylvania railroad retired yesterday, the company announced. He started as a baggageman in 1895.

Election of H. J. Meyn as treasurer and C. A. Willard as assistant treasurer of Rock-Ola Manufacturing corporation, Chicago, was announced by A. R. Kelso, executive vice president. J. A. Weinand was appointed sales manager of the phonograph division.

John Collier, president of Crane company, will head the committee on arrangements for the 51st annual dinner meeting of the Illinois Manufacturers' association Dec. 12 in the Stevens hotel.

Walter J. Dundon, assistant general freight agent of the Santa Fe railway, has been appointed general freight agent, T. L. Bothwell, general freight traffic manager, announced.

W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, will discuss post-war transportation before the Gary chapter of the American Institute of Banking in the Gary hotel tonight.

Dr. Leroy N. Vernon, management engineer, will talk before the Office Management Association of Chicago Thursday in the Chicago Real Estate board offices, Kenneth W. Moore, president, announced.

Oscar F. Nelson has been appointed divisional sales manager of A. Stein & Co., Joseph M. Kraus, vice president, announced.

Wayne Pump company, Fort Wayne, Ind., announced election as a director of Capt. Otis E. Kline, veteran United Air Lines pilot.

KRUG REJECTS AUTO MAKERS' PRIORITY PLEA

Says Tool Industry Lacks Man Power.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—War Production Board Chairman Julius A. Krug said today the government cannot grant now the request of automobile manufacturers for priority on machine tools to give the industry a fast start on passenger cars after Germany collapses.

Record breaking munition schedules for the rest of the year—described by him as "the peak of our war needs"—stand in the way of the preparatory move, he said in an interview.

Promises All Possible Aid.

"If WPB did that for the automotive industry, we would have to do it for all other industries," Krug observed. "We haven't the man power now to make the machine tools.

"Issuance of such a piece of paper would simply be defrauding business into thinking it was getting something it couldn't get."

Despite his firm "no" to the proposal advanced by automotive leaders in Detroit last week, Krug promised that WPB "will do everything we can to assist every industry" in shortening the period of layoffs and idleness between the German surrender and the start of civilian production.

Ask Order Preference.

The motor group proposed that its order for peacetime machine tools and equipment be given priority equal to the "less urgent" class of war orders and ahead of some of the consumer goods now given "essential civilian" priorities.

Such preference, said the heads of General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler, at an informal news conference, might well be given to all industries which abandoned their normal product completely when war came.

WPB now permits plants to place orders for machines and tools, but the motor executives reported they could not get delivery unless the orders had priority standing.

Preferential treatment might shorten the changeover period by some three months, the industry said. Most of the manufacturers estimated it would take six to eight months to start passenger car production if war in Europe ended tomorrow, three to four months if all necessary preparatory steps could be taken in advance.

Nash Permitted to Start Peace Models; Has New Dealer Plan

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 1 [Special].—Nash-Kelvinator corporation today announced it had been added to the list of automobile manufacturers authorized by the war production board to do preliminary work on experimental models of civilian passenger cars. Ford Motor company, Chrysler corporation, and Fisher Body division of General Motors received similar go ahead permits several weeks ago.

H. C. Doss.

Like the other three companies, Nash-Kelvinator obtained the authorization on condition that it not interfere with war work and that employes so used be limited to planning engineers and technicians.

Permitted to Spend $90,000.

Nash will be permitted to spend $90,000 on labor and materials up to February, 1945, said A. M. Wibel, vice president.

A new franchise agreement with the company's automobile retailers was disclosed by H. C. Doss, vice president in charge of sales of Nash Motor division.

The agreement is intended to prevent overexpansion of the retail organization during the excessive public demand for new cars after the war, he said, and to provide fewer but stronger dealers with financial returns that will enable them to meet public needs during the recession period with full strength.

Projects Likely Sales Trend.

He said he expected "that following the close of the war, there will be a sellers' market for about three years, then a two or three year buyers' market, then leveling off."

Total automobile sales during these years will be 25 to 30 million cars, he estimated. He said Nash would be ready with its new, low-priced "25 to 30 miles-per-gallon big car" and already has developed production schedules based on tripling pre-war output.

WLB ANNOUNCES 'YARDSTICK' FOR WAGE SCHEDULE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—The war labor board today outlined a yardstick scale under which its regional boards and industry commissions may approve voluntary wage progression schedules.

WLB said schedules can be approved which do not raise the employes to the top of their rate range in less than 12 months for unskilled jobs, 18 months for semi-skilled jobs, and 24 months for skilled jobs.

It directed that with certain modifications in particular cases the lowest third of an establishment's jobs should be considered unskilled, the midthird semi-skilled, and the top third skilled.

GREAT NORTHERN SAVINGS.

Please report on Great Northern railway. How much are interest charges reduced by the present bond refunding program?—K. S.

The company's annual interest charges will be reduced by $1,553,000 thru the retirement of $119,887,700 face amount of bonds, most of which bear interest of 4 per cent. At the premium prices at which these issues can be redeemed, the total cash required is $123,441,097, most of which has been supplied by the recent sale of 100 million dollars of general mortgage bonds carrying coupon rates of 3¼ to 3½ per cent. The remainder will be drawn from treasury funds.

The earnings saved thru the cut in interest are not all net gain to the company as they are subject to federal taxes.

The refunding continues a notable Great Northern record in reducing funded debt and fixed charges. The charges in 1943 amounted to $12,506,172, compared with $19,572,165 in 1934.

Net income in the seven months was equal to $3.52 a share on the 2,486,923 no par shares, compared with $3.53 a share a year ago. The stock is described as "$6 noncumulative preferred" but there is no common. For recent calendar years earnings per share were: 1943, $7.84; 1942, $11.63; 1941, $6.72; 1940, $4.09; 1939, $3.48; 1938, $1.09; 1937, $4.05.

From 1941 thru 1943 dividend payments totaled $2 a share a year. One payment of $1 has been made in 1944.

CANCO AMERICAN CAN COMPANY

COMMON STOCK

On September 26, 1944, a quarterly dividend of seventy-five cents per share was declared on the Common Stock of this Company, payable November 15, 1944, to Stockholders of record at the close of business October 26, 1944. Transfer books will remain open. Checks will be mailed.

COMMUNITY AND WAR FUND NEEDS YOUR GIFT

Chicago's Community and War Fund campaign opens today. The goal for the area, which embraces Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties, is $12,980,000. In various places scenes like the above will take place.

"That's easy! First of all, your gift helps keep the USO working for the boys and girls in service all over the western hemisphere. More than 3,000 USO units provide a 'home away from home' for them."

"USO camp shows go overseas with them, too. These camp shows are presented right up close to the front and in the hospitals where the wounded are receiving treatment. There also are camp shows at home."

"There are many of our boys in prison camps, and your War Fund gift helps War Prisoners' Aid to shorten the monotony of their weary days behind the enemy's barbed wire, no matter where."

"On top of that, there are millions of war-shattered civilians all over the world who benefit from the 19 war and refugee relief agencies in the Community and War Fund. A part of your gift goes to them."

"Furthermore, your gift helps your neighbors here at home thru 187 health and welfare agencies of the Community Fund. There are clinics, hospitals, settlement houses, other agencies—all doing their jobs."

"Other agencies in the Community Fund work in different ways to help families in trouble, to aid the aged and the ailing, and to benefit the handicapped. They bring aid to the family that needs help."

EIGHT HOURS' PAY IS LITTLE ENOUGH TO GIVE FOR A MAN SIZE JOB LIKE THAT !
YOU NEVER BOUGHT SO MUCH HAPPINESS AT SO LITTLE COST !
by RICHARD FLETCHER

Your gift helps the Community Fund of Chicago, the Jewish Welfare Fund, and the National War Fund. It goes to the USO, War Prisoners' Aid, United Seamen's Service, and 19 war relief agencies.
